Foreword

Bhai Gurdas was one of the prominent Sikh personalities, who contributed massively to the interpretation and dissemination of the message of Gurbani. He was contemporary of Guru Arjan Dev, the fifth Nanak and worked as an amanuensis of Guru Granth Sahib. He was well-versed in the Vedic and Islamic tradition. He became proficient in the contemporary languages particularly Punjabi, Hindi, Sanskrit, Braj and Persian. He was eminent Scholar of the times. He mastered the Gurbani message and transmitted it both through his preaching tours of the different parts of the country and also by writing it down. His major compositions are Varan and Kabitt Savaiyyes. The later are in Braj Bhasha and therefore a bit difficult to comprehend both on the literary as well as doctrinal level. The Varan is his basic composition which carries in it the message of Gurbani. He has taken up various topics of Gurbani in his works such as God, Man, Nature, Gurmukh, Manmukh, Nadar, the Sikh way of life, Practical aspect of Gurbani, the human responsibility towards other fellow beings and the prominent contemporary Sikhs of the different Gurus. He discusses about the Vedic philosophy, Upnishdic doctrine and Six systems of Indian Philosophy but he by alluding these texts projects the philosophy of the Sikh Gurus. He explains it in detail in his Varan. And also establishes its view point among the contemporary Indian Vedic as well as non Vedic i.e., Islamic religious traditions. He endeavours hard to put forth and project the Sikh doctrine in the Indian religious tradition to make it explicit that the message enshrined in Sri Guru Granth Sahib is unique and thus infallible. Thus there was the dire need of its transmission to the people across the country. To this end he worked very hard to convey this message to the people both in literary form as well as by visiting various places. He preached upto Varanasi was then the centre of Hindu religion. There he also established the spiritual as well as social message of Gurbani and got convinced the Brahmins who turned towards the teachings of Gurbani. The Raja of Varanasi was greatly influenced by his preaching. It was a great contribution made to Sikhism so far as its spread is concerned.

The major and seminal work Varan of Bhai Gurdas are originally in Punjabi. As tradition goes the Varan being a key to comprehend the message of Gurbani, it was the dire need of the time to translate it into English to make it accessible to the English-speaking world. Keeping this in mind, Late Dr. Surinder Singh Kohli, an eminent Sikh Scholar, a retired professor from Panjab University Chandigarh has translated the Varan into English which is very near to the original text and without fail conveys the message of Gurbani contained in Varan to the English-knowing people. Thus, it is a composition of great eminence and it has been accomplished with rare circumspection.

The Department of Sri Guru Granth Sahib Studies has done a good job by arranging its publication. It is a great pleasure to introduce it to the English-speaking world. I am sure scholars as well as researchers will welcome.

Introduction

Bhai Gurdas, a known name in Sikh annals is revered as a pious, learned, exegete and missionary of zeal who preached the word of the Guru not only in Punjab but also in different parts of India and earned acclaim. He has the privilege to be in the presence of Guru Amar Das, Guru Ram Das, Guru Arjan and Guru Hargobind. His association with and patronage of Guru Arjan is undoubtedly a matter of great pride both for him as well as the developing Sikh community. He was born in Bhalla Khatri family to father Ishar Das and mother Jivani at Goindval in 1608 BK/1551 AD. The town Goindval was founded in 1603 BK/1546 AD. Ishar Das soon after the founding of the town had settled in there. He was one of the cousins of Guru Amar Das. Bhai Gurdas while barely he was three years old lost his mother and his father passed away when he was 12 years of age. There was none to look after him. So he spent his early years of life at Goindval and Sultanpur Lodhi. This town at that time was the religious centre of the Sikhs, for, Guru Nanak the first founder Guru of the Sikh faith, spent some time at this place and got enlightenment at Vein river situated at this place. Here, in this town persons of learning and piety used to visit. So he had an opportunity of listening to many men of knowledge and spiritual attainment. After sometime he proceeded to Varanasi to study Sanskrit and other Hindu important Scriptures of the time. After completing his studies there at Varanasi he came back to Punjab to attend on Guru Ram Das. In 1579 he endeavour hard to delve deep into the Sikh tenants and continued to remain absorbed into the meditation i.e., loving remembrance of God day and night. He at that time was young and energetic. He has a relentless zeal to preach the word of the Guru to the people and transmit the teachings of Guru Nanak and the other Gurus. For this purpose he travelled extensively throughout India and visited Agra, Lucknow, Varanasi, Burhampur, Rajasthan, Jammu and Chamba hills. These were the famous places associated with Guru Nanak Dev who during his travels of these areas had visited these places of note and has a good followings. Bhai Gurdas remained for quite a long time in this area and catered the spiritual needs of the devotees who were turned towards Sikh faith at the hands of Guru Nanak. Guru Ram Das passed away in 1581 AD. When it came to known to Bhai Gurdas he returned to Punjab, visited Goindval and thence proceeded to Amritsar to pay obeisance to newly appointed Guru, Guru Arjan Dev, the successor of Guru Ram Das. He, for future made Amritsar his home. He through his hard work, learning and piety carved for himself a pre-eminent position among the Guru’s disciples. After sometime Guru Arjan Dev decided to compile and prepare a Holy Granth for the Sikh devotees. He chose Bhai Gurdas to be the amanuensis of the Holy Granth. Guru Arjan sent his followers to different parts of India to bring the hymns of the Saints and Sufis and other persons of spiritual eminence and learning. He got collected a bulk of the material to be incorporated in the Holy Scripture. He sifted and scanned the whole available material with the help of Bhai Gurdas. He was the sole helper of the Guru so far as the compiling of the Guru Granth Sahib is concerned. He very meticulously prepared the original copy of the Granth, which was approved by Guru Arjan. This copy of Guru Granth Sahib written in the hand of Bhai Gurdas is preserved to this day in the family of the Guru’s descendants at Kartarpur in the present Jalandhar district of Punjab. Bhai Gurdas also contributed in the excavation of the sacred pool at Amritsar. When Guru Hargobind decided to construct Akal Takht in front of Harimandar, he chose Bhai Gurdas and Baba Buddha, the two most revered Sikhs of the time and entrusted them the construction work. Bhai Gurdas was also appointed by Guru Hargobind to teach his young son (Guru) Tegh Bahadur the ancient classics. He also led the batch of the Sikhs to Gawalior wherein Guru Hargobind was detained in the fort. He offered ardas at the death of Mata Ganga, the wife of Guru Arjan in 1621. He also made ardas at the time of Baba Buddha’s death in 1631. In this way he was also worldly wise and performed the duties perfectly assigned to him by the Gurus. It may be of the preaching of Sikh faith or managing household affairs of the Gurus. He performed both the religious and social duties assigned to him by the Gurus.

Besides this, he was very learned person of the times. He has deep knowledge of Hindu Sanskrit Scriptures. He has a perfect knowledge of Punjabi, Sanskrit, Arabic, Persian etc. This was the main reason that he mastered the texts of the Hindus. He has a very deep knowledge of Gurbani. Because of this he used to expound the Gurbani in Harimandar at the dictate of Guru Arjan the fifth master. His exposition and interpretation of the Sikh tenants is unparalleled even today. As it was the practice of the time he made this attempt of expounding and exegeting the gurbani in Poetry. His composition is known as Varan. He also wrote Kabit Savaiyye. It is a best attempt made by Bhai Gurdas to impart the teachings of the Gurus by explicating the basic concepts of Gurbani through these Varan. As the tradition goes these Varan are known as the key to the understanding of Gurbani and the basic concepts enshrined therein. In this composition Bhai Gurdas endeavoured hard to explicate the basic tenants of Gurbani such as Truth, the Sikh concept of God, the World, Gurmukh, Manmukh, Sikhs of the Guru’s times, Humai (ego), Humality, Simran (loving remembrance of God). He also discussed about the prominent Saints of India such as Dhanna, Pipa, Kabir, Ravidas, Sain etc. He, in his first Var, discusses in detail the prevailing religious situation on the emergence of Guru Nanak. How in society the moral values has eroded and total decadence was prevailing at the time? He also make a comparative study of the Vedas, Shastras, both Hindus and Muslim’s religious Scriptures and the degeneration emerging in both the ways of life. At this critical juncture and deteriorated time Guru Nanak emerged on the societal scene of India. He found the remedies for the long pending and prevailing maladies in the Indian societal fabrics. In this sense Bhai Gurdas being a man of great piety and of both moral and spiritual elevation and greundeur, contributed massively by imparting the teaching of the great Gurus and Gurbani which further inspired and helped the people attracted to understand the Sikh way of life which fundamentally originated from the basic doctrines of Gurbani. Bhai Gurdas was the first ever Sikh Theologian who not only expounded the doctrines and concepts of Gurbani but also preached the messages imparted by the great Gurus for the humanity at large. He also set an example that a Sikh is combination of a piety i.e., moral and spiritual elevation. He is never devoid of spirituality and devotion. A Sikh is not only a man of letters. But he is also a visionary which is only possible if he practise the teachings himself and only then impart to the laity for their spiritual upliftment पूजने भव धर्मघातक अद्वैत धर्म के अद्वैत धर्म के।। तु. त्रि. म. (पृष्ठ 381).

Thus this is the basic definition of a Sikh learned person. As we find that in Gurbani a Gurmukh is a man of combination of spirituality, saintliness and bravery. Thus Gurus has created a perfect or a whole man who attains this vision, only through the understanding and masticating the Gurbani teaching in one’s life span. Opined thus his contribution ranks the first attempt to interpret Gurbani. For this purpose he has adopted the poetry genre prevalent and approved at that time with perfection. That is why even today it is a guiding star to interpret Gurbani in the right direction.

In this sense the very important attempt made by Dr. Surinder Singh Kohli is of great eminence. It undoubtedly shall help English audience to understand the Gurbani concepts and teachings in the right perspective. The learned translator endeavoured very hard to both translate and transmit the meanings and essence of the each Var composed by Bhai Gurdas. Uptil now, except Dr. Jodh Singh, it is the second important attempt made by the learned translator. His knowledge of English is remarkable and further to carry the meaning, essence and import of the compositions is itself of a matter of great laudation. So, it is wonderful contribution made by Dr. Surinder Singh Kohli. Which will in many ways help to the future generation scholars to understand Gurbani through Bhai Gurdas’s Varan. I am beholden to our esteemed Vice-Chancellor for his keen interest evinced for the publication of this work. It is because of our worthy Vice-Chancellor, that the Sri Guru Granth Sahib Studies Department could publish it. I, on the behalf of our Department am very thankful to him for his patronage and guidance.

I am sure it shall be a welcome addition to the Sikh students and research Scholars working on Sikhism especially Gurbani interpretation.

BHAI GURDAS: The Great Sikh Theologian—His Life and Work

SCANTY MATERIAL ABOUT HIS LIFE

No systematic material is available about the life of the eminent Sikh savant and theologian. Since he lived at the time of four Sikh Gurus, from the third Guru Amar Das to the sixth Guru Hargobind, some reference about him are found in the recorded lives of these Gurus. He was a near relative of the third Guru, Guru Amar Das and belonged to the same clan. He was the son of Bhai Ishar Das, a cousin brother of Guru Amar Das both of them the progeny of the same great grandfather Bhai Bishan Das Bhalla. Guru Amar Das had two sons Mohan and Mohari and two daughters Bibi Bhani and Bibi Dani. Bhai Gurdas was much younger to Bibi Bhani, for whom he a great respect as elder sister Bibi Bhani was the wife of Guru Ram Das, the fourth Sikh Guru and the mother of Guru Arjan Dev, the fifth Sikh Guru. The sixth Sikh Guru, Guru Hargobind was the son of Guru Arjan Dev. Therefore the fifth and sixth Sikh Gurus considered Bhai Gurdas as an elder and venerable relative. He was thus an eminent and most important member of the Sikh congregation.

After the bestowal of Guruship on Amar Das, his uncle, Bhai Gurdas came under his impact. He became a follower of Guru Nanak Dev and began a profound study of the life ideals of that Great Guru, who had not only cast the great influence of his personality and beliefs on the votaries of Indian religions throughout India during his missionary journeys, but also on other major religions of the world. He had established the ‘sangats’ of his ecumenical religion in various parts of the world, wherever he went. Guru Nanak Dev was born in A.D. 1469 and after his missionary journeys, he settled at Kartarpur, where Bhai Lehna met him, who through his selfless service and devotion was installed as the second Guru by Guru Nanak Dev himself. After his passing away, Bhai Lehna as Guru Angad Dev moved to his own village Khadur Sahib, where Bhai Amar Das came into his contact and through his sincere devotion and selfless service, Amar Dass was blessed with third Guruship. Guru Nanak Dev had passed away in A.D. 1539 and Guru Angad Dev in A.D. 1552. Before becoming the Guru, Bhai Lehna was a ‘Sakta’ and Bhai Amar Das was a Vaishnava. It was at a very ripe age of 72 that Bhai Amar Das become Guru Amar Das. Guru Amar Das was born in A.D. 1479 and was only ten years younger to Guru Nanak Dev. He had passed away in A.D. 1574, but there is no evidence that the third Guru ever met the first Guru in his lifetime.

The exact date of the birth of Bhai Gurdas is not known, therefore considering all the pros and cons of his life, the scholars have tried to fix this date. Since Guruship was bestowed on Amar Das in A.D. 1551 and the religion of Guru Nanak was consolidated by him in twenty two principalities after that, it is surmised on that basis that Gurdas must have been born in the Sikh family of his cousin Ishar Das after that at Goindwal, when the anecdotes from the life of the Great Guru Nanak were being narrated to the younger ones and they could pick up the tenets of the new religion. Therefore, the birth of Gurdas has been considered in the year A.D. 1559.

When we study the works of Bhai Gurdas, we find that he very well knew various languages and dialects. He seemed to have studied the available bani of Guru Nanak Dev and also of Guru Angad Dev and Guru Amar Das in the early years of his life within his family-circle. In the traditional school of his town, he must have grasped a great deal about Sanskrit and Prakrit and also studied the basic books like Upanishads and Smritis from the Pundits. His knowledge of Arabic and Persian is also appreciable, which he might have picked up in the Madrasa of the town. Goindwal, being a town on the main route from Agra to Lahore, had gained great prominence and the Islamic lore must also have been taught in the local schools. Bhai Gurdas was also highly saturated with the knowledge about the Punjabi culture.

During the early years of his life, Bhai Gurdas gained the greatest hold on the tenets and doctrines of the religion of Guru Nanak Dev and made a comparative study with other Indian religions. He was growing to be a great preacher of Sikhism. In the Sikh congregation he was highly respected because of his knowledge and devotion. He was considered the most venerable Sikh, next to Baba Budha, who had, in his lifetime, met the founder Guru, Guru Nanak Dev and had been blessed by him. Baba Budha and Bhai Gurdas together served the Guru's household from the time of Guru Ramdas. Both of them served the Guru as teachers and preachers of Sikhism.

Bhai Gurdas: As Preacher of Sikhism

Having been greatly saturated with the lore and tenets of Sikhism from his very early life, it is probable that when Guru Amar Das demarcated twenty-two principalities, he sent Bhai Gurdas into the nearby areas as an enthusiastic preacher. He is said to have gone to hill states including Jammu and Kashmir. In the time of Guru Ram Das, he went to preach to the Sangats of Uttar Pradesh including Agra and Varanasi. Since he had attained great proficiency in his understanding of Hindu Religion and also Sanskrit Language, he is said to have earned great veneration of the masses in these areas. In the times of Guru Arjan Dev, he went to Kabul and other Sikh Centres in Afghanistan and North West Frontier Province of India. In the times of Guru Hargobind, though he continued the propagation of Sikh tenets in nearby areas, he mainly concentrated himself in the service of the Guru at his head quarters. After the death of Baba Budha, he worked for some time as the Granthi of Hari Mandir.

Noteworthy Incidents of His Life

1. In Janamsakhis, the biographies of Guru Nanak Dev, we find that some parables have been based on some noteworthy hymns, similarly two verses from the Vars of Bhai Gurdas have been the cause of the noteworthy incident said to have occurred in his life and narrated by the Sikh hagiographers. Bhai Gurdas wrote:

   ‘Je Gur Saang vartada Sikh Sidak na hare’

   (If the Guru display some queer drama, the Sikh should not lose his faith)

   It is said that when Bhai Gurdas was assigned the duty of purchasing the horses in Kabul for the Guru, he had pay the money to the vendors at a fixed time. The treasurer brought the money, which had to be given to the businessmen, but when Bhai Gurdas opened the bag of mohurs, his own vision deceived him. Instead of mohurs, he saw only the pieces of potsherd and he felt so much frightened that he broke open the back wall of the place and ran away. This was only to test Bhai Gurdas on the basis of what he has written in the above verse. The businessmen after waiting for the long time outside made enquiries. At that time, the treasurer came and made the required payment. The mohurs were actually mohurs and not the piece of potsherd. Having run away like this, Bhai Gurdas declared himself as the thief of the Guru and when the Guru called him in his presence, he, in great humility, uttered another verse:

‘Je Gur Bharmaaye Saang kar, kia Sikh Vichara’ (If the Guru deludes by displaying a queer drama, what the poor Sikh can do?)

II. When the fourth Guru, Guru Ramdas passed away in A.D. 1581, Bhai Gurdas returned from his missionary tour. Guru Arjan Dev had taken over as the fifth Guru and his eldest brother Prithi Chand, proclaiming himself as the ‘real Guru’ was leading astray the Sikh disciples coming from far and near. Bhai Gurdas noticed to his great dismay that the free kitchen (Guru-Ka-Langar) initiated by Guru Nanak Dev himself and enhanced further by the second, third and the fourth Gurus, had considerably declined. The offerings of the Sikhs coming to visit the Guru had been waylaid by Prithi Chand and his entourage, therefore the earlier state of the free kitchen had immensely dwindled. Only dry bread and grams were being served. This state of affairs agonised the Sikh savant Bhai Gurdas and he alongwith Baba Budha had to work hard in order to bring home to the Sikhs as to who was the ‘REAL GURU’. Baba Budha and Bhai Gurdas were the most prominent Sikhs at that time and their efforts bore fruit in setting right the state of affairs regarding the free kitchen.

III. It has been recorded by Kesar Singh Chhibbar in his ‘Bansavali Nama’ : “Meharvan, the son of Prithia (Prithi Chand) used to compose poetry. He studied Persian, Hindvi, Sahaskrit and Gurumukhi. He composed a lot of poetry putting the name of Guru Nanak Dev at the end of his poems. The Dooms (minstrels) began to sing the hymns of ‘Meenas’ (Prithi Chand and his followers). They created another Guruship. These ‘Meenas’ got prepared a ‘Granth’ (holy book) and interspersed the hymns of the first four Gurus. The ‘Purohits’ and Brahmins took sides, some to this side and some to that. Those who went to the other side were inimical to those belonging to this side. Those who came to this side left their (those of the other side) Court... Here (in the Court of Guru Arjan Dev), the Sikh ‘Rababis’ (musicians) were employed for ‘Kirtan’ (Congregational singing). Some Sikh recited here a hymn composed by Meharvan, which was heard by Guru Arjan Dev. He said to Bhai Gurdas, “The Hymns of the Gurus must be separated. The ‘Meenas’ are going to mix up hymns, which should be set in order”. The Guru had been composing hymns in the past, which were gathered together by Bhai Gurdas.”

BHA! GURDAS AS SCRIBE OF THE ‘ADI GRANTH’ : Bhai Gurdas was the scribe, who wrote (scribed) ‘GRANTH SAHIB’ in Gurumukhi Script, which was one of the prevalent scripts in Punjab in those days. Bhai Gurdas, while scribing the ‘Guru-bani’ in the ‘Granth Sahib’ wrote all the words of a verse together and did not divide them off in pursuance of the practice in the ancient scripts, therefore the novice feels it a bit difficult to read a verse, which looks like a big word. The original volume of ‘Granth Sahib’ prepared by Guru Arjan Dev, with the scribe Bhai Gurdas, was installed by the Guru at the Hari Mandir (Golden Temple) at Amritsar, when it was complete. Baba Budha was the first high-priest (‘Granthi’). This Granth passed on from Guru Arjan Dev to Guru Hargobind and thence to his grandson Dhir Mal, the son of Baba Gurditta.

Thenceforward, this recession remained in the family of Dhai Mal at Kartarpur and is still there. It is, therefore, known as ‘Kartarpur Wali Bir’.

Bhai Gurdas was not only a great scholar of contemporary Indian Religions including Islam and had been saturated with the GURMAT Literature, but he was also a poet himself. The Gurus had produced their hymns not only in Punjabi for the use of the Punjabis, but also in Sant Bhasha and Braj Bhasha for the disciples coming from various parts of India. Similarly Bhai Gurdas wrote his poems for Punjabis language and for others in Braj Bhasha (the current literary language). His contribution consists of:

I. VARS (panegyrics in ballad style) in Punjabi Language and
II. KABITS AND SWAYYAS (forms of versification) in Braj Bhasha.

He had greatest understanding of the religious philosophy of Sikh Religion. He is, therefore, called the first SIKH THEOLOGIAN.

THE POETRY OF Bhai GURDAS AS THE KEY TO ‘GURBANI’

It is said that when Guru Arjan Dev had compiled and edited the hymns of the Gurus and saints for the ‘GREAT ANTHOLOGY’ called ‘GRANTH SAHIB’, Bhai Gurdas worked as a scribe and the thought of the inclusion of his own verses might have passed through his mind, through as a humble Sikh, he could not speak it out. The Guru is said to have uttered these words very graciously: “Bhai Sahib! Your work will be studied by the Sikhs in order to understand the profound thoughts of ‘Gurbani’. It will be the key to Gurbani”.

A SHORT APPRAISAL OF THE VARS

The Poetry of Bhai Gurdas is a facile elucidation of Gurmat (Sikh Philosophy), therefore it is, indeed, key to the bani (hymns) of ‘Guru Granth Sahib’. He composed Vars, Kabits and Swayyas. His Vars are thirty-nine in number. This is the first Volume of his Vars, in which the translation of the first twenty Vars in English has been included.

Each Var of Bhai Gurdas contains twenty to thirty ‘Pauris’ (stanzas) except the first Var, which contains 49 Pauris. Each Pauri contains a complete idea. The theologian, Bhai Gurdas, has given examples from day-to-day life for explaining each thought brought forward by him. In this first Var, he has given a short biography of the founde-Guru, Guru Nanak Dev and has also described the world-situation before the advent of the Guru.

1. He (the Lord) Himself is the looking glass and Himself scans through it; He Himself sees and makes others see the guises of six Shastras, The face that we imagine and seek, is realised, The laughing one sees others laughing in the same way, The weeping one sees others weeping within moments, The Lord Himself is in all the guises, but especially. He is in the congregation.

(Var2)

2. In the congregation, there are both the Fear and love of the lord and the natural freedom from worldly desires, The natural concentration of the enlightened one unfolds itself, He speaks sweetly and renounces the ego, He is always in unison with the discipline of the True Guru, He tastes the drink of love, being fortunate in this way, The Light of the Lord shines within him and the lamp of knowledge is lit. Within him is the zeal for Guru’s discipline, immaculate and devoid of attachment, It is above everything else, where the unity is achieved for ever.

(Var3)

3. Like the mirror He reflects Himself, The Perfect Brahm is within every self like the reflection of moon in water, Just as in the milk and clarified butter, the cow is visualised, The fragrance is visualised in flowers and the taste in fruit, The fire is visualised in the wood and the water in the earth, Brahm is there in every self and the enlightened one sees and makes others see it.

(Var9)

In the above three examples, there is portrayal of Sikh philosophy and in this portrayal Bhai Gurdas has used imagery from everyday life. The mirror, moon, cow, fruit, wood, water, lamp are all associated with common life. Whereas Bhai Gurdas goes deep into the philosophy, he also uses domestic similes and illustration in order to bring home his ideas. In the tenth Var he has prived by giving several historical and mythological illustrations that through the devotion of love ('Prema Bhakti') the saints have realised Brahman. A specimen is given below:

The saintly king Ambrik had begun his fast, when the seer Durbasha came,
The king had to break the fast when the seer went to take a bath in the stream,
The king broke the fast by taking some water from the washings of the seer’s feet,
But the seer ran to curse him; the Sudarshan Chakra (Discus) of the Lord,
Took the form of frightening death and destroyed the ego of the seer,
The Brahmin-seer ran for his life, but none of the gods could save him,
He left disappointed from the abodes of Indra, Shiva, Brahma in heaven,
All the gods and even the Lord-God advised and instructed him,
He ultimately came under the refuge of king Ambrik, who gave him protection,
That is why the Lord has been called the Saviour of the saints and the Support of the world.

(Var 10)

Bhai Gurdas was a staunch disciple of Sikh faith. He presents his experience, saturated with his erudition. He gives several examples from the day-to-day life in order to prove his point. In order to substantiate the greatness of the quality of modesty, he has given the examples of cotton-seed, tree, sesame, earth, water etc. Two specimen are given below:

1. The tree on the earth grows with its head downwards and feet upwards, Though it bears agony, it gives comfort to the world,
   People throw stones at it for its fruit and satisfy their hunger,
   It gives dense shade, where people sit with comfort pleasing to the minds,
   But people come to cut it and it surrenders,
   Those like it are very rare, who remain under God’s Will.

(Var 14)
2. Sesame is pressed in the oil-press for its oil,
The oil is burnt in the earthen lamp, which dispels darkness,
The burning is used as ink in the inkpot for writing,
The Sikh listens and caused others to listen to the written Word,
The enlightened one destroys his ego with the remembrance of Name, Using the antimony of knowledge, he concentrated in the Word and realised the Sahaj State.

(Var 14)

Both the above Pauris exhibit the qualities of humility, philanthropy and sacrifice.

Bhai Gurdas has used several stanza-forms in his Pauris of Vars.
Because of the brevity of thought in his verses, we find several verses becoming proverbs and proverbial phrases.
VARAN BHAJ GURDAS

VAR-1
One Oaṅker, the Eternal Truth, realized through the grace of the divine preceptor

Pauri I (Invocation)
Obeisance to the great Guru, who caused me to listen to the mantra of the True Name
He drew me out from the ocean of fear and merged me in the substance of redemption
He removed the fear of birth and death and destroyed illusion, ailment and separation
This world is illusive and there is immense affliction in the transmigration
The staff of Yama hangs on the head and the evil man, absorbed in maya, wastes his life
I have fallen at the feet of great Guru, he has redeemed me, giving me the True Word
Through his devotional love, the Guru has made me firm in Name, Charity and Bath
Whatever has been sown, the fruit has been reaped accordingly. ...1

Pauri 2 (Creation)
Initially neither breath nor flesh were there, there was darkness and no comprehension
The body of blood and semen was created, which was studded with five elements
The air, the water, the fire and the fourth earth was combined with them, Ether was made the fifth one and sixth the Creator merged with them invisibly
Five elements and twenty-five qualities, friendly and inimical, constituted the body
The wonder of the divisions of creation, speech and also transmigration was exhibited
Eighty-four lakhs of species were created. ...2
Pauri 3 (Grandeur of human birth)
Amongst the eighty-four lakh species, the superb birth is of human body
Eyes to see, ears to hear, and the mouth to utter nicely the words full of love
Hands to work with and the feet to walk and meet in holy congregation
And earn through honest and righteous labour and feed the family
Fruitful is birth of Guruward (Gurmukh), who reads and listens Guru’s hymns with understanding
Who satisfies his co-disciples and even quaffs the washing of their feet
Who habitually falls at their feet and follows this practice in the Iron age
He himself is redeemed and also helps his co-disciples in redemption. ...3

Pauri 4 (Cause of the creation)
The Unmanifested Lord manifested Himself and extended expanse with one utterance
He made use of the five elements and in every heart reflected all the three worlds
None could comprehend the Creator, Who Created the Nature and incarnated Himself
From ONE Nature, he produced a lakh, then lakhs, countless, infinite and boundless Within his every pore he created universes, crores in numbers
In every universe, He caused to send the ten incarnations
He created many Ved-Vyasas and many Books, Muhammads and his companions
Only One Nature, with such a vast expansion. ...4

Pauri 5 (The Yugas)
He established four ages and created Satyuga, Treta and Dwapara Kaliyuga was the fourth, the four castes were severally made the kings of these four Brahmin, Kshatriya, Vaishya and Shudra, in each age one caste held its away
In Satyuga the Lord incarnated as Hansa with Soham as His Name without other deceit
Only One Lord-God was described, Who was devoid of attachment and maya
The people performed austerities in forests and subsisted only on balls of green herbs
They lived for a lakh of years and did not raise any dwellings, forts and mansions
One passed away and the other flourished for a long time. ...5

Pauri 6 (As above)

In Treta age, the great incarnation manifested himself as a Kshatriya in the Solar clan
The age of man was reduced to tenth part, with the extension of maya, attachment and ego
In Dwapara, Yadava clan was created and there was also decrease in age and conduct
In Rig Veda, the created Brahmin was to turn face towards East and think of good deeds
In Yajur Veda, the established Kshatriyas were to face South and donate great charities
In Sama Veda, the established Vaishyas had to turn face towards West and bow heads Rig directed for blue clothes, Yajur for yellow garments and Sama for black raiments
There was three types of conduct for the three ages. ...6

Pauri 7 (As above)

Kaliyuga was established as the fourth and the Shudra-conduct prevailed in the world
The Karmas of Rig, Yajur and Sama are performed in the world with great hesitation
The world has been allured by maya and the machinery of the Iron age has deluded all
The hatred has flourished in the world and the populace is being scorched by ego
Nobody worships anyone, everyone has forgotten the distinction between high and low
The kings have become unjust and the courtiers butchers holding the dagger of Kaliyuga
The justice of the three ages has vanished, in the fourth age, whatever one gives, one receives
All the populace has become defiled in deeds. ...7
Pauri 8 (Six systems)

Having churned the beliefs of the four Vedas, sages convey them through six Shastras.
Whatever gods like Brahma and sages like Sanak have said, the world sings like that People sing and study many beliefs, but only a rare one out of crores achieves salvation
This fact surprises the mind that even with profound study, one does not know the secret
In the past ages, one caste held the sway, why then Kaliyuga exhibits many of them?
The three ages have been locked, but now the illusion persists even after deep study
Just as four Vedas describe, the six Shastras along with Sankhya convey to us
All of them sing according to their understanding. ...8

Pauri 9 (Nyāya)
The ascetic Gautama, after deep reflection, made us listen to his discourse of Rig Veda
He churned his Nyaya Shastra and conveyed that all powers are in the hands of Creator
Everything is in the control of the Creator and nothing else can interfere in it
The Creator is there at both ends, who exhibits Himself as separate None has seen the Creator and everyone has gone astray in illusion within the Nature Brahman has hidden Himself in Soham and the illusive curtain is dropped by Creator
The Rig Veda says: "O Gurus! Listen, everything is God Himself, there is none else", Without the True Guru, one receives no understanding. ...9

Pauri 10 (Mīmāṁsā)
Then the sage Jaimini spoke, he churned Yajur Veda and made us listen to his discourse
The decision rests with the actions; one achieves only, whatever he does in his body
He established karmas in the world, one comes and goes, while abiding in karmas
The illusion does not leave his mind, he is illusioned and gets astray in karmas
The world has dealings in karmas and only the maya is called Brahman
On churning the Yajur Veda, he mixed the illusion in the essence of Brahman
He exhibited karmas in the world and one within the bondage of karmas transmigrates,
The illusion does not leave without the True Guru. ...10

Pauri 11 (Vedānta)

After reflecting upon Sama Veda, Vyasa churned and conveyed Vedanta
He proclaimed himself as Brahman and inexpressible like Him
He did not consider anyone equal to him and getting egoistic, he strayed into illusion
He got himself worshipped in the world and did not know the secret of devotion through love
He was not satisfied after churning the Veda, he was burnt in the fire of dissatisfaction
He was penalised for absorption in maya and fearing the staff of Yama he cried in great affliction
He was instructed by sage Narada and then churned out Bhagavat, singing Lord’s Praises
None has ferried across the ocean of fear without coming under the refuge of God. ...11

Pauri 12 (Sāṅkhya)

Dwapara age passed away and the canopy swung over the head of Kaliyuga Atharva Veda was established, which caused the Guruward to face the North and sing Lord’s Praises
The sage Kapila churned out Sankhya repeating the mantras of Atharva Veda
One should quaff the supreme essence of knowledge, and remember it ever as a transient being None can attain anything without knowledge, even if one makes crores of efforts
The body should perform Karma Yoga, which is transient and cannot stay even for a very short time.
The comfort is derived with the advice of knowledge, which ends the illusion of birth and death.
The Guruward sage merges in the higher spiritual state of Sahaj. ...12

Pauri 13 (Vaiśeṣik)

Churning the Atharva Veda, Guruward Vasheshika sings the Praises.
Whatever one sows one reaps, the fruit is not achieved out of time.
Everyone is Under the Will of the Lord, he, who accepts the Will, he merges in the state of Sahaj.
Nothing happens itself, one should not keep in his mind both good and bad.
Whatever one does, he achieves according, the sage Kannad says like that.
Listen to the injustice of Satyuga, with the wicked deed of one, the world suffers.
In Treta, the city suffers and in Dwapara, the whole clan, good or bad suffers.
In Kaliyuga, whatever an individual does, he receives his due. ...13

Pauri 14 (Nāg - Śeṣnāg Patāñjali)

The sage Patanjali churned Seshinaga Shastra, the Guruward conveyed the crux of Naga Shastra.
Through him the Atharva Veda spoke that the illusion cannot be removed without Yoga.
Just as in the dirty ring-mirror, the face cannot be seen clearly without the clean glass.
The substance of Yoga is clean, which intunes one with the unstruck melody.
All the miraculous powers and treasures fall at the feet of a Guruward Yogi.
The fragrance of the three ages was obtained by sage Patanjali in the Kaliyuga.
The total gain of Bhakti Yoga is obtained quickly.
The good gain of Name, Charity and Bath. ...14

Pauri 15 (Ideas in Vogue about the Yugs)

The bead of body transmigrates in every age bound by desire.
It changes in every turn, only the wise and learned can know the secret.
From Satyuga, it comes with duality and illusion it takes birth in Treta age.
In Treta bound by Karmas, it again incarnates in Dwapara age.
In Dwapara under the impact of affection and ego, it is dissolved in pride.
Performing the Karmas of three ages, its birth, death and illusion do not end.
Then it comes into body again in the Kaliyuga, it is again bound by Karmas.
If it misses the opportunity, it will lose everything. ...15

Pauri 16 (Karmas in Kaliyug)
Listen to the discipline of Kaliyuga, when merely karmas do not bring anything.
Without the meditation and devotion through love of Lord-God, it gets no place.
Whatever it has earned in the previous ages, it receives that in this age.
It gets the human body, but missing this opportunity, it achieves nothing.
Listen to the beneficence of Kaliyuga, as has been sung by Atharva Veda.
Only the devotion through love is accepted, it is equivalent to performance of Yajnas and Havanas.
After performing this, if one becomes very humble, then the Lord takes it into account.
There is a great significance of the Name of the Lord in Kaliyuga. ...16

Pauri 17 (Anarchy of the ages)
When there is revolution and the age gets changed, then what happens?
The hatred spreads in the world, the sins are committed and the world becomes corrupt.
Each caste abhors the other one, they clash and get ablazed like the bamboos becoming embers.
The Vedas are slandered and the agnostics do not realize this in the darkness of their ignorance.
The Vedas and Katebs are the emporiums of the Guru, which ferry one across the ocean of fear.
There can be no comprehension without the True Guru unless the Lord manifests Himself.
The Guru and the Lord are one and the same; He is the true Sovereign and the world is the dealer.
When the sun rises, the darkness vanishes. ...17

Pauri 18 (Bodh Mat)
Budha is the incarnation of Kaliyuga, who could not differentiate between knowledge and ignorance.
No one forbids the other one, who performs only the tasks liked by him.
Someone worships the lifeless idols, someone worships the graves and monuments.
Someone deals with Tantras, mantras and hypocrisies, falling in anger and great disputes Someone runs for promoting self-interest and the other actuates separate religious sects Someone worships the moon or sun and someone conciliates the earth or sky
Someone exhibits allegiance to air, water or fire and someone gratifies Dharamraja
All the fake religious men have strayed into illusions. ... 18

Pauri 19 (garbs - differentiation)
The hatred spread in the world, the four varnas (castes) and ashramas (stages of life) were created
The Sannyasis were split into ten sects and the Yogi into twelve
There were Jangams (Shaivites) and Sarewares (Jainas) and the clashing Digambaras
Many types of Brahmins were created and the Shastras, Vedas and Puranas had infightings
The six Shastras grew inimical to one another taking with them the thirty-six hypocrisies
People were absorbed in Tantras, mantras, alchemy and the soot of miracles
From one sprang up many and thus many pretty and ugly facets became manifest
In Kaliyuga people strayed into illusions. ... 19

Pauri 20 (Islam)
Many religious paths began in the world, then the Prophet Muhammad and his companions appeared
They had with them seventy-two sects, through which was spread the enmity in many ways
He initiated several karmas in the world including fasts, festivals and prayers
Several different religious positions were arranged like Pir, Paighambar, Wali, Ghaus and Qutb
The temples of Hindus were demolished and in their places, the mosques were raised
The poor and weak were being persecuted, the sin spread over the world
The infidels, atheists, Armenians, Turkish fighters and the choppers of enemies were all there.
The sin became prevalent. ...20

Pauri 21 (Hindu-Muslim clash)
There were four castes of Hindus and four sects of Muslims in the world.
The ego, the niggardliness, the pride through them they violently wrangled with one another.
The Ganges and Varanasi belonged to the Hindus and the Mecca and Kaaba to the Muslims.
The Muslims performed circumcision and the Hindus had the frontal mark and sacred thread.
The Hindus hailed God “Ram” and the Muslims “Rahim”, the Name was same but both strayed away.
Hindus forgot Vedas and the Muslims Katebs, Both were allured by the worldly greed and devil.
The truth was set aside, the Brahmans and Maulanas clash with each other and die.
Their transmigration does not leave them. ...21

Pauri 22 (Justice of the Vahiguru)
All the four reigned supreme in the four ages and the fifth one i.e. God was Himself there.
He Himself is the writing tablet, Himself the pen and the Himself the Writer.
There is darkness without the Guru and the people clash and die in various ways.
The sin has spread in the world and the mythological Bull in distress weeps night and day.
Without the Mercy, it became weak and collapsed in the pit of hell.
It is standing on one foot and has become very weighty with the sins.
Without the saint no one can support it and no saint is seen in the world.
Dharma, the Bull, is crying, while standing underneath. ...22

Pauri 23 (Gurus Advent)
The cry was heard by the beneficent Lord, He sent Guru Nanak in the world.
He began the tradition of “feet washing” and caused the Sikhs to quaff the ambrosia of feet.
He exhibited the ONENESS of the Transcendent God-Para Brahman-in Kaliyuga.
Dharma-Bull stood on his four feet and the castes were transformed into one
The king and the pauper were put on equal footing and humility was made prevalent in the world
The game of love is contrary, which makes the head bow at the feet
The Baba (Guru Nanak) redeemed Kaliyuga, he recited True Name and conveyed it as mantra
Guru Nanak came for the redemption of Kaliyuga. ...23

Pauri 24 (First episode of Guru Nanak Dev Ji)
At first the Baba attained the Gate of Grace and afterwards performed great toil
He subsisted on sand and herbs and spread the bed of pebbles
He performed severe austerities and was immensely fortunate in achieving nearness to God
The Baba went to the Abode of True Lord, where from he received the treasure of Name and modesty
The Baba viewed through meditation, he saw the whole world burning
There was darkness without the Guru, heard the wailing of the populace
The Baba adopted a guise and set the tradition of missionary journeys
He went to chastise the populace of the earth. ...25

Pauri 25 (Lack of Love and Devotion at pilgrim places)
The Baba came to the places of pilgrimage, he went through all the pilgrim stations and festivals
The performance of all religious injunctions are not of any account without devotion through love
I have read the four Vedas and Smritis and even Brahma has not written about LOVE,
I have searched the whole world through Satyuga, Treta and Dwapara
There is darkness in Kaliyuga, the populace is straying away in variety of guisies
The Lord-God is not realised through guises, one should efface his self, form and mark
The Guruward becomes casteless among the castes and the Gursikhs particularly observe humility
Only then the toil receives some recognition at God’s Abode. ...25
Pauri 26 (Contemporary Circumstances)
The celibates, the chaste, the long-lived, the seekers, the adepts, the Naths, Gurus and disciples
The goddesses, the gods, the great sages, the Bhairavas, the yeomen, all of them may meet
The Ganas, the Gandharvas, the heavenly damsels, the Kinnars, the Yakshas, playing many deceptions Lakhs of ogres, demons and giants are all of them afflicted in duality
Everyone is bound by ego, numerous disciples have been drowned along with their Gurus
No Guruward is visible, I have searched the pilgrims at the fairs of the holy shrines
I have seen all the Hindus and Turks, all the Pirs, Prophets and the killer-tribes
The blind ones are being pushed in a well by the blind ones. ...26

Pauri 27 (Emergence of Guru Nanak)
The True Guru Nanak was born, the mist vanished away and there was light in the world
Just as when the sun rises, the stars hide themselves and the darkness is destroyed
Just as when the lion roars, the herds of jungle animals run away and lose endurance
Wherever the Baba sets his foot, there the seat of worship is established
The seats of adepts in the whole world, wherever they were came under the doctrinal sway of Nanak
A place of worship was raised in every home, where there was ever devotional singing and celebration
The Baba redeemed all the four directions, he gave true gift to all the nine regions of the earth
The GURUWARD was born in the Kaliyuga. ...27

Pauri 28 (Journey to Summer Mountain)
The Baba scanned all the nine regions of the earth upto their final limits
Then he went and ascended the Sumeru mountain and saw the assembly of adepts
Eighty-four adepts including Gorakh etc., reflected in their mind
They asked him: “O lad! Listen, Which Power has brought you here?”
“I have repeated the Name of the Lord and have meditated on the Lord with devotion through love”;
The adepts said: “O lad! Listen, Tell us your name”;
The Baba said: “O Great Nath! My name is Nanak and I have achieved redemption by repeating Name”;
“By being addressed as a humble person, I have entered the high mansion” ...28

Pauri 29 (Discussion with the Siddhs)
Then the adepts asked again: “O Nanak! What is happening on the earth?”
All the adepts came to know this that Nanak had incarnated in kaliyuga for its redemption
The Baba said: “O Great Nath! The Truth is the moon and falsehood the darkness”
“The dark night of falsehood has spread and I have begun my search of the world”
“The earth has been seized by the SIN and Dharma the Bull is crying underneath the earth”
“The adepts have concealed themselves amongst the mountains and who will redeem the world?”
“The Yogis are without knowledge, they rub the ashes night and day upon their limbs” “Without the Guru, the whole world has been drowned.” ...29

Pauri 30 (Miserable plight of India)
“The kaliyuga has come with a dog’s face, O Sire! The dead are its food “The kings are committing sins, contrarily the fence is devouring the field
“The subjects are blind without the knowledge, who utter lies and falsehood from their mouths
“The disciples play on their instruments and O brother! The Gurus dance in many ways “The disciples sit in their homes and the Guru gets up to go to their houses
“The Qadis (judges) are accepting bribes, they accept bribe and usurp the right
“The woman and man love each other for money, without caring for its source
“The sin is being dealt with throughout the world.” ...30
Pauri 31 (Testing the Guru)
The adepts thought in their mind: “How can this lad accept our discipline.
“Such a Yogi will be an asset to our discipline in the Iron age”;
The Great nath gave his bowl for filling it with water, he (Nanak) got up and went;
The Baba came to take water, where he saw gems jewels and rubies;
The True Guru was Unapproachable and Unfathomable Purusha, who can endure the Guru’s splendour?
The Guru came back; “O Great Nath ! The water is not there in that tank”;
He conquered the assembly of adepts with the WORD and exhibited his discipline’s distinctive feature
In kaliyuga nanak’s name brings comfort. ...31

Pauri 32 (At Mecca)
Then the Baba went to mecca and the Master wore blue garments
His staff in hand and Book in armpit, giving his call for worship and holding his pot and prayer-mat
He went to the mosque and sat down, where the mecca pilgrims perform pilgrimage
When the baba slept during the night, spreading his feet towards the sacred arch Jiwan gave him a blow with his leg, saying: “Which infidel and atheist is sleeping here “With his legs pointing towards the house of God ? Who is lying down there like a sinner ?”
He caught hold of his legs and dragged him, Lo ! Mecca rotated and a miracle was manifested;
All were surprised and bowed before the Baba. ...32

Pauri 33 (Dialogue with the Qazis)
The Qadis and Mullahs came together and began to ask about the matters of faith and belief
He performed a great act and none could comprehend his divinity
They opened their Book (holy Quran) and asked: “Tell us, whether Hindu is superior or a Muslim ?”
The Baba told the Mecca pilgrims: “Both will weep without good acts “Both the Hindus and Muslims will not get support in the Court of God
"The unripe colour of safflower will not stay when washed with water
"When they slander each other, where “Ram” or “rahim” will stand?
“The world has moved on the devil’s path”. ...33

Pauri 34 (Victory at Mecca)
The wooden sandal was kept there as a memorial and caused it to be worshipped in Mecca
Wherever the Baba went, there had been no place without his glory
The Baba was worshipped in every home, both the Hindus and Muslims are the witness
He cannot be concealed even if tried, the sun had risen and the world was enlightened
The lion roared in the solitude, all the jungle animals ran away
The moon, that has risen, cannot be concealed, how can its light be hidden in a shallow earthen vessel?
He caused all the nine regions of the earth to bow before him from sunrise to sunset
He spread his divinity in the world. ...34

Pauri 35 (Going to Baghdad)
Then the Baba went to Baghdad, he made his seat on its outskirts
One was the God like Baba and the second was the musician Mardana
The Baba performed the Prayer and then made a call for worship, the world became stunned
The city was totally dumb-founded; noticing this the pir became non-plussed
He scanned through his meditation that there was a highly inebriated saint Then the Pir Dastqir moving up asked: “Which saint? and to which household he belonged?”
It was Nanak, who came in the kaliyuga, the Lord and the saint were recognised as One;
Who was known in all the four directions in the earth and the sky. ...35

Pauri 36 (Power manifested)
The Pir asked, raising a controversy, that this saint was spiritually very powerful
He had shown in Baghdad a great miracle
He had conveyed the news about the extreme search of the lakhs of skies and nether-world;
Then the Pir Dastgir repeated it saying “I would like to see, what you have found”.
The Baba took the son of the Pir with him, he closed his eyes and vanished into the sky.
He showed to the son of Pir lakhs of skies and nether-worlds in the twinkling of an eye.
The bowl was filled with communion food from the very place of the nether-world.
The supernatural power became evident and could not be concealed. ...36

Pauri 37 (Transmitting the True Names)

After bringing under discipline the citadel of Baghdad, Mecca, Nadina and others were disciplined.
He conquered the hypocrisy of the assembly of eighty-four adepts and also the six Philosophies.
He conquered lakhs of nether-world, skies, the earth and the whole world.
He conquered the nine regions of the earth and got rotated the disc of True Name.
He caused all the gods, demons, ogres and giants and also Chitra and Gupta fall at his feet.
The god Indra, seated on his throne, the heavenly damsels, and the Raga and Raginis eulogised him.
The whole world experienced bliss on the arrival of Guru Nanak for the redemption of Kaliyuga.
The Hindus and Muslims were disciplined. ...37

Pauri 38 (Reaching Kartarpur)

Then the Baba came to Kartarpur, when he took off all the guise and gab of Udasis (stoics).
He wore worldly raiments, he appeared sitting on his cot.
He caused the opposite flow of the Ganges by bowing his head before Guru Angad.
His sons did not execute the promises, their minds were malicious, they were rebels and run-aways.
He composed and sang the sacred hymns from his mouth for bringing light and removing darkness.
He was ever busy with discussions of knowledge and there arose the symphony of Unstruck melody
There were sung SO DAR and AARTI and also JAPU in the early hours of the morning
The GURUWARD unburdened the weight of Atharva Veda. ...

Pauri 39 (Shivratri fair at Baṭālā)
The Baba came to Achal Vatala on coming to know about the fair of Shivratri
All the populace gathered there in order to have his sight
There was shower of maya, treasure and supernatural power
The Yogis, seeing this feat, were highly infuriated in their mind
The dancing hermits came and danced and their cash-pot was concealed by the Yogis
These dancing hermits forgot to dance and lost their consciousness in the cash-pot
The Baba, the intuitive purusha, brought out the cash-pot, wherever it was hidden, Seeing this feat, the Yogis got enraged. ...

Pauri 40 (Discussion with the Siddhs)
The great Yogis became full of ire, all of them came together for discussion
The Yogi Bhangar Nath asked: “Why did you put the beverage prepared from black-carrots in milk?
“The milk-vessel was curdled and the butter could not be realised after churning “Taking off the garb of an Udasi, why did you again begin the worldly practice?”
Nanak said: “O Bhangar Nath! your mother was tactless, “She did not know the tact of purifying the vessel, thus defiling the coagulating substance “Leaving the householder’s life and becoming a recluse, why you go again to beg from their houses?”
“Without giving to others one does not get anything.” ...

Pauri 41 (Miracles by the Siddhs)
Hearing these words, the great Yogis screamed loudly and raised a noisy shout “Nanak Vedi has come in kaliyuga and he has condemned the six philosophies”.

The adepts utter all the remedies and raise the sounds of Tantras and mantras.
The Yogis transformed themselves into many forms, into lions, tigers and many other deceptions.
Some of them fly with wings like the birds high and low.
Some became Nagas hissing like wind and some caused the rain of fire.
Bhangar Nath smashed the stars and some of them, mounting on deer-skin swam over water.
The fire of adepts could not be extinguished. ...41

Pauri 42 (Questions of the Siddhs)
The adepts said: “Listen, O Nanak! You have shown miracles to the world, “Show some of them to us, why have you caused such delay ?”
The Baba spoke: “O Great Nath ! I have seen Yogis, they are worth nothing “I have no support of anything else except the Guru’s congregation and his hymns
“The Creator in the garb of Shiva does not move even if the earth is moved”
“The adepts fell off after showing power of Tantras and mantras, which was lost before Guru’s WORD
“The real donor is the Guru, who cannot be evaluated by anyone,
“I, the humble Nanak, have come under the refuge of the True Guru”. ...42

Pauri 43 (Grandeur of True Name)
The Baba spoke: “O Great Nath ! Listen to my words, I utter truth from my mouth “Without the True name, there is no other miraculous power with me “Even if I wear the garments of fire and raise my mansion in the snow of Himalayas, “Even if I cook my meal of iron and move the whole earth by stringing it “Even if I expand myself and push away the whole earth “Even if I weigh both the earth and sky, putting the smallest weight in the other pan “Even if I have such a great power in me that with mere saying, I cause anyone to be ferried across “Without the True Name, all this is like the shade of clouds.” ...43 Pauri 44 (Dialogue with the Siddhs and tour of Multan)
The Baba held discussion with the adepts, through which they achieved the tranquility of WORD
He held sway over the fair of Shivaratri and attained victory over six philosophies Then the adepts utter good words: “Blessed art thou, O Nanak! Your accomplishment is great
A superb Purusha is born, who has illumined a flame of light in the Kaliyuga
The Baba got up from the fair and went on a pilgrimage to Multan
From the front side the Pirs of Multan brought a cup of milk filled upto the brim
The Baba took out a flower of Jasmine from his side and placed it on the milk
Like the Ganges merging in the ocean...44

Pauri 45 (Guru Angad)
After his pilgrimage to Multan, he came back to Kartarpur
His fame spread with the passage of time, Nanak meditated on the Name of the Lord in the Kaliyuga
To beg for anything else except the Name, brings all sufferings upon sufferings
He held the sway in the world, Nanak started an immaculate discipline
While still alive, he installed Lehna and caused the canopy of Guruship swing over his head
He merged his light in his light, the True Guru Nanak changed his form
No one could comprehend it, the marvel and wonder was exhibited
He changed the body into a new form...45

Pauri 46 (Guru Amar Dās)
It was the same frontal mark, the same canopy on the head and the same true throne was based
He had in his hand the seal of Guru Nanak and proclamation was made in the name of Guru Angad
He left Kartarpur and sat in Khadur to illumine the flame of his light
Whatever is sown earlier, it germinates, everything else in the matter is false cleverness Lehna received from Nanak, which had to be given to the house of Amar Das
The Guru sat in the form of Amar, the GURUWARD obtained the God’s gift
Then he colonised Goindwal, the marvellous play is incomprehensible
The gift of the Light is in the authority of the Lord. ...46

Pauri 47 (Guru Rām Dās and Guru Arjan Dev)
One has to give as destined earlier, only he gets the substance in his house, to whomsoever it belongs
The Sodhi sovereign is seated and he is called the True Guru Ramdas
He got dug and completed the tank and illumines his flame of Light in Amritsar Opposite is the game of the Lord and contrarily the Ganges merges in the ocean
Whatever one had given, he gets his own and nothing is received, which had not been given
Then it came in the house of Arjan, the worldly son is called the Guru
“I shall not let the Guruship go away from Sodhi family, none else can bear this unbearable substance
“The substance of the house must remain in the house”. ...47

Pauri 48 (Guru Hargobind)
The five cups symbolise five Gurus and the sixth Guru, a great Guru, sat on the throne, Arjan changed his body and appeared in the form of Hargobind
The generation of Sodhis began, who manifest themselves turn by turn
He is a great warrior and fighter Guru, the vanqisher of the armies and a multi-philanthropist
The Sikhs prayed to him and asked him: “We have seen the Guru upto the sixth one”,
The unapproachable and the unknowable True Guru spoke from his mouth:
“Listen, O men of the world!
“The True Guru incarnates in all the ages”. ...48

Pauri 49 (Vahegūrū Mantr)
The True Guru was Vasudeva in Satyuga, from “V” he caused the name of ‘Vishnu’ to be repeated
In Dwapara, the True Guru was Hari Krishan, from “H” he caused the name of ‘Hari’ to be repeated
In Treta, the True Guru was Rama, from “R”, the name of ‘Ram’ was repeated and the bliss was obtained
In the Kaliyuga, the True Guru is Nanak Guru, Gobind, from ‘G’ the name of Gobind was uttered
All the four were prevalent in the four ages and the fifth one i.e. God merged in them
The four letters were united together, the “WAHEGURU” mantra was got repeated
Through which the mortal merges in Him, from whom he came to be born. ...49

VAR-II
One Oaṅkār, the External Truth the realised through the grace of divine preceptor

Pauri 1 (Invocation)
He has the ring-mirror in His hand and Himself sees in it
He Himself sees and makes others see the guise of six Shastras
With whichever face He seeks, He is accountable for the same
The laughing one sees the laughing one, exactly the same features
The weeping one sees the weeping one, instantly the same
He pervades Himself everywhere, but especially in holy congregation. ...1

Pauri 2 (Example of an instrumentalist)
Just as the musician has the instrument in his hand and plays all modes
He listens himself and becomes ecstatic and sings himself the Praises
His awareness is absorbed in the World and is himself pleased
He himself is the speaker and himself is absorbed as listener
He himself experiences ecstasy and Himself Pervades in everything
He pervades Himself everywhere, only the Guruward feels pleasure in it. ...2

Pauri 3 (Himself the enjoyer and the joy)
He Himself becomes hungry and goes into the kitchen
He Himself prepares the meal, mixing all the flavours
He Himself eats and appreciates and Himself absorbed in satisfaction
He Himself is the enjoyer and the taste, the sap enjoyed by the tongue
He Himself is the Giver and Himself the enjoyer, pervading in all
He pervades Himself everywhere, only the Guruward experiences pleasure. ...3
Pauri 4 (As above)
He himself spreads the bed and Himself sleeps in it
He Himself dreams and wanders within the countries
The pauper becomes a king and king a pauper, experiencing pleasure and pain
Like water becoming hot and cold and also reaching pleasure point
He experiences both happiness and sorrow and talks according to His Will He Himself pervades everywhere and the Guruward only enjoys bliss. ...

Pauri 5 (Deserving distinctions)
Just as the rain-drop comes down everywhere similarly
It mixes water as water and falls on the earth in many ways
It manifests itself in crops, trees, many flavours and nicely in fruit and flowers
It becomes camphor in banana, cool and comfortable
Within the mouth of a shell, it becomes a pearl, of a great value
Within the mouth of cobra, it becomes poison, having vicious intent
He Himself pervades everywhere, but appears impressive in holy congregation. ...

Pauri 6 (Effect of the company)
The same copper, when mixed with tin, becomes bronze
The same copper, when mixed with zinc, appears as brass
The same copper, in the company of lead, takes the form of the metal Bhart
When the same copper comes in touch with philosopher's stone, it becomes gold
When the same copper is burnt to ashes, it is taken as a medicine
He Himself pervades everywhere, the congregation sings His Praises. ...

Pauri 7 (Example of the water)
The water, when mixed with black colour, appears black
It becomes red in the red colour, when mixed with it
In yellow colour, it becomes yellow, similarly like that It becomes green, when it contacts green colour, becoming the same
It becomes hot and cold, coming into contact with likewise things
He Himself pervades everywhere and the rare Guruward attains bliss. ...

Pauri 8 (Other examples)
The earthen lamp is illumined by fire, which brings light in darkness
The ink is extracted from the earthen lamp, which is used by the writer
The antimony is made for the young woman to enjoy the company of her good spouse
With the ink, the Lord’s Praises are written; it is also used in many offices
He Himself pervades everywhere and the Guruward perceives Him on all four sides. ...8

Pauri 9 (Unity in diversity)
When the seed is sown, the tree appears and spreads
The root is within the earth and the tree is outside, extending many branches
Many of its features become manifest with leaves, flowers, fruit, pod, taste and colour
Abiding, growing and prospering, it has a big family
The animate seed comes within the fruit and one fruit multiplies into thousands
He Himself pervades everywhere and only the Guruward is redeemed. ...9

Pauri 10 (Example of the thread)
The cotton-thread from cotton takes the form of wrap and woof
It has become the maxim that the cloth is known from the cotton-thread
It takes the form of Chausi, Chautar and ganga Jal
Khasa, malmal and Siri Saaf, all of them give desired comfort to the body
In the approved form of turban, wrapper, shirt and a waist-cloth
He Himself pervades everywhere and the Guruward enjoys all this. ...10

Pauri 11 (Example of gold)
The goldsmith fashions the gold and creates ornaments
Nose-rings, ear-rings, ear-flowers and stars
Another nose-ring is mentioned alongwith the necklace around the neck
The forehead-gems, the necklace of pearls and bangles all set
The armlet of gems and many types of round rings moulded
He Himself pervades everywhere and the Guruward reflects on it. ...11

Pauri 12 (Example of sugarcane)
The sugarcane is crushed in the oilpress and gives the juice howsoever, Someone makes lumps of molasses and someone sugar-coated sweets
Someone fashions sugar and prepares sweets with condiments
Sugar-candy and milk-cakes are prepared by melting the sweet sugar
The rich and the poor both eat and enjoy the tasty sweets
He Himself pervades everywhere and the Guruward feels contented on knowing it. ...12
Pauri 13 (Example of cow milk)
There are cows of many colours, but the milk is only of white colour
The curd is caused to vegetate from milk, keeping it stable
On churning the curd, the butter seems to float on the butter-milk
By heating and boiling the butter, the pure ghee is prepared
By worshipping through yajnas and havanas, all the errands are fulfilled
He Himself pervades everywhere and the Guruward sustains this knowledge....13

Pauri 14 (Example of sun)
Pal, Ghari, Mahurat, Pahr, Thit and Var, all divisions of time are counted
Both aspects of light and darkness are united together to make twelve months
Six seasons become prevalent, presenting many features
The sun is only one, the people and the Vedas thus declare Four castes, six Shastras and many sects originated
He Himself pervades everywhere, only the Guruward causes to comprehend this....14

Pauri 15 (Some idea Example of fire)
The same water and the same earth, but many types of trees are created
Many types, some without fruit, others with fruit, the fruit and flowers look impressive
Many tastes, colours and fragrances are well-set in Nature
The fire of the same colour spreads in all trees
When from concealment it manifests itself, it reduces all to ashes
He Himself pervades everything, the Guruward experiences comfort in knowing this....15

Pauri 16 (To mountain one's natural repute)
All the vegetation near the sandalwood trees becomes sandalwood-like Eight metals become one metal, when they come into contact with philosopher's stone
The streams, brooks and channels, when meet the Ganges, become Ganges-like
The holy congregation, the redeemer of sinners, washes away the dirt of sins
It removes the innumerable sinners from hell and redeems lakhs of apostates
He Himself pervades everywhere and the Guruward only scans Him....16
Pauri 17 (Love)
The moth loves the flame of earthen lamp and the fish swims in water
The deer experiences ecstasy when horn resounds and the bee swings on the lotus
The partridge loves the moon, looking and meditating on it
The Brahmani duck loves the sun, their association is formed
The wife loves her husband and the son meets the mother
He Himself pervades everywhere and the Guruward is pleased to know it...

Pauri 18 (Example of the eyes)
He sees within the eyes all the marvellous happenings
He listens with full attention whatever is said or narrated
He speaks within the tongue, allured by many tastes
He works with the hands and walks with the feet
He is within the body, with one mind and organs of action and perception
He Himself pervades everywhere and the Guruward gets delight on knowing it...

Pauri 19 (The relation between creation and creator)
The air symbolising Guru’s Word is the preceptor, giving knowledge of mode and sound
Water is the father and earth is the mother, wherefrom the world was born
The night and day are the female and male nurses and thus the world functions
The extension of Nature is the union and play of the Primal Power and maya
The Perfect Transcendent Lord is reflected like moon in every heart-pitcher
He Himself pervades everywhere and the Guruward determines it...

Pauri 20 (He Himself He)
There is fragrance in the flowers, He is allured on becoming the bee
There is sap in the mangoes and the nightingale enjoys the sap
He becomes the peacock and the rain-bird and recognises the cloud-burst
With the union of milk and water, the mention is made of the milk-cake
The One Lord created the matter, manifesting both body and soul
He Himself pervades everywhere and the Guruward recognises it...
VAR–III

One Oaṅkār, the Eternal Truth realized through the grace of divine preceptor

Pauri 1 (Invocation)
Salutation to the Primal Purusha, Who has been described as the Very First His True Guise is the True Guru, through whose WORD he is comprehended Through whose instruction of the awareness of Word, one merges in True Lord Whose True Abode is the holy congregation, approved as ‘Real Home’, There is manifestation of devotion through love, which brings equipoise and happiness
The Lord, Protector of devotees and the honour of the lowly, abides there Even Brahma, Vishnu and Shiva could not know His end Even the thousand-hooded Seshinaga could no recognise Him a bit The Guruward is the reverend mendicant of His Gate, beautified by Truth. ...

Pauri 2 (Guru and disciple)
The discipline of the Guru and disciple is incomprehensible and unknowable Blessed is the disciple whose Guru is Nanak Dev He abides in the Guru’s wisdom and the state of equipoise, absorbed in Lord’s Praises He is enlightened by the awareness of Word, which is indeceivable and indestructible The Guruward is ever detached from hopes and his wisdom destroys the evils He destroys lust and anger and is absorbed in Lord’s Praises He is in bliss with truth and contentment and rises above the worldly duality He is free from worldly desires and is both truthful and immaculate The godly Guruward is highly advanced in practice. ...

Pauri 3 (Guru and disciple)
The disciple approved by the Guru is considered Guruward The sport of the Guruward is marvellous, his story is inexpressible He sacrifices himself for creation, through which he knows the Creator The Guruward considers himself a guest in the world and lives like him. For him the True Guru is Truth and Beauty-incarnate, he describes him thus
He is like minstrel and gate-keeper on Guru's gate and recites Guru's hymns
He considers him the Omniscient and identifies his affection
His awareness is merged in the emblem of True Word
He relies on only one True Court, which he comprehends through the WORD. ...3

Pauri 4 (Guru and disciple)
The Guruward has obtained the Word of the Guru i.e. WAHU-GURU
As a disciple his awareness is merged in it and he comprehends the incomprehensible
The marriage of the Guru and disciple takes place, who is caused to mount on the mare
He endures the Extraordinary, the Profound, the Serene and the Impenetrable
He, the Truthful and Carefree, merges in the True Lord
He is the Sovereign of the Sovereigns and is made to command
He surrenders to the Will of the Fearless and Carefree Court
He is caused to quaff the ambrosia of the True Praises of the Lord
He is caused to fashion on the Unfashioned and penetrate the Profound WORD-awareness. ...4

Pauri 5 (The Gurmukh traveller)
It is invaluable and cannot be purchased, it cannot be evaluated.
If weighed in a balance, it is not weighable
It is a stable throne in its own home, it is steady and immovable
The Path of the Guruward is pure and cannot be equalled by any other
Its anecdote is inexpressible and unspeakable; it cannot form part of speech
It is ever unerring and infallible; it is ever unforgettable
The Path of the Guruward is steady, on which one merges in the state of equipoise
The Guruward attains the pure essence of the tank of ambrosia
The one real search out of a lakh of searches is the self-effacement. ...5

Pauri 6 (The merchandise of a Gursikh)
The commodity is available only on one shop, where from the Word is purchased
It is stainless, its weights are flawless, with what words we can praise them?
In the true kingdom, there is no default or deficiency
On the realisation of the Perfect True Guru, one attains the inexhaustible store.
It manifests itself in the holy congregation, where one should ever subsist.
The rice should be obtained with one blow, without striking the second one.
The noose of Yama must be chopped with God’s Grace.
The gathering of all the five vices must be disheartened.
The body-field must be nourished with water through the Persian-wheel of virtues. ...

Pauri 7 (The True Guru)
The Perfect True Guru himself is incomprehensible, but does not get himself known.
He perceives whatever he creates or destroys according to his will.
The virtues and vices have no effect upon him, he creates and dissolves.
The boon or curse do not influence him, he does not evince himself.
He sings his hymns and through them conveys the Praises of the Inexpressible.
The story of his mutterings is inexpressible, he does not indulge in the world.
This is the glorification of the Perfect Guru, he utterly effaces his self.
He destroys the three kinds of ailment and diminishes the suffering.
Through his hymns, the mind is satiated and realises its own home. ...

Pauri 8 (Means for the Sikhs, their state and conduct)
The Perfect True Guru is Truth-incarnate and the Guruward seeks him.
Perfect is the wisdom of the True Guru, through which the Word is sustained.
In his Court, the dirt is washed away, the ego is burnt and honour is received.
In his home there is the discipline of Union, his seat is the abode of piety.
He sustains his disciples, who attain ultimately their redemption.
Within themselves they are absorbed in devotion through love and receive Guru’s grace.
The kingdom under only one canopy brings real peace.
The disciples are absorbed in serving water to the thirsty and grinding for meals.
They always function with humility, such is their daily routine. ...
Pauri 9 (Characteristics of Gurumukhs)
The Guruward plays a true game under the instructions of the Guru
He is united with the holy congregation and is absorbed in the Word
His company is superb like the fragrant oil from the union of flowers and sesame
The disciple of the Guru is controlled by-him, ending his fears
He bathes in early hours of the morning and joins the holy congregation, his real abode
Muttering the Guru’s mantra, in his heart, he enjoys bliss with Guru’s presence Meeting the superb saints he is absorbed in devotion through love and the Lord’s Fear
The guise of this Guruward is ever new and fresh
In the service of the courageous mediator he receives, the gift of union with the Lord. ...9

Pauri 10 (The dust of the feet)
He meditates on the form of Guru and gets his nearness
The knowledge of the Word is nearer to the Guruward and not far away
His mark is the earlier Writ, which germinates in actions
This heroic devotee is mainly engrossed in the service of the Guru
He is ever full of the Perfect Supreme Treasure
His place is the holy congregation where there is radiance and illumination
Before which the beams and rays of the lakhs of moons and suns are dim
Before whose singing lakhs of Vedas and Puranas are poor
The dust of the Congregational Feet has the approval of the Lord, the Lover of Saints. ...10

Pauri 11 (Unity of the Guru and the Sikh)
He is the disciple of the Guru, who has known the Unknowable.
When he receives instructions of the Guru, he is called a Sikh (disciple)
The disciple becomes one with the Guru, who is liked by him
Pierced by the diamond, the piece of diamond is stringed
The wave of water may be seen merging in water
The light is merged in light, the lamp is lighted by the lamp
A trick is exhibited by uniting the wonderful with the wonderful
When the curd of milk is churned, the ghee (clarified butter) is prepared
The same One Light manifests itself in the three worlds. ...11
Pauri 12 (As above)
The True Guru Nanak Dev was the Guru of Gurus
Angad merged in the Unknowable and Impenetrable in the state of equipoise
Amar merged in the Eternal and perceived the Unknowable Ramdas through the Lord's Name destroyed the vices and oozed out ambrosia Guru Arjan through service presented the gift
Guru Hargobind churned the ambrosia of the Impenetrable
The Truth of the True and Pure Lord stood firmly
By clasping the unclasplable soul, the Word was stringed
The Guruward fills the vacant one, pulling out the illusion and fear. ...12

Pauri 13 (Gurmukh)
The holy congregation brings in fear, love, equipoise and freedom from worldly desires
The awareness of the Guruward awakens spontaneously
He utters sweet words and forsakes ego
He ever loves the wisdom of the True Guru
He is fortunate to enjoy the taste of the cup of love
His lamp of knowledge is illumined with the divine light Within him is the ardent desire for the unattached and stainless wisdom of the Guru
He advances several steps forward and is ever in conjugal bliss. ...13

Pauri 14 (As above)
The Guruward remembers the Word and his awareness bears it
The Guruward feels exalted with Divine Grace and Divine Love
The Guruward performs service and he is a rarity
The Guruward is kind towards the lowly, having love in his heart
The Guruward helps till the end and sustains co-disciples
The Guruward seeks the gems and rubies of virtues
The Guruward has intelligence of the Timeless and enjoys bliss in devotion
The Guruward is like, the swans ever imbued with Divine Essence. ...14

Pauri 15 (Mystery of the Műlmantra)
The TRUE GURU wrote ONE for ONE LORD
Quite near to it he recorded AUMKARA
Then he sought SATNAM, KARTA PURAKH and NIRBHAI
Thence he hailed NIRVAIR, AKAL MURAT and AJUNI
Then he gave the mark of TRUTH-SATGURU, the Infinite Enlightener
He gave five Beneficent letters Ik Ongkar Satinamu signifying NAME
The Supreme Lord, Essence of Bliss, then showered His Grace
The Extraordinary SHUNY merged within the nine parts of MUL MANTRA
The knowledge of numbers and the Innumerable emerged with Divine Love. ...15

Pauri 16 (Unity among the four Varnas)
The Guruwards of all the four castes meet in one holy congregation
These Guruward disciples are imbued alike in the same colour of betel leaf
They enjoy the unstruck melody of five eternal sounds
They abide in bliss in the billow of True Guru’s Word
They cause to unite the divine knowledge with the Word-Awareness
They cause to unite at all times various tunes of musical modes
They are imbued with the awareness of only the Unstruck melody
Their disciple is pure, though they play with ten organs, mind and intellect. ...16

Pauri 17 (Collyrium of Gurmukhs)
As Willed by the Primal Transcendent Lord
The Word merged in the WORD, the destroyer of ego
It manifested itself in Guruward’s marvellous collyrium
Through the wisdom and Grace of the Guru the illusion was dispelled
The Supreme, Timeless and Eternal Primal Purusha Becomes Graceful, the god Shiva, Sanak and all are His Servants
The disciples of the Guru bathe in His Name in all ages
They enjoy the taste of the Love of Supreme Ishvara,
Who is Beginningless from the very Beginning and illuminator of all. ...17

Pauri 18 (The True disciple)
The Disciple dies in God’s Love in action and not words
With forbearance and faith he becomes a martyr, dispelling his illusion
He is a bought slave, always busy in Guru’s errands
He has no hunger, no sleep, no meals and no rest
He grinds ever new and fresh, he carries water on his head and shoulders
He has to fan the Guru and wash and rub his feet
He is a sober servitor, without any acts of laughing or weeping
He reaches the Guru’s gate as mendicant and quaffs the essence of Love
He achieves his aim deserves congratulations for his day of rejoicing. ...18
Pauri 19 (What a disciple should do)
The disciple has to fall at the feet and become the dust of the feet
He falls in love with the figure of the Guru and dies in order to live
He forsakes all relations and is imbued with divine love
He does not look elsewhere and absorbs his mind only in Guru’s refuge
He quaffs the ambrosia in the immaculate cup of love
He abides in humility and thus becomes stable
He divorces the ten women (organs) and merges in the state of equipoise
He is attentive to the utterances of the Guru and his mind is not deluded
He beautifies himself with Word-awareness and thus ferries across the ocean. ...19

Pauri 20 (Who is a perfect Sikh)
The disciple goes under the shelter of the True Guru and bows his head
His mind meditates on the Guru’s feet and puts his forehead on them
He enshrines Guru’s, wisdom in his heart and dispels his ego
The Guruward accepts the will of the Lord spontaneously
His awareness is intuned in the Word and he works under the will of the Guru
In the fear and love of the congregation, he realises his own home
He dotes in bliss on the lotus-feet of the Lord like the black bee
He remains absorbed in the casket of divine pleasure and quaffs the nectar
His birth-giving mother is blessed and his coming into the world is fruitful. ...20

VAR-IV
One Oankar, the External Truth, realized through the grace of divine preceptor

Pauri 1 (How could human body become successful)
The Transcendent Lord become Immanent and created air, water and fire
He separated earth and sky and established two lights of sun and moon
He fashioned four divisions of creation with eighty-four lakhs of species
In every class of species there are innumerable and countless beings
The human birth is precious and fruitful on obtaining Guru’s protection and redemption
In holy congregation, absorbed in Guru’s Word with devotion, reflecting his knowledge
He becomes a philanthropist and is loved by the Guru. ...1

Pauri 2 (Humility)
The earth is lowest of all, which effaces its self in great humility
It is firm on forbearance, piety and contentment and remains under the feet with love
Touching the feet of the saints, it becomes highly valuable from valueless status
It receives nectar-like pleasant rain-drops in showers and the dust becomes satiated
The humble one receives honours and is satisfied on quaffing the bowl of love
Whatever one sows in it, one reaps, it becomes full of all juices, imbued in many hues
For the Guruward, humility is the blissful fruit. ...2

Pauri 3 (Example of feet)
The human body is the dust, in which the tongue has the honourable status
The eyes see form and colour, the ears hear tunes and voices and distinguish them
The fragrance abides in the nose, all the five senses are in disarray
The feet are the lowest of all, they are fortunate to have effaced their self
The True and Perfect Guru works as a doctor and wipes out the ailment of ego
The Guru’s disciple cusomary falls at feet and listening to his instruction believes in it
The disciple lies dead in humility. ...3

Pauri 4 (Example of little finger)
The little finger, being small, is honoured by wearing ring
The rain-drop is small, enters the shell and manifests itself as a pearl
The herb of saffron is small, its mark glorifies the forehead
The philosopher’s stone is small, it transforms eight metals into gold
Just as the populace sees in hiding the gem in the head of the small serpent
Consider the alchemy prepared from mercury, even an iota of it is invaluable
They efface their self and do not make others to know it. ...4
Pauri 5 (Humility from fire and water)
The fire is hot and water is cold, how the one has its defect and the other its quality?
The fire of smoke looks like mansion, the water is pure like Guru's superb knowledge.
From fire the family of lamps emerge and from water the large family of lotus flowers.
The lamp is loved by moth and evidently the lotus by black bee.
The flame of fire rises high, with its high head, it acts destructively.
The water keeps its head low, abides lowly and acts benevolently.
He, who acts in humility, is loved by the Guru. ...5

Pauri 6 (Lesson from madder and safflower)
The colours of madder and safflower are fast and temporary, how is it?
The earth is dug to get out the root of madder, studded with shoots.
It is then pounded in mortar by pestle and then ground by the heavy stonemill.
Then it bears the boiling by fire and ultimately gets endeared and meets the darling.
Rising high from the carthamus oxycantha, the safflower spreads its dark colour.
It is coloured giving it acidity, its love is tricky, which is thus short-lived.
The lowly wins and the higher one is defeated. ...6

Pauri 7 (Ant, spider etc.)
The small ant, through a pretence, on meeting a small bee, becomes a bee.
The spider looks very small, it takes out the fibre from its mouth and again swallows it.
The honey-bee is described as small, which creates the honey, rich in sweetness.
The silk-worm called 'small' causes the silken raiments to be presented in marriages.
Putting the small magic-bead in the mouth, one goes instantly and stands at far off places.
Taking the small gems, jewels and diamonds, the king strings them as a necklace.
Putting the small ferment, the curd is churned. ...7
Pauri 8 (Grass)
The grass is trampled under the legs and no breathing time is given to the poor thing
The cow eating it, gives milk, though living in adversity, remains benevolent to others
From milk, the curd is congealed, from which the butter and buttermilk are produced
From clarified butter the fire-worship, sacrifices, feasts and other works are performed
From cow, the Pious Bull manifests itself and moving patiently bears burden on its head
Taking birth from the cow-mother, there are thousands of herds in all the four directions
All this great expanse is within the grass. ...8

Pauri 9 (Sesame)
The sesame seed was very small, when born, lowliest of lowly, did not exhibit its self
It dwelt in the company of flowers and being odourless, it was bedecked with scent
It was put in the oilpress and crushed; a marvel occurred, the scented oil came out
It performed the play of sanctifying; the king was delighted to put it on his head
It was burnt in the lamp and was called the family’s lamp and the world’s hope
In the lamp, it became lampback, which merged within the eyes
It became respectable, but did not exhibit its superiority. ...9

Pauri 10 (Cotton seed)
On becoming cotton-seed in the world, was sown and mixed its body in the dust
It grew as the small plant of cotton and the boll laughed itself into blossom
It was then rolled in a biaxial cotton-gin, and then it was entirely carded
It was carded and flown by cotton-carder, making wads and spinning thread
It was then reeled, weaved and bleached and suffered washing and dyeing
Then it was cut by a pair of scissors and the cuttings sewn with needle and thread
Ultimately it become a covering and saviour from sham. ...10

Pauri 11 (Seed of pomegranate)
On becoming the seed of pomegranate, when penetrated into dust, becomes dust
It grows into a green tree and its red flowers blossom
There are a thousand fruit in one tree and each fruit is not less superb than the other
From one seeds lakhs of seed are produced, the seed abides in the minds of all fruit
There is no dearth of that fruit, the Guruward enjoys the blissful and ambrosial fruit
Just as the fruit are plucked, similarly again and again the tree blossoms
This shows the Guru’s path of humility. ...11

Pauri 12 (Pure coin)
The alchemy is fashioned from the dust; the gold abides in love with the sand
Its particles are taken out by washing the sand, the particles accumulate in quantity
They are put in the crucible to melt and making a small piece, the goldsmith is delighted
The moulded leafs are washed and seasoned, then enflaming them, he gets happy
The gold is considered pure after having been tested on the touchstone
Then it becomes a coin in the mint, beaten on the anvil by the hammer, fixing it nicely
Ultimately the pure gold mohur goes to the treasury. ...12

Pauri 13 (The poppy seed)
Being a poppy seed, when mixed with the soil, it is merged in the soil
It becomes a friendly poppy plant, with various colourful blossomed flowers
The buds grow insistently, the one superior from the other
They play on the stem-stake and then get canopies over their heads
When pounded into small bits, they colour the water like blood
Then the cup of love is presented in gatherings combining divine and mundane Whosoever is an addict he is received in the gathering. ...13
Pauri 14 (Sugarcane)
Being in full possession of juice, it is loved by the speakers and dumb both Both the listener and the deaf, the looker and non-looker think of it
Its knot-eyes are full of dust and in the eyes there is germination
From one cane many of them grow upside down, most endearing
It is crushed in the biaxial roller and cut into fragments, therefore it is sweet
It works extraordinarily and destroys the demerits of the vicious
He, who follows the example of sugarcane, becomes pure. ... 14

Pauri 15 (The swati drop and the shell)
The drop of rain is pleasing, it comes below from the sky
Seeing the ocean, it loses itself and merges in the mouth of the shell
Taking it the shell closes its mouth and dives down hiding it in the netherworld
Then the diver, catching it, brings it out, it gets itself seized for others’ use
For benevolence, it comes under others’ control and gets its stony teeth shattered Mistakenly or openly, it gives the gift of pearl and does not repent
Such altruist ones of fruitful birth are very rare. ... 15

Pauri 16 (Diamond-bit and sikh of the Guru)
The diamond is pierced with diamond, fixing its grain before the boring drill
The beautiful and invaluable diamonds are stringed in a necklace with thread
In holy congregation, absorbing in Guru’s Word and effacing ego, the mind dies gradually
On conquering mind, the Guruward brings in and merges the virtues of mind in his body
He falls at saints’ feet to be their dust, even the Kamadhenu cow cannot equal this dust
It is like licking the tasteless stone, but lakhs of ambrosias long for its sweetness
There is a rare disciple, who listens to the instructions of the Guru. ... 16

Pauri 17 (The conduct of the liberated)
The Guruward listens to Guru’s instructions; he is inwardly wise and outwardly simple
He is alert in the awareness of Word, he is deaf to everything else except Guru’s Word
He loves to have sight of the True Guru, without the congregation, all to him is blind ruin
Taking the Guru’s Word “WAH-GURu” he quaffs silently the bowl of love
He falls at and becomes the dust of the feet and washing them, he drinks the washing
He dotes on those lotus-feet like a black bee, he remains pure within the sea of existence
Wearing the garments of Truth, he is redeemed while living. ...17

Pauri 18 (Example of hair)
Having short hair on the head, he should wave them like fly-whisk on saints’feet
He should bathe at the shrine of Guru’s tank and wash their feet with tears from his eyes
The black will turn white and this symbol be preserved with approaching death in view
He should become the dust of the saints’ feet, the perfect Guru will look at you graciously
He will become the superb swan and will eat and cause to eat the radiant pearls
The Sikh flowers the path of Sikhism, said to be most difficult like walking on fine hair
The Sikh of the Guru crosses over and quaffs the bowl of love. ...18

Pauri 19 (Example of a big tree)
There is mosquito-like worm in the gullar-fruit, it considers the fruit as universe
There are lakhs of fruit on the tree, lakhs from one and then innumerable
There are lakhs of trees in orchards and there are lakhs of orchards and gardens
There are lakhs of gardens in universe and lakhs of universes in a pore of God
If the Gracious God becomes kind, the Guruward enjoys the love of congregation
He falls at and becomes the dust of saints’feet and acts under the Will of the Lord
He recognises the real Home, when ego leaves him. ...19
Pauri 20 (Lesson from the moon of second day)
On two days, the moon vanishes and on the third day it rises as very small in size
The people of the world bow before it, it is a mark on the forehead of sky-Shiva
When it adopts the sixteen phases, it wanes with only one phase it has fruitful birth
From its ambrosial ray, the ambrosial trickles and saturates thousands
It gives coolness, peace and contentment; and as invaluable gem, it brings equipoise
It removes darkness and brings light; it attracts the cord of mediation of the partridge
This invaluable gem effaces its self. ...20

Pauri 21 (Dhruv, the humble one)
Becoming humble and performing devotion, the Guruward Dhruva had the sight of God
He met him, being kind to the devotees, he caused the honourless to receive honours Redeeming him in the world, He granted him a stable seat in the sky
And got him circumambulated by the moon, sun and thirty-three crores of gods
The Vedas and Puranas describe him and his glory was made manifest Unapproachable is the Transcendent Lord, His inexpressible discourse is unreflectable
The Guruward obtains the fruit of bliss and knows the Unknowable. ...21

VAR–V
One Oman kart the Eternal Truth, realized through the grace of divine preceptor

Pauri 1 (Characteristics of the gurmukh)
The Guruward is absorbed in holy congregation, not in any other company—good or bad
The Guruward’s path is easy one without any botheration of twelve sects
The Guruwards is devoid of any caste, he is only satisfied with the ideal dye of union
The Guruward visualises Lord’s sight and does not scan the views of six philosophies.
The Guruward’s wisdom is stable and is not absorbed in or allured by duality.
The Guruward gains Lord’s Name and does not abandon the practice of humility.
The Guruward takes pleasure in devotion through love. ...1

The Guruward remembers One Lord with single mind, without falling in duality.
The Guruward effaces his self, is emancipated while living and without morbidity.
Manifesting the Guru’s wisdom, he conquers the arduous fort alongwith evil spirits.
Being humble he becomes the feet’s dust and abides as a guest in the world.
The Guruward serves the Guru’s disciples as mother, father, brother and friend.
He effaces evils and duality and sews in mind the Guru-given awareness of Word.
Relinquishing abuse, falsehood and evil intellect. ...2

Pauri 3 (Example of gurmukh companions)
All the four castes perform the moral code of their castes within their families.
According to their Gurus, the followers of six Shastras perform their six karmas.
The servants go and bow before the bosses of their departments.
The traders keep themselves occupied within the areas of their businesses.
All the farmers sow the seeds within their own fields.
The craftsmen go and meet the other craftsmen in their factories.
The Sikhs of the Guru reach and assemble in the holy congregation. ...3

Pauri 4 (Example of companions)
The drug-addicts meet the drug-addicts and the teetotalers meet the teetotalers.
The gamblers meet the gamblers and the wicked ones meet the wicked ones.
The thieves love the thieves and the Thugs together cheat the countrymen.
The jokers meet the jokers and the backbiters yearn for meeting the backbiters.
People unable to swim meet the similar people and the swimmers swim with swimmers
The suffering ones meet the sufferers and getting together lament about their miseries
The Sikhs of the Guru abide in the holy congregation. ...

Pauri 5 (The world and difference of the gurumukhs)
Someone is called a Pundit, someone astrologer, someone teacher and someone a doctor
Someone a king, someone a chief, someone a chieftain and someone is called a headman
Someone is a draper, someone a goldsmith, someone a jeweller who studs fewels
Someone is a grocer, someone a retailer and someone works as a broker
There are thousands and lakhs of castes, named and enumerated by profession
The Sikhs of the Guru assemble in congregation, abiding detached in world of hopes Absorbed in the awareness of the Word, they comprehend the Imperceptible. ...

Pauri 6 (As above)
Celibrates, virtuous, long-livers, seekers, adepts, Naths, Gurus, disciples Goddesses, gods, great sages, Bhairavs, yeomen with many others
Ganas, Gandharvas, heavenly damsels, Kinnars, Yakshas performing many tricks
Lakhs of ogres, demons and monsters within the agonising duality
Every one of them is prevailed by ego, but the Guruwards enjoy bliss in congregation
They remember ONE with fullness of mind and in Guru’s wisdom happily efface self
The idea of leaving the world hovers around them constantly. ...

Pauri 7 (Engagements of the world and Gursabad)
Celibacy, virtues, discipline, sacrifices, recitations, austerities charities and many others
Many hypocrisies like powers, miracles, treasures and many Tantras, mantras and plays Worshipping of spirits, yoginis, graves, cemeteries with many other marvels Enraptured in the Yogic practices of Pranayama and cleansing of the body
Many are absorbed in adept-postures, I have seen lakhs of wonders of pertinacities Philosopher’s stone, serpent’s gem, alchemy, miracle are all the smudge of darkness
Performance of worship and fasts, boons, curses and the impacts of Shiva and Shakti Without the congregation and Guru’s Word, even the noble ones do not get a place
All else is falsehood with knots of hundred rounds. ...7

Pauri 8 (Good and bad omens and gurmukhs)
Thinking of good or bad omens around the nine planets and twelve Zodiac signs
Magic, spells, divinations and the extensive spread of the rumours
Asses, dogs, cats, kites, blackbirds, jackals and whirlwinds
The woman, man, water, fire, sneezing, fart and the hiccup with their behaviours
Lunar date, day, illusions about stars, directional pangs—all these worldly suspicions Lakhs of beliefs under guile; how can a prostitute of many loves realise the Lord?
Only the Guruward obtains the fruit of bliss and crosses the world-ocean. ...8

Pauri 9 (Holiness of gurmukh way of life)
The drains, brooks and streams, when mixed with Ganges, become the waters and Ganges Eight metals coming in contact with philosopher’s stone become one metal-gold
The vegetation abiding near sandalwood with or without fruit is called sandalwood
Only one sun and none other accounts for six seasons and twelve months
On the same earth move the four castes, six philosophies and twelve sects of Yogis
The Guruwards see only the holy congregation and efface duality with their discipline
They meditate on ONE LORD with a single mind. ...9
Pauri 10 (Family tradition and gurmukh way of life)
Maternal and paternal relatives, in-laws, hosts and menials are all there
They present gifts on births, tonsure ceremonies, engagements, deaths and marriages, Rites, customs, family ceremonies, conducts, behaviours are all brought into consideration
When deranged they commit misdeeds, throwing down the canopies of the sky on the rug
They worship their elder personages, faithful wives, co-wives and even ponds and pits
Without congregation and Guru’s Word, they undergo transmigration disgraced by God
The Guruwards are stringed into the necklace of diamonds. ...10

Pauri 11 (Princes)
The princes born of kings receive great affection by the army
The kings lead the army, followed by his courtiers and soldiers on foot
They come up greatly bedecked, but those princes are very simple
The obedient ones are praised and the arrogant ones are dishonoured in the Court
They only come under refuge, who serve their master with open mind
That Guruward is the king of kings, who is absorbed with the grace of the Guru
They are the blissful lords from the very beginning and beginning of ages. ...11

Pauri 12 (More Examples)
In the darkness there are lakhs of stars, but when the sunrises, they all vanish away
When the lion roars, the herds of animals run away and do not come to stay
The lakhs of snakes, seeing the garuda (blue jay), flee away to enter their holes
The birds seeing the falcon, do not come near and get no shelter
The superb thought in the world is that in the congregation one effaces evil thinking
The True Guru is the True Sovereign, he destroys the duality and the rebels
The Guruward comprehends and after knowing causes others to know. ...12
Pauri 13 (National highway gurmukh way of life)
The True Guru is the True Sovereign and he has started the cart-back for the Guruward
Who has brought five evil spirits under his control and effaced the evil duality
He is absorbed in Word-awareness and the Yama and tax-collector do not come near
He is inattentive to twelve Yogic sects and populates the true region of congregation
He gives mantras of devoted love and fear and is firm about Name, Charity and Bath
Just like lotus in water, he remains detached in the world of Maya
He effaces his self and does not reveal it. ...13

Pauri 14 (True song)
There are the king and his subjects, the servants and those invoking their sovereignty
When born, the songs are sung, the maternal and paternal relatives congratulate When married, the satirical songs are sung and both sides play their musical instruments
When dead, there are wailings and lamentations, when dirges are loudly chanted
In the holy congregation the True paean is sung and the Guruward is absorbed in it
He is beyond the Vedas and Katebs and remains disinterested in both birth and death
He remains detached in this world of hopes. ...14

Pauri 15 (Guru oriented and the mind oriented)
The discipline of the Guruward is an easy one, the self-willed go astray in twelve sects
The Guruward causes the world-ocean to be crossed, the self-willed are drowned in it
The Guruward are redeemed while living, the self-willed transmigrate continuously
The Guruwards obtain the fruit of bliss, the self-willed obtain the fruit of suffering
The Guruwards are acquitted in Lord's Court, the self-willed bear penalty from Yama
The Guruward effaces his self and the self-willed get burnt in the fire of ego
Rare are the persons in discipline. ...15

Pauri 16 (Gursikh in guise of married woman)
In the house of her parents, the daughter, darling of her parents, receives great affection
Amongst her brothers, she is the sister, having maternal and paternal families of relatives
She is wedded, spending lakhs of rupees, with ornaments, dowry and paraphernalia
She is respected in her in-laws' house as auspicious and longing for family-welfare
She enjoys happily the bed of her husband, ever bedecked and specialising in best meals
In her attributes and within the folk-knowledge, she is better-half and gate of salvation
Assuredly, this woman is the fruit of bliss for the Guruward. ...16

Pauri 17 (Manmukh a prostitute)
Just as prostitute with many friends commits all the sins of evil traits
She has repelled her people's behaviour and has blemished all her three families
She is drowned and causes others to be drowned; she digests the sweet poison
Just as the deer is caught because of the sound of horn and the moth is burnt on the lamp
Similarly she is stained in both the worlds, she gets the full load sunk in the stony-boat
The mind of the self-willed is divided and wanders in illusion in the company of tyrants
The son of the prostitute is anonymous. ...17

Pauri 18 (The childhood, the youth and the oldage)
The wisdom of the child is blurred, he passes his time in playing
In his youth he is strayed; he is allured by another's body, another's money and slander
He becomes old in entanglement, he is entrapped in the great family-net
He becomes devoid of strength and wisdom, he is called the prating over-aged one
He is blind, deaf and crippled; his body is tired, but the mind still runs everywhere
Without the Guru’s Word and congregation, he goes on transmigrating in 84 lakh births
Nothing is achieved if one misses the opportunity. ...18

Pauri 19 (Swan, crane, gurmukh, manmukh)
The swan does not leave Mansarovar, but the crane moves away in many ponds
The nightingale sings in the mango-grove, but the crow likes all good or bad places
There are no herds of bitches, the cow, giving milk, increases her family
The man of stable wisdom is like a fruitful tree, the man without fruit runs everywhere
The fire is hot and the water is cold, they show their heads high and low respectively
The Guruward effaces his self, but the foolish self-willed one reveals his self
The duality is a bad bet and causes defeat. ...19

Pauri 20 (Five creatures and manmukh)
The elephant, deer, fish, moth and black bee, are each consumed by only one ailment
But there are five ailments for the human body, all the five make it unfit
The desire and intention are witches and pleasure and sorrow enhance many ailments
The self-willed ones falling in duality are strayed and get confused
The True Guru is the True Sovereign and the Guruwards move on the cart-track
They move together in the holy congregation and the thugs and thieves run away in fear
They pull on profitably in their own home. ...20
Pauri 21 (Satiguru the true emperor)
The boat-man causes many boat-loads of men to cross, getting them mounted on his boat
Only one leader pulls on with the army along with the chieftains and kings
The watchman moves through his street, where the noble residents sleep without anxiety
Only one bridegroom is married taking many guests in the marriage-party
There is only one king in the country with many subjects including Hindus and Muslims
The True Guru is True Sovereign, whose tokens are the congregation and Guru’s word
I am a sacrifice to them, whose support is the True Guru. ... 21

VAR-VI
One Oaṅkār the Eternal Truth realized through the grace of the divine preceptor

Pauri 1 (Invocation)
The True Guru is perfect and the Perfect has created the perfect splendour
The Perfect Lord’s congregation is perfect, Who has determined the perfect mantra
The Perfect Lord’s love-essence is perfect, with His start of perfect Guruward’s Path
The Perfect Lord’s appearance is perfect and He has conveyed the Perfect Word
The Perfect Lord’s seat is perfect and He has created the Perfect throne
The congregation is the Abode of Truth, where Kind Lord came within devotees’ control
He as Guru is Truth-incarnate with True Name and instructs his discipline to devotees
The Guru entertains his disciple. ... 1

Pauri 2 (As above)
The Lord, the Cause of causes, and All-Powerful does whatever the congregation wants
The Stores of that Beneficent Lord are full, He blesses with blessings of congregation
The Transcendent Lord as Guru is merged in the congregation and His Word Whosoever are absorbed in sacrifices, enjoyments and Yoga do nor get His Sight.
The congregation is the father and as son the disciple eats and wears as given by him.
He remains a householder and bows at the feet of the disciples who are householders.
He remains detached in the world of mammon. ...2

Pauri 3 (Daily routine of Gurmukhs)
They get up at the ambrosial hour and go to the river to take a bath.
In unfathomable spontaneous contemplation, they are absorbed in repeating Guru’s Word.
They put red marks on their foreheads and go to sit in the congregation.
In intense love of Word-awareness, they sing and listen to the hymns of the True Guru.
They are fully devoted through love and fear and serve the Guru, celebrating his memory.
In evenings they sing ‘So Dar’ in the company of the disciple-friends.
At night they recite ‘Kirtan Sohila’ and performing ‘Aarti’ distribute the offerings.
The Guruwards taste real love, the fruit of bliss. ...3

Pauri 4 (Holy congregation-the abode of Truth)
The Aumkara (God) spread His Creation-with only one utterance.
He kept all under His Control, the air, water, fire, earth and sky.
He kept within each pore millions of His Created universes.
The Transcendent and Perfect Lord Inaccessible, Imperceptible, Unknowable, Infinite.
He is subdued only by intense Love; the Creator-Lord becomes affectionate to devotees.
An extremely fine seed is sown, from which extends a huge tree.
The seed is merged in the fruit, from one seed they become thousands and lakhs.
For the Guruward the Love-essence is the fruit of bliss, the disciples love the True Guru.
In the congregation, the region of Truth, the True Guru abides with the Formless Lord.
The Guruward is redeemed through devotion with Love. ...4
Pauri 5 (The meaning of the 38th stanza of Japuji Pavan Guru Damāhpīṭā)

The ‘Air-Guru’ is Guru’s Word, the Guru has conveyed to us His Word “WAH-GURU” Making the ‘Water-Father’ immaculate, the Guruward initiated his Path of humility Thinking of ‘Mother-Earth’ as prudent, the union of warp and woof was created With day and night as male and females nurses, the world-play began like child’s play
The birth of the Guruward is fruitful, who abides in congregation and loses his self
He becomes devoid of birth and death and lives like the ‘liberated’ one
In Guru’s wisdom his mother is intellect and father contentment and he is emancipated
Forbearance and piety are his brothers, devotion, prayer, celibacy and truth are his sons
The Guru and disciple become one, the miracle of man creating a man works
The Guruward obtains the fruit of bliss by knowing the Unknowable. ...5

Pauri 6 (Observation on detachment)

The guest goes to another house and abides quite detached in the world of hope
Like the lotus in water, meditating on the sun, remaining unattached
Meeting the congregation with the Word-awareness in the analogy of Guru and disciple
The disciple may be from any caste, he abides in congregation, the region of Truth
He loses his self like the incoming colour of the chewed betel leaf
Ine six Shastras and the twelve sects of the Yogis long for his state, the text says
With six seasons and twelve months only one sun and one moon are seen
Uniting the twelve Zodiac signs and the sixteen moon-phases, the sun merges in moon Crossing the duality of Shiva-Shakti, the Guruward is totally absorbed in One Lord
He falls at the feet and in return the world falls at his feet. ...6
Bowing before the instructions of the Guru, the Guruwards traditionally fall at the feet. They lay down their forehead at the feet and put the mark of dust on their face. They efface the account of illusive actions and especially become unaccountable. The resplendent light shines on them and lakhs of suns and moon do not equal this light. Removing their ego and pride, they meet on the tank of holy congregation. In the congregation, they absorb themselves in the worship of Perfect Lord’s Feet. Like the bee they abide in the container of bliss. ... 7

The sight of the Guru is effective, the Guruward considers within it the six philosophies. The divine sight arises within him; he recognises the folk-lore in Guru’s knowledge. He is a celibate with one wife, he considers another’s wife a daughter or a sister. Another man’s wealth is forbidden like a boar for a Muslim and cow for a Hindu. The Gum’s disciple is a householder, the ritual objects are like another’s dirt for him. The Guru’s Sikh recognises only the Transcendent Perfect Lord, knowledge and devotion. Meeting the congregation he is approved with honours. ... 8

The cows of many colours, after grazing grass, give the milk of only one colour. In vegetation there are many trees, in which there is multi-coloured fire. Everyone sees the gems, but the assayer of gems is a rare comrade. The diamond pierces the diamond, but the congregation is the good necklace of gems. One is exalted by its ambrosial sight and being pleased he asks for nothing else.
The superb body is blessed with divine sight, accompanied by the perfect Light of God.
The holy congregation is the comrade of the True Guru. ...

Pauri 10 (Gurmukh living)
In congregation one is absorbed in awareness of Word, uniting all the five sounds in it.
In the language and conduct of Love are uttered lakhs of modes of sounds.
The Guruward in the ardour of God’s devotion knows the music played on instruments.
He reflects on the inexpressible discourse, abstaining from all praise and censure.
He manifests the Guru’s instructions and absorbs his mind in the sweet utterances.
Though the keeper conceals the molasses, the ants find out the same.
On becoming sugarcane, it is crushed in the crusher. ...

Pauri 11 (As above)
For the nectar of the lotus-feet he becomes a bee and is allured by the fragrance.
Passing through the three channels and crossing the confluence he enters his home.
With every breath the mind is intuned with air, he repeats the dictum “Soham-Hamsa”.
With wonderful form and unique love, the good odour manifests itself excitedly.
The lotus-feet are the ocean of bliss and he merges spontaneously in the bliss-case.
The fruit of bliss for Guruward is love-essence; he is redeemed and rises above body.
On joining the congregation, he knows the Unknowable. ...

Pauri 12 (Utility of the hands)
The hands of the Guruward are fruitful, he works for the holy congregation.
He serves water, fans his fellows and grinds flour, washes feet and gets washings.
He writes the Guru’s hymns for fellows and plays on his drum and attunes Rabab.
He bows and prostrates and huge on meeting the fellow-disciples
He earns his-livelihood righteously; being charitable he seeks welfare of others
On touching the philosopher’s stone, he does not touch another’s body and wealth
The Guruward worships other disciples and in God’s Will he is ever in love and fear
He effaces his self and does not raise it. ...12

Pauri 13 (Usefulness of feet)
The feet of the Guruward are fruitful; they move on the Guruwards’ path
They go the abode of the Guru and sit in the holy congregation
They move hastily for philanthropy and find other Sikhs of the Guru after seeking them
They do not run on the path of duality and remain detached in the world of mammon
They are busy in worship getting freedom from bondage; rare are such obedient persons
They circumambulate the fellow-disciples customary falling at their feet
The Guru and disciples are happily engaged with one another. ...13

Pauri 14 (Gurmukh, the Altruist)
The mind of Guru’s disciples is en lightened they bear the unbearable cup of Love
They are knowers of Brahman and meditate on the Transcendent Perfect Lord Absorbed in Word-awareness, they listen to the inexpressible discourse of Guru’s Word
In past, future and present, in rise and fall, they comprehend the most Incomprehensible
The Guruwards obtain the fruit of Undeceivable, who being kind to devotees, is duped
They are the ships on the fearful sea of existence and even one causes to cross lakhs
They are philanthropists and meet smilingly. ...14
Pauri 15 (Conduct of the house holder Sikh)
The sandal tree is said to be dwarfish, but many serpents are coiled with it
The philosopher’s stone is just a stone, but the stones do not become philosopher’s stone
The snakes which have the gem in their heads, they also move amongst the snakes
The swans dive into the waves and pick up only pearls for eating
Just as the lotus remains unattached to water, the householder Guruward is like it
He remains detached in the world of hopes and lives like the mode of living-redeemed
In what way I should praise the holy congregation? ...15

Pauri 16 (The True Guru and praise of the Sikh)
Blessed is the True Guru who has been fashioned by the Formless Lord Blessed is the True Guru, listening to whose instruction the Sikh took shelter at his feet Blessed is the Path of Guruward; on joining the congregation the Sikhs move together Blessed are the feet of the True Guru and blessed is the head that bows on them
Blessed is the sight of the Guru and blessed is his disciple coming to meet him
The Guru’s disciple is absorbed in devotional love and the Guru kindly sees him
In Guru’s wisdom, the Sikh effaces the duality. ...16

Pauri 17 (Blessed time)
Blessed are all the divisions of time which are fortunate
Blessed are day and night, moon-phases, months, seasons and years
Blessed is the Abhich planet, when the lust, anger, and ego are forsaken Blessed is the coincidence of being at the sixty-eight pilgrim stations including Prayag
On coming to the abode of the Guru, the Guruward obtains the ambrosia of his lotus-feet
He receives the Guru’s instructions and is imbued with the fearless Love of the Lord Absorbed in Word-awareness in holy congregation, his limbs are merged in one colour.
He strings the necklace of pearls with fragile thread. ...17

Pauri 18 (A householder - liberated person)
The Guruward utters sweet words; his utterance is the repetition of God’s Name.
The Guruward sees with his eyes; he contemplates on God within his self.
The Guruward listens with attention; he utters the Guru’s Word, the most prominent.
The Guruward is absorbed in work and deals humbly and modestly with others.
The Guruward walks on the path and circumambulates the Most Glorious Guru.
The Guruward knows about food and clothes and also about sacrifices and enjoyments.
The Guruward’s sleep is contemplation within his self without any outward actions.
He is a householder, he is redeemed while living and is not in fear of getting drowned.
He reaches the farther end, rising above boon and curse. ...18

Pauri 19 (Gurmukh Living)
The True Guru is Truth-incarnate, the Guru’s form be considered as base of attention.
The Primary Formula of “Satnam Karta Purakh” is approved for remembrance.
The Lotus-feet are ambrosial essence and source of worship; the love-sap be enjoyed.
The absorption in the Word-awareness in congregation is to be brought by Guru’s grace.
The Path of the Guruward is unapproachable, in Guru’s wisdom, he moves with stability.
This inexpressible discourse is different from Vedas and Katebs; who can express it?
The recognition comes only on crossing hurdles. ...19
Pauri 20 (Manmukh and his actions)
The contraption bows its head, its neck is tied and the water comes up
The owl does not see the sun and the female ruddy goose does not like to see the moon
The Simmal tree does not bear fruit, the fragrance of sandal does not merge in bamboo
The serpent is caused to quaff the milk, the bitterness of colocynth does not leave it
Just as the burr sticks to the teat, drinks only the blood and does not consume the milk
All the vices abide within my body, if some good is done to it, it reacts in a vicious way
The incense of musk does not emerge from garlic. ...20

VAR–VII
One Oaṅkār the Eternal Truth, realized through the grace of divine preceptors

Pauri 1 (Invocation)
The True Guru is the True King, who founded the True Region of holy Congregation
The Sikh on being instructed by the Guru loses his self and does not expose it
The Sikh of the Guru accomplishes all methods, therefore he is called a holy man
He instructs all the four castes and remains detached from maya.
Everything is below the TRUTH and he causes firmness on the mantra of the Guru
Every one is under the ‘Command’ of the Lord, he who obeys it, merges in TRUTH
Attuning himself to the awareness of the ‘Word’, he comprehends the Unknowable. ...1

Pauri 2 (Twosome, the glory of Gurmukh)
After disciplining the duality of Purusha and Prakriti, he disciplines day and night
He disciplines suffering and happiness, pleasure and sorrow, heaven, hell, virtue and vice
He disciplines birth and death, life and redemption, good, bad, friend and enemy
He conquers both worldly and spiritual splendour and controls union and separation
He controls sleep and hunger and stay in his real home after subduing hope and desire
He subdues both praise and calumny and wins over all the Hindu and Muslims
He falls at the feet of others and wants to be called the ‘dust of feet’. ...2

Pauri 3 (Threesome - Gurmukh)
He has conquered the trios of Brahma, Vishnu, Shiva and scripture, virtue knowledge
He has conquered past, present and future, also beginning, middle and end
He has subdued collectively mind, speech and action, also birth, death and life
He has subdued three types of calamities and also heaven, earth and nether-world
He has subdued superior, middling and inferior, also childhood, youth and old age
He crosses over Ira, Pingala and Sukhmana nerves and takes bath at confluence
The Guruward meditates on the One Lord single-mindedly. ...3

Pauri 4 (Foursome - Gurmukh)
He disciplines all the four types of creation and the stages speech
He passes over the described four directions, four ages, four castes and four Vedas
He conquers faith, wealth, desire, redemption, also rhythm, activity, morbidity, beatitude
He passes over Sanak etc. and stages of life, also subdues all the four mighty spirits
He wins the game of dice, but none can harm him when he couples himself with God
Like betel although he contains several colourful things, in fact, he manifests only redness
The Guruward, residing in the holy congregation, attains the highest spiritual state. ...4
Varan Bhai Gurdas

Pauri 5 (Five some - Gurmukh)
He passes farther away from the five elements of air, water, fire, earth and ether.
He crosses over all the five vices of lust, anger, greed, attachment and ego.
He accepts the five virtues of truth, contentment, mercy, piety and scriptural meanings.
He crosses over the four Yogic states and reach the over-all in conceivable state.
This State belongs to Lord’s Abode where He listens to the Celestial Music in His Presence.
The Guruward has disciplined his soul within the five elements, abiding in the holy congregation.
He stays in the State of Equipoise and his transmigration ends. ...5

Pauri 6 (Six some - Gurmukh)
Practising his discipline in all the six seasons, He has gained control over all the six philosophies.
After subduing the six saps of the tongue, He perform devotion of love, singing in six musical modes.
He has conquered six long-lived sages, six celibates, and six sovereigns dexterity.
He has conquered six Shastras and six karmas and has intuned himself with Lord, preceptor of six Gurus.
He has conquered six rituals and has turned away his face from the thirty-six hypocrisies.
The awareness of the Guruwards is united with the ‘Word of the Guru and the holy congregation. ...6

Pauri 7 (Seven some - Gurmukh)
He has crossed over the seven oceans and his lamp (of knowledge) is lit in the seven continents.
He has gathered together seven cotton threads into one and has jumped over the seven abodes.
He has conquered seven Truthful persons, seven sages and seven musical sounds and remained firm.
He has crossed over the seven boundaries and bears fruit beyond the seven limits.
After gaining control over seven skies and seven nether-worlds, he has gone far beyond
He has passed over the seven ranges and has crushed the forces of ghosts and evil spirits
He does not swerve from his principles because of the fear from seven lunar, day and women spirits
The Guruward stands firm in the holy congregation. ...7

Pauri 8 (Eight some - Gurmukh)
After controlling the eight powers, the adepts tried to absorb themselves in their trance
The Seshinaga conquered all eight clans, but after meditation could not know God’s end Eight times five seers became a maund and eight multiplied by five becomes forty Just as a spinning wheel of eight wings is absorbed in producing one long cotton-thread
Day and night have eight time-spans, yoga eight parts and lowest weights of eight grains Controlling the eight-sided mind, the Guruward has been able to transform eight metals into one
The great tribute goes to the holy congregation. ...8

Pauri 9 (Nine some - Gurmukh)
The Guruward has subdued all the Naths, because the Master of these Naths helps the helpless
The nine treasures are under his command and the supreme treasure of knowledge is his companion
The devotion is performed by nine types of devotees, but the Guruward is absorbed in Love-devotion
As a householder he has controlled the nine doors of his body with the Grace of the True Guru
Living in nine worldly regions, he rises above and crossing over the nine doors, he goes to his home
Just as the nine numerals become innumerable with zero, he, subduing nine skills, attains ‘equipoise’
He attains the fruit of ‘bliss’ and comprehends the incomprehensible. ...8
Pauri 10 (Ten some - Gurmukh)
The Sannyasis with ten names, without Lord-God’s True Name, exhibit their own name.
The ten incarnations manifesting themselves, did not comprehend the ONE LORD.
Within the ten gathered names of festivals at holy places, no festival in the name of Guru is found.
He, who did not remember Lord-God single-mindedly strayed in ten directions without congregation.
Within ten days of Muslim mourning and ten types of Hindu sacrifices, eating meat, brings impurity.
The Guruward, controlling his ten senses, forbids the out-going of his mind.
Falling at the feet of others, he receives the full respect of the world. ...10

Pauri 11 (Eleven some - Gurmukh)
The ‘IKadasi fast’ of the Guruward consists in his single-minded devotion to the Lord as wife.
In the world-ocean, there had been eleven Rudras, who could not comprehend even one instant of God.
Controlling the eleven i.e. ten senses and mind they were tested on the touchstone by the Guruward.
Extending the eleven virtues, he becomes mature and thus fashions the Unfashionable.
With the control of eleven stakes he defeats the evil stake of duality.
Listening to the instruction of the Guru and reverting the senses and mind, he was called a Gursikh.
In the holy congregation he has been absorbed in the ‘Guru’s Word’. ...11

Pauri 12 (Twelve some - Gurmukh)
After testing the twelve sects of the Yogis, the Guruward follows the cart-track.
The sun revolves round the earth in twelve months and the moon in one month.
Bringing together the twelve sun-signs and sixteen moon-ohases, the sun merges in the moon.
After removing the twelve frontal-marks, the Guruward puts the frontal mark of his Guru.
He has subdued the twelve signs of Zodiac and has absorbed himself only in the practice of ‘Truth’
He has become the pure gold of 12 carats, which is weighed in ‘tolas of ‘twelve mashas’
While coming into contact with the philosopher’s stone, the Guruward himself becomes such a stone. ...12

\textbf{Pauri 13 (Thirteen some - Gurmukh)}
The music of thirteen beats, is deficient, the Guruward has completed it with Lord’s blissful devotion
The thirteen gems are useless, because the real valuable gem is the Guru’s instruction
The thirteen rituals during the sacrifice for the manes lead the world into illusions
The intake of the washing of the Guru’s feet does not equal the lakhs of sacrifices
Lakhs of sacrifices, consecrated food and offerings do not equal one grain in Guruward’s mouth
The Guruward satisfies his co-disciples and tastes the blissful fruit of love
The supporter-Lord of His devotees, the Undeceivable Lord is deceived. ...13

\textbf{Pauri 14 (Fourteen, fifteen and sixteen some - Gurmukh)}
After knowing all the fourteen sciences, he delivers the perennial discourse of Guru’s instruction
After crossing over the fourteen worlds, he, the lover of the highest spiritual state, abides in his home
In one month there are fifteen lunar dates for which there are two aspects the dark as well as bright
In the game of dice, killing all the sixteen chessmen, the united couple brings fearlessness
Complete with all sixteen phases, the moon enters the house of sun, where it experiences decline
The woman bedecking herself with all the sixteen articles, enjoys on her bed the love of her sponse
One potency of Shiva combined with sixteen of Shakti (Maya) make them seventeen. ...14
Pauri 15 (Eighteen to thirty four some - Gurmukh)
Passing over eighteen descents, he has studied all the eighteen Puranas
Passing over nineteen, twenty and twenty-one, he has subdued twenty-two nobles and hermits Conquering countless people, he gets the knowledge of twenty-three, twenty-four and twenty-five After twenty-sixth, there is twenty-seventh, then comes to meet it is the twenty-eighth After passing twenty-ninth and subduing the thirtieth, then comes running the thirty-first Subduing those of thirty-two auspicious qualities, he has made thirty-three crore move around Dhruva
Through thirty-four letters, he has comprehended - the Unaccountable Lord. ...15

Pauri 16 (Praises of the Lord)
That Lord abides beyond the Vedas and Katebs; He is Unaccountable and Incomprehensible
His Form is Unique and Marvellous; He, the Imperceptible cannot be scanned with human sight
He has extended all His Creation with one ‘Word’; He is Unweighable and is merged in the earth
He is beyond expression and description, those who absorbed even for Word-awareness, got tired
He is Incomprehensible through mind, speech and action, mind and intellect got tired of knowing Him
He is Undeceivable, invincible and Indiscriminate; He, the Helper of devotees pervades in congregation
He Himself is Supreme and His Eminence is Supreme. ...16

Pauri 17 (Gurmukh and the fruit of delight)
There is vegetation in every forest, it abides, hidden in solitude
Picking up the plants from the forest, the orchards of the kings are created and improved
The trees are grown by watering them and looking after them by the gardeners
When the season comes, they bear fruit full of ambrosial sap
The taste is not in the tree, which is in the fruit along with the fragrance
The Perfect Lord Pervades in the world, but for Guruward He abides in the congregation
The Guruward enjoys the Supreme Fruit of ‘Bliss’. ...17

Pauri 18 (The sky description)
The sky is visible, but none knows, how much great it is? How much high it is? It looks empty void and is indescribable
The birds fly, but even those soaring very high do not give information about the limits
The end is not found, all move about in astonishment
None can penetrate through lakhs of skies, we are a sacrifice to the Lord of Nature
That Transcendent Lord and the True Guru aides constantly in the holy congregation
Only the egoless disciple recognises Him. ...18

Pauri 19 (Praises of the Guru)
The Perfect Transcendent Lord and Guru abides in every heart like sun’s reflection
The lotus loves the sun, the Guruward comprehends it through loving-devotion
The Transcendent Lord is within the Guru’s Word, through which flows the ambrosia of Attributes
The fruit-bearing trees near sandalwood take the fragrance of sandalwood
The Guruward becomes equanimous and without any attachment, malice and duality
The Guruward enjoys Love-devotion is the fruit of ‘bliss’; he becomes emancipated while living
He comprehends the state of equipoise in the holy congregation. ...19

Pauri 20 (Gursabad)
The Guruward considers the ‘Word’ as Guru and awareness of its melody as the disciple
In the True Region of congregation, he is ever in Love-devotion, when there is Word-awareness
There are knowledge, meditation and remembrance, for which the swan, tortoise and crane are symbols
The fruit is from the tree and tree from fruit, the mantra of the Guru makes the Sikh comfortable
In the seeming world the Sikh abides, but rises above it and plays with the Inconceivable Lord
He bows before the Primal Purusha and always act under His Command and Will He sings the Lord’s Praises at the ambrosial hour in the morning. ...20

Pauri 24 (All should become gurmukh)
Out of lakhs of superior, middling and inferior people, Guruward deems himself lowest Falling at the feet of others, he becomes their dust and loses his own ‘self’
He is absorbed in fear and love in the holy congregation, he serves as a servant
He speaks sweetly and walks with humility and performs welfare by giving to others
He is absorbed in the ‘Word’- awareness and, in humility, he is honoured by Lord
Posing as an ignorant one in the ephemeral world, he remains unattached in the world
The Guruward attains the fruit of ‘bliss’ and comprehends the Incomprehensible. ...24

VAR–IX
One Oaṅkār the Eternal Truth, realized through the grace of divine preceptors

Pauri 1 (Vahiguru, Guru, Sabad, Satisang)
The manifestation of the Guru is of Perfect Brahman, Unmanifested and Eternal
The ‘Word’ of the Guru is Transcendent Brahman, which abides in holy congregation
The holy congregation is abode of True Lord, known to the trainee of devotional love Through Guru’s instruction to all, the light of Guru’s intellect unfolds
The Guruward follows the tradition of falling at and becoming the dust of feet
He remains free from worldly desires and rises above the world of maya. ...1

Pauri 2 (Discipleship of the Guru)
The discipline of a Sikh is intricate, it is like licking the tasteless slab
It is sharp like the edge of a double-edged sword, it is finer than the hair
Nothing equals it in the past, present and future
In this house the duality is destroyed and Unity is manifested
The second and third are forgotten alongwith the sons and daughters
All the longings are discarded with comfort only in one yearning. ...2
Pauri 3 (The way of Gurmukh)
The path of the Guruward is said to be ‘the love of Guru’s discipline’
In which one treads under God’s Will, reflecting on the ‘Guru’s Word’
The Lord’s Will is loved, with full faith the Transcendent Lord
One becomes a philanthropist with the spread of the fragrance of love
One becomes full of faith and forbearance and active in devotional inebriation
The Guruward loses his self and becomes victorious in effacing his ego. ...3

Pauri 4 (Conduct of a Sikh)
He lives like a guest and remains in the devotional love and fear of the Lord
Thinking of life as ephemeral and showing ignorance, he effaces the ego
The Sikhs of the Guru are ever the guests, this is their performance in life
They serve the Guruwards, which is liked by the Guru
They are absorbed in the awareness of the ‘Word’ and even uplift their families
Through the holy congregation, they attain the pure and godly state of equipoise. ...4

Pauri 5 (The spiritual state of the Gursikh)
He, unfolding the Supreme Light, remains absorbed in the Supreme spiritual state
He assimilates the Supreme element and the Unstruck Melody resounds within him
He gets enlightened by the Supreme Truth and enjoys the Godly Bliss Getting absorbed in the Guru’s instruction, he attains the state of cognition
He practises the discipline in congregation and meditates on the Lord single-mindedly
In this way, he rises above the world and reaches his own ‘home’. ...5

Pauri 6 (The realization of the all permissiveness of the wondrous Guru)
One sees his self while meditating like looking at the mirror
The perfect Brahman is in every heart like the moon’s reflection in water
One observes the cow through milk and the ghee within the milk
The fragrance is in the flowers and the fruit preserves the taste
See the conduct of fire in the wood and the water within the earth
Like this, the perfect Brahman is in every heart and the Guruward scans Him. ...6
Pauri 7 (Conduct of a Sikh of the Guru)
There is a rare Sikh, who has divine sight and meditates on the Guru
Who, being evaluator of the gems, examines them
The mind is the invaluable gem, which is stringed with the congregation
The Sikhs of the Guru are the rosary of gems, who sing the eulogy of Guru’s discipline
They become eternal, effacing the self and being absorbed in bliss and equipoise
Their light merges in Supreme Light like warp and woof, the rare one knows it...7

Pauri 8 (Identicalness of the Sikh with the Guru)
He becomes profound and serene in virtues with the marvel of the ‘Word’ and music
He becomes absorbed in ‘Word-awareness’ and enjoys the tune of Unstuck Melody
The musician plays on the instruments and the mind rises to the Supreme State
The player of the divine hymns of the Guru gets the Sikh absorbed in the played music
The Guru is the inner controller, who understands the internal affliction
The Guru is disciple and the disciple is Guru like diamond cutting the diamond....8

Pauri 9 (As above)
The greatness of the Guruward is that he, as philosopher’s stone, creates such stone
Like the diamond cutting the diamond, the light merges in the Supreme Light
The awareness is absorbed in the ‘Word’ like the musician absorbed in music
The Guru is disciple and the disciple is Guru, they are engaged with each other
The Purusha is created by the Purusha, by the Supreme Purusha
After rising above the world of maya, one is merged in the state of equipoise....9

Pauri 10 (Holy congregation, the abode of truth)
On having a sight of the True Guru, the Lord-God is visualised
One is absorbed in the awareness of ‘Word’ and the internal condition is known
The fragrance of the lotus-feet spreads like the fragrance of sandalwood
The washings of the feet are fragranced, they are marvellous and significant. He, who stabilises his mind with Guru's instruction, which has no form and line. He goes to the True Abode of holy congregation and becomes formless and accountless. ...10

Pauri 11 (Witness state)

He, who sees through the eyes is also present in the things being seen. Whatever is said in words, the same oozes from the awareness. Whatever fragrance is there in the lotus-feet, also manifests itself as the black bee. He, who gets the union of the holy congregation, he does not suffer separation. He, who has the love of Guru's discipline in his mind, he is only absorbed in it. The Transcendent and Perfect Brahman manifests Himself as the True Guru. ...11

Pauri 12 (Divine virtues)

There is power of sight in the eyes and the power of breathing in the nose. There is power of attention in the ears and the power of taste in the tongue. There is power of effort in the hands and the power of walking in the feet. The Guruward obtained the fruit of happiness on churning the 'Word in the intellect. That Guruward may be very rare, who remains without the impact of maya. The holy congregation is the sandal tree, the one who joins it, becomes sandal. ...12

Pauri 13 (Vahiguru Mantra)

How to comprehend the Incomprehensible, who is beyond rise and fall? The discourse of the Indescribable is Incommunicable, how can it be related? The marvellous meets the Marvellous and it, it creates curiosity for us. From the Ecstatic proceeds the ecstatic and merges in the Ecstatic. The Vedas do not know His Secret, even the Seshinaga does not know it. The Word of the Guru beckons us to sing the Praises of 'WAHEGURU'. ...13
Pauri 14 (Virtues of a gurmukh)
Just as the cart-track moves within the beaten path
Similarly the Sikh has to move under the Lord’s Will in holy congregation
Just as the moneylender keeps his money safe in his house
Just as the fathomless ocean heaps himself within his propriety of conduct
Just as the perennial grass is not depressed, though it is crushed under the legs
The abode of Dharma is like Manasarovar lake, where the Gursikhs are like swans
The ‘Guru’s Word’ is like the gem, which is eaten by them, while singing God’s Praises. ...14

Pauri 15 (Example of sandal)
Just as the sandal in the forest conceals itself
The philosopher’s stone in the mountains remains hidden
The Manasarovar lake does not show itself in the seven oceans
Just as the Elysian tree remains, hidden and does not manifest itself
Just as the wish-fulfilling cow does not make itself known in the world
Why should the Sikh get himself enumerated on receiving True Guru’s instruction? ...15

Pauri 16 (Guru disciple, disciple Guru)
There are said to be two eyes, but they see only one single thing
There are said to be two ears, but they hear one single voice
There are two banks of a stream, but there is one single stream
There are two forms of the Guru and disciple, but there comes out one ‘Guru’s Word’
The Guru is disciple and the disciple is Guru, who should instruct whom? ...16

Pauri 17 (Activity of guru-disciple)
Primarily the Guru instructs and the Sikh falls at his feet
He makes the congregation as abode of ‘Dharma’ and puts the Sikh in service
The Sikhs perform service in devotional love and fear and celebrate the Guru’s days
They remain absorbed in ‘Word-awareness’ and devotional singing and meet True Lord True is the path of the Guruward and the Truth makes him swim across the world ocean
The true Sikh meets the True Guru and on meeting him, he effaces his self. ...17
Pauri 18 (Learning humility from feet)
The head is high and the feet are low, but the heads fall at the feet
Which carry the weight of mouth, eyes, nose, ears and hands
They are worshipped over and above other organs, what actions they perform?
They go always in congregation and take refuge with the Guru
They go for the service of others as far as possible
Such Sikhs of the Guru may wear the shoes made from my skin
The dust of the feet of such Sikhs touches their foreheads, who are fortunate. ...18

Pauri 19 (Learning from the earth)
Just as the earth has made forbearance, Dharma and humility its capital investment
It remains the lowest of all without any longing for false honour
Someone may raise on it the temple of God and someone may make it a heap of rubbish
Whatever one sows in it, reaps accordingly, whether the fruit of mango or cardymyxa
On meeting the Guruwards, the Sikhs efface their self, while living
The earth is trampled under feet and its dust is equivalent to the dust of saints’ feet. ...19

Pauri 20 (Learning from water)
Just as the water flows down towards the lowest plane
It takes the form of all colours and gets them mixed in it
It serves others and effaces its self
Giving growth to the wood, it does not sink it and instead gets the iron float with it
When it rains, we get prosperity and plenty, several things of various tastes are produced
The saint also effaces his self, while living, his coming to the world is fruitful. ...20

Pauri 21 (Learning from tree)
The tree grows with its head downwards, it becomes immobile
It bears rain, cold and sunshine, it does not leave performing austerities
It grows into a beautiful tree bearing fruit, it gives several luscious fruit
If the stones are pelted on it, it gives fruit and does not move even when it is sawed
The vicious people are engaged in vices and gentle ones in good actions
There are very rare saints who respond with virtuous actions, even when treated badly
Those who get their opportunities deluded, they dodge the opportunities. ...21

Pauri 22 (Virtues of a gursikh)
The Sikh, who effaces his self while living, he merges in his Guru
He is absorbed in ‘Word-awareness’, he loses his self
He makes the earth of his body as the abode of ‘Dharma’ and spreads mind like grass
Though trampled under feet, he meditates on the Name of the Lord.
He adopts devotional love and humility and stays under Guru’s discipline
He will drips like the current of ambrosia and comes in person to the congregation. ...22

VAR–X
One Oaṅkār the Eternal Truth, realized through the grace of divine preceptors

Pauri 1 (Stories of the Saints Dhruv)
Dhruva came laughing to his home and the father fondly took him in his lap
The step-mother became angry in her mind and catching him by the arm got him out
He asked his mother while sobbing: “Are you the mistress or a serf?”
“By birth I am the mistress, but did not remember Name or perform devotional acts” “By what effort I can get the kingdom and all the enemies may become friends?”
“The Lord be remembered, which can only purify the sinners”
He left his home to perform austerities, he became an ascetic with an apathetic mind
He was instructed by sage Narada, obtained the treasure of Name and quaffed the nectar
Later on the king called him for permanently ruling over the kingdom
The Guruwards thus act with great humility and conquer the world. ...1
Pauri 2 (Prehlad Bhagat)
In the house of the demon-king Hiranyaksha, the saint Prehlad was a lotus in barren land
He was sent to the school for learning and the mind of his teacher was delighted
He remembered the Lord’s Name in his mind and sang the ‘Word’ melodiously
All his fellow-students also performed devotion and the teachers became stupefied
They went to the king to make a complaint and the malicious demon increased dispute
Prehlad was thrown in water and fire, he could not be drowned in water by Guru’s grace
Taking out the sword, he was asked : “Who is your teacher?”
The Eternal Lord manifested Himself in unique form of Narsingh, tearing off the column
He overthrew the impertinent demon, He is the Supporter of the saints in all ages
There were great rejoicing by all the gods including Brahma. ...2

Pauri 3 (King Bali)
The king Bali was performing a ‘yajna’ in his house
A dwarfish person came and began to recite all the four Vedas orally
The king called him in and told him to ask for anything that he wanted
His priest Shukra made him understand that the Indeceivable had come to dupe him
He asked for earth’s two and a half steps, but then could not be contained in three worlds
He passed over three worlds with two steps, the king Bali followed him to measure
After deceiving Bali, He Himself was duped, He became Gracious and hugged Bali
He gave him the kingdom of the nether-world and modestly praised the devotee
He became the Gate-keeper of the Lord and attained Supreme Bliss. ...3
Pauri 4 (Ambrik Bhagat)
Ambrik had begun his fast and as the night fell, the sage Durbasha came. He had to end his fast in time, when the sage went away to take the bath in the river. He ended the fast by drinking the washing of the sage’s feet, who ran to curse him. The Lord sent his death-like terrible ‘Sudarshan’ discus to curb the sage’s ego. The Brahmin ran for the safety of his self, but all the gods could not protect him. He left the abode of Indra, Shiva and Brahma and also left heaven. The gods along with Lord-God, all advised him and caused him to understand. He ultimately took shelter with Ambrik, who got him released from chastisement. On which the Lord was called ‘Kind to devotees’ and the ‘Protector of world’.  ... 4

Pauri 5 (King Janak)
The king Janak is the great saint, the Guruward and dispassionate in Maya. He started for the abode of gods along with the comfort-giving ‘ganas’ and ‘gandharvas’. On hearing the cries midway, he went to hell, the abode of Yama, full of lamentations. He asked ‘Dharamraja’ to release all the residents. Who said humbly that he was the servant of the Eternal Lord. The saint pawned some of his devotion to weigh it against the sins of the residents. The sins could not counterbalance the devotion, which is unweighable. All the residents of hell were released, their noose of Yama broke down. The device for salvation is the serviteur of devotion.  ... 5

Pauri 6 (Hari Chand and Tarā Queen)
In the house of the king Hari Chand, he lived happily with his queen Tara Lochan. There was singing of hymns in the congregation, which the queen attended at night. The king woke up in her absence, when midnight had already passed away. He did not see the queen and marvelled at it in his mind. During another night, he got up and pursued his young queen.
The queen reached in the congregation and the king took away her shoe as a sign.
The congregation prayed to the Lord and the new shoe joined the old from the 'invisible'.
The king saw this miracle and found the new shoe 'WONDERFUL'.
He became a sacrifice to the holy congregation. ...6

Pauri 7 (Bidar and Duryodhan)
Knowing about his arrival in the house of Bidar, Duryodhana spoke angrily.
“What comfort he gets in the house of a serf, leaving our own houses?
“He has not cared for Bhishma, Drona and Karna, who are great and cream of society.
“He has gone only to a cottage” and this created anxiety in the mind of all.
The Lord Krishna spoke smilingly: “O king, Listen with your face towards me.
I have not seen devotion in you and I do not find any inconvenience here.
The devotion which Bidar has, none other has in, his mind, even an iota of it.
The Lord is hungry of devotional love. ...7

Pauri 8 (Daropati)
Duhshasana brought Daropati in the Court, with her hair dishevelled on her forehead.
The servants were ordered to render this maid-servant of Panchal naked.
All the five Pandavas saw this, whose wife was entrapped in adversity.
She closed her eyes and meditated on the Lord and lamented for the help of Krishna.
The crores of clothes were invisibly heaped, the servants were tired and were helpless.
They regretted, repented and felt sorry for what they had done.
On coming home, she met Krishna and in shyness, thanked Him for saving her honour.
The Lord has been helping the helpless from the very beginning. ...8

Pauri 9 (Sudāmā Bhagat)
Sudama, the Brahmin was very lazy; he was called the Childhood friend of Krishna.
His wife persistently asked him to meet Lord Krishna and remove his poverty.
He went, thinking all the way, how he should go and who will cause the meeting?
He reached the city of Dwarka and stood at the main gate
Seeing him from afar, Lord Krishna bowed to him and came to him leaving his throne
At first he circumambulated him, then bowed to his feet and hugged him
He washed his feet and drank the washing and then got him seated on the throne
Then he asked with affection his welfare and related the story of their Guru’s service
He munched the brought rice, then he bade him adieu, sending everything in advance
He collectively sent all the substances before him. ...9

Pauri 10 (Jaidev Bhagat)
Jaidev remained absorbed in singing the eulogy of ‘Gita Govind’ in equipoise
He described the Sport of the Lord and was loved by the Omniscient Lord
He was stuck at one point while writing and closing his book, went to perform ‘Sandhya’
The Lord, treasure of qualities, came to his home and in his form, completed the verse
When he read the completed verse, in immense faith, he was over-joyed with wonder
He went and saw in the solitude a wonderful tree
On every leaf of which was recorded the complete ‘Gita Govind’; he could find no end
The Lord manifested Himself for the sake of his saint and Graciously hugged him
He makes known no difference between the saint and the Boundless Lord. ...10

Pauri 11 (Namdev)
The father was leaving for an errand, he went away after asking Namdev “Perform the service of the Lord”, he instructed about the quaffing of milk by the Lord
Namdev took a bath and brought the milk after milching the grey cow
He caused the Lord to take bath, drank the washing of His feet and put the frontal mark
With folded hands, he supplicated “O my Sovereign Lord, Quaff the milk”
He meditated on the Lord with faith, Who, becoming Gracious manifested Himself
Namdev filled the pot with milk and caused the Lord to quail it
At another time, He revived the dead cow and thatched the cottage of Namdev
He revolved the temple and made all the four castes to bow at the feet of Namdev
He performs whatever the saint wishes. ...11

Pauri 12 (Namdev and Trilochan)
In order to have a sight of Namdev, Trilochan used to come early in the morning
Both of them together performed the devotion and Namdev related the Lord’s Acts “Supplicate for me for having His Sight through His Grace”
He asked the Lord: “How Trilochan can have Your Sight?
The Lord smiled and said, making Namdev to understand:
“I cannot be realised through offerings, Trilochan can only have my Sight through Grace
“I am under the authority of the saint, none can realise me through any claim of devotion
“But the mediator can cause me to meet”. ...12

Pauri 13 (Dhanna and Brahmin)
The Brahmin worshipped god and Dhanna used to come to graze the cow
Dhanna saw this act, he asked the Brahmin, who told him:
“Whosoever serves the Lord, he gets, whatever he wishes”, Dhanna supplicated:” Give me one through your kindness”,
Wrapping one of the stones, he gave it to Dhanna and got rid of him
Dhanna caused the god to take bath and offered him buttermilk and bread
With folded hands, he entreated him, falling repeatedly at his feet “I shall also not eat anything, if you are angry, I do not like anything”
The Lord of the world manifested Himself and ate bread and quaffed buttermilk
The Lord is realised through innocent conduct. ...13
Pauri 14 (Benī Bhagat)
The Guruward Beni performed devotion, he went to meditate in the solitude
He used to perform spiritual acts and did not tell anyone about his state
When he came home, on being asked he told that he had gone to the royal court
There was shortage of everything at home and with tact made his both ends meet
There was a great drama, he meditated on Lord-God single-mindedly
The Lord saved the honour of the saint and came to his home as a king
He Gracefully consoled him and caused to be sent countless money to his home
From there he came to the saint and Graciously exhibited His Love for him
He causes the acclamation of the saints. ...14

Pauri 15 (Kabir and Ramanand)
The saint Gosain Ramanand lived at Banaras as a recluse
He used to get up early in the morning and go to take a bath in Ganges
Kabir went there before hand and lay down on his path
He caused him to get up by touching his feet and instructed him to utter Lord’s Name
Just as iron touches philosopher’s stone and margosa tree is fragranced by sandal
Similarly the Perfect Guru’s greatness consists in transforming a ghost into a god
The wonderful meets the wonderful and marvellous the marvellous
The current of ambrosia trickles down and the words of Guruward mould the unmould
There remained no difference between Ramanand and Kabir. ...15

Pauri 16 (Sain, the barber)
Listening to the glory of Kabir, Sain, the barber became Ramanand’s second disciple
He used to perform devotional love during the night and in the morning went to the king
Once some saints came as guests and there was devotional singing throughout the night
He could not leave the saints, therefore he could not go to serve the king
The Lord came in the form of Sain and pleased the king
After bidding farewell to the saints, Sain, in shyness, went to the palace
The king called him from the distance and taking off his own robe, put it on him “You have immensely pleased me today”, the king said and the people heard
The Lord exhibits the greatness of the saint. ...16

Pauri 17 (Ravidas Bhagat)

The cobbler Ravidas became famous as saint in all the four directions
He cobbled shoes in the way and his family collected and carried the dead animals
He was like the jewel wrapped in dirty rags
He, the saint, was absorbed in meditation and instructed all the four castes
He came in the company of others to Banaras to take bath in the Ganges Ravidas took out his penny and offered it to the goddess Ganga
There was a great ‘Abheech’ festival and the people saw an indelible wonder
The goddess Ganga caught the penny in her own hand like the warp and woof of cotton
The Lord is the mother, father and son for his saints. ...17

Pauri 18 (Ahalya and Gautam)

The god Indra was enticed on seeing Ahalya, the wife of sage Gautama
He was cursed on going to another home and rued on having a thousand vagina-signs
The abode of Indra became desolate and being ashamed in mind, he hid himself in sea
When he received a thousand eyes for vaginas, he went back to his abode
The fallen chaste Ahalya became a stone without life on the bank of a river
When she touched the feet of Lord Rama, she went to heaven sitting on an air-vehicle
For His Munificence, the Lord is called ‘Gracious’ and for sinners, He is ‘Redeemer’
Every one returns virtue for virtue, but the virtue returned for vice is significant
What Praise can we utter for the Unmanifested Lord? ...18
The robber Valmiki used to wait and kill the men on the path
He came into contact with the Perfect True Guru and there was wrangle in his mind
Though he wished to kill earnestly, but he could not raise his hand
The True Guru forbade his mind and he did not have the incentive
He disclosed all his vices and said that this was his profession
He was sent home to ask as to who would help him at the time of death
All the family was a sacrifice to him, but in anger said that none could help the dying
He was given true instruction and thus redeemed and he could cross over the world
The Guruward jumped over the mountain of sin. ...19

The sinner Ajamal lived with a prostitute in sin
He became impertinent to Guru, committed sins and was swayed by vicious intellect
He wasted his birth and moved within the terrible sea of existence
By the prostitute he had six sons and thus earned the fruit of his sins
His seventh son was born and he became enthusiastic to perform his naming ceremony
He went to the abode of the Guru, where the Guruward named him Narayan
At deathbed, seeing the messengers of Yama, he cried in fear for the son Narayan
The Yama’s messengers were ousted by angels and he went to heaven sans penalty
By remembering the Name of the Lord his suffering ended. ...20

Ganika, the sinner, had worn the necklace of sins around her neck
Suddenly, the Great Man came and stood before her house
Noticing her vicious behaviour, he became merciful and gave her a parrot with his hand
He instructed her to utter Lord’s Name and went away after this profitable business
She became absorbed in Lord’s Name, always waking and tutoring the parrot.
The Lord’s Name, redeemer of sinners, washed away the sins and vices of her body.
At deathbed, breaking the noose of Yama, she did not get immersed in hell.
She went to heaven, ascending the air-vehicle, because Lord’s Name purified her.
The Lord’s Name provides the seat and honour to the devotee. ...21

Pauri 22 (Pūtnā)
The sinner and poisonous Putana came, applying poison to both her teats.
She came and sat within the family like a newly married lady manifesting her love.
She took Krishna in her lap, performing her jugglery, like a shrewd deceitful woman.
She put her teat in the mouth of Krishna and puffed up with pride came out of the house.
She, the impostor and trickster, enlarged and elevated her body.
But Krishna, clinging to her neck, put the weight of three worlds over her, agonising her.
She was overthrown like a mountain and fell down in the solitude with force.
She was treated like the mother’s friend. ...22

Pauri 23 (Demise of Krishna at the hands of a hunter)
Krishna went to Prabhas and slept there, spreading his foot over his knee.
He had the mark of ‘lotus’ on his sacred foot, which twinkled like a star.
The hunter came in search of prey and thinking it a deer, he discharged his arrow.
When he went there and saw Krishna, he lamented and cried.
But Krishna hugged him, the Lord did not think of his demerit.
He graciously comforted him and only thought of his practice of redeeming the sinners.
The good are always considered good, but the Lord sets right even the tasks of wicked.
He redeemed the sinners performing vicious acts. ...23
VAR-XI
One Oaṅkār the Eternal Truth, realized through the grace of divine preceptors

Pauri 1 (Cup to love of the Satguru)
The True Guru is the Sovereign of Sovereigns and I bow before him
The holy congregation is the region of Truth, where he comes and opens the window
The ray of ambrosia passes through it and the musicians play the divine music
In the courts of kings, it is difficult to quaff such a cup of love
The butler causes the drinking there, but here the cup of love brings real intoxication
The devotee moves in devotional love and fear, he is ever inebriated and vigilant
The True Guru is ‘kind to devotees’ and is the store-keeper of devotion. ...1

Pauri 2 (Gurmukh assimilate the mystery of spiritualism)
With one dot only, the meaning changes completely, from pleasure it comes to suffering
The inebriated one effaces the wrong advice of going to others’ homes from his mind
Everything remains secret, he works as totally obedient devotee
The Guruward obtains the essence of love, rising above the body, becoming thoughtful Listening to the Guru’s Word, embodying his spirit, he gets a divine seat in congregation Paying obeisance to the Primal Lord, he absorbs himself in Name at ambrosial hour
The State of the Unmanifested Lord is Unfathomable and His Story is Indescribable
For welfare of others, he undergoes great suffering. ...2

Pauri 3 (Who is the Sikh of the Guru)
The birth of the Guruward is fruitful, who comes to the Guru with other Sikhs Paying obeisance to the Primal Lord, he obtains the sight of the efficacious Guru
He circumambulates him and prostrates before him and bows his head at his lotus-feet.

The True Guru, becoming gracious, gives him the True Mantra ‘Waheguru’.

He gives True conduct to the Sikh, who bows in humility and the world bows to him.

He becomes antagonistic to lust and anger and forsakes greed, attachment and ego.

He stands firmly on truth, contentment, mercy, piety, Name, charity and bath.

On receiving the instructions from the Guru, he is called a Gursikh. ...3

Pauri 4 (Gurmukh)

Absorbing in the awareness of the ‘Word’, he unites with the True Lord in congregation.

He works under Lord’s Will and effaces his ego, but does not exhibit his self.

He abides in Guru’s instruction and is engrossed in the conduct of welfare of others.

He quaffs the cup of love and merges in equipoise, bearing the Unbearable.

He speaks sweetly, remains humble and performs the works of charity.

He meditates on the One Lord single-mindedly and effaces the duality.

The Guruward receives the fruit of bliss and realises his self. ...4

Pauri 5 (Sikh faith)

The discipleship of the Guru is very subtle, like sword’s edge and very narrow alley.

Neither the mosquito can rest on it nor an ant can walk over it.

It is said to finer than hair and harder than getting the sesames’ oil crushed in oil-press.

The Guruward belongs to the clan of swans, whose beak separates water from milk.

The discipleship is like licking the tasteless tablet, he has to pick up the gems and pearls.

To walk on the thorny path of the Guruward, is to rise above the world of hopes.

The congregation is the True region and equipoise-tank, it is the Lord’s True throne.

Mounting the rungs of honour, he unites with the Guru’s ‘Word’ and merges in the Lord.
He tastes the ambrosial sweetness like a dumb, whose story is ineffable and marvellous. The Guruward attains the fruit of bliss spontaneously.

Pauri 6 (Lotus feet of the Guru)

For Guruward the fruit of bliss is love, he washes Guru’s feet and quaffs washings. He enjoys the love-essence of lotus-feet and keep it in the container of bliss. Just as a lakh of lotus flowers blossom to see the rising face of the sun, Just as water-lilies bloom to see the moon, the Sikhs enjoy the coolness of Guru’s feet. The fragrance of Guru’s lotus-feet attracts the lakhs of sun like black-bees. Just as lakhs of stars go into hiding before rising sun and cannot stay. Within the petals of the lotus-feet of the Guru, lakhs of the suns hide as dust-particles. The Gursikhs, receiving the instructions of the Guru, abide in bliss.

Pauri 7 (Example of the unity)

The Guru has turned four castes into one and created divine redness in Gursikhs. He has turned eight metals into one, ending all scriptural differentiations. Like all the fruitful and fruitless vegetation fragranced by the sandalwood. The iron on becoming gold, manifests itself in various ornaments. There is colour and brightness in gold, but the ambrosia of Guru’s feet intoxicates Sikhs. They become immensely brighter than the gleam of gems, pearls, diamonds and gold. Their bodies and vision becomes godly and divine-light shines with ‘Word-awareness’. The Guruwards receive the fruit of bliss and become Essence-incarnate.

Pauri 8 (Love of the Gurmukhs)

The Gursikh is absorbed, in love-essence and ‘Word-awareness’ in congregation. He is absorbed like partridge in moon and the world is imbued with his divine vision. Just as the rain-bird and peacock, listening to thundering of clouds, begin to dance.
The Sikh like bee merges in the container of bliss, while enjoying essence of lotus-feet
In the ocean of bliss the Guruward becomes a fish, whose movement remains untraceable
He quaffs the dripping ambrosia, bears the Unbearable and knows the Unknowable
The Guruward rises above the world and following the discipline eats the fruit of bliss
The greatest merit is the realisation of ‘Waheguru’ (The Lord-God). ...8

Pauri 9 (Love for the Guru)
The tortoise thinks of its egg left in sand and when it matures, it brings its young in river
The crane remembers its young one in absentia and then flies with it in the sky
The infant of duck moves gradually in wonder behind the duck in water and on earth
The nightingale is nourished by the crow, who on recognising its family goes away to it
The family of swans resides at Mansarovar lake and pick up the gems and pearls
The True Guru keeps his Sikh unattached, while absorbed in meditation and Name
The Gursikh remains conscious about the past, present and future and remains humble
This class of Guruwards is excellent, but the people are not conscious of it. ...9

Pauri 10 (Speciality of the Sikh of Guru)
The vegetation, which grows near dwarfish sandalwood, becomes sandal-like Though dwarfish sandalwood does not bear fruit, it is ever called highly qualitative From the dwarfish sandalwood others take its fragrance, but cannot become sandal
All the eight metals which come into contact with philosopher’s stone become gold
But the gold itself cannot transmute others into gold, though used by all everywhere
The streams and brooks, joining Ganges, become like it, but in sea, it becomes saltish
The crane does not become a swan, even if it goes to the Mansarovar lake
All remain the same in ordinary life. ...10

Pauri 11 (Other Examples)
The Guruward rises to the state of equipoise and enjoys in his self the fruit of bliss
The congregation is house of equipoise, where God is remembered, seen and eulogised
Just as the iron, on becoming gold, is only visualised as gold
Just as the bitter margosa tree, abiding near sandalwood, grows like the sandalwood
Just as the washing of the feet joining Ganges, become like Ganges
Just as crow may become a swan, but rarely a swan becomes the ‘supreme swan’
The Guruward, a ‘Supreme swan’, separates the true from false, the milk from water
The Guru works as disciple and the disciple becomes the Guru. ...11

Pauri 12 (Gursikh-assimilation)
Like young one of a tortoise in river, the Sikh remains safe from wave of world-ocean
Like the crane flying with its young one, the Sikh fathoms the absolute trance
Like the young ones of swan in Mansarover, the Sikh abides in the glorious equipoise
Like the young ones of duck and nightingale, the Sikh as Krishna meets God (Vasudev)
Like duck and sun, partridge and moon, the Sikh loves God, rising above duality Like the young one of phoenix, the Sikh understands his identity within his self
The alliance of Guru and Sikh unfolds itself in the awareness and recognition of ‘Word’
The Guruward know how to install and transplant the fruit of bliss. ...12

Bhava Dhir was in Ujjain, he manifested the power of ‘Word’ in holy congregation
There was a gathering of Sikhs in Burhanpur, where eminent Sikhs lived in equipoise
There was the devotee Bhagwan Das and also Bodla free from worldly desires
There were Malik Kataru and Pirthi Mal, the expert surgeons
Bhagtu Chhura and Dallu Reehanai were called Sikhs and received acclamation Sundar and Swami Das both were extenders of their families and bloomed like lotus Bhai Bhikhari of Gujarat, Bhabra and Sulas were also eminent Sikhs
The Guruwards practise devotional love. ...30

Pauri 31 (Sikhs of the Sixth Guru)
In Suhandai town, there lived Maaeaa of Lamb caste, who sang hymns in congregation
The Guruward Chuhar of Chaujhar caste lived in Lucknow and ever remembered Name
The eminent Sikh Bhai Bhana was in Prayag, who rose above the worldly desires
There was an ascetic Jattu in Jaunpur, who ever remained firm in Guru’s discipline
Sabharwal and Nihala lived in Patna, who were quite immaculate men
He, who was called Jaita Seth, he did not know anything else except Guru’s service
Bhanu of Behl caste lived in Raj Mahal and liked devotional love of Guru’s discipline
The eminent Sikhs Sodhi Badli and Seth Gopal comprehended the Guru’s discipline
Sundar of Chadha caste of Agra and Mohan of Dacca preached the Guru’s discipline
I am a sacrifice to the holy congregation. ...31

VAR-XII

One Oaṅkār the Eternal Truth, realized through the grace of divine preceptors

Pauri 1 (The conduct of the Sikhs of ten Guru)
I am a sacrifice to those Gursikhs, who went to have a sight of the Guru
I am a sacrifice to those Gursikhs, who bowed at Sikhs’ feet and sat in congregation
I am a sacrifice to those Gursikhs, who speak sweetly according to Guru’s discipline
I am a sacrifice to those Gursikhs, who consider the beloved fellow-sikhs as sons and friends.
I am a sacrifice to those Gursikhs, who consider the Guru’s service as superb.
I am a sacrifice to those Gursikhs, who achieve redemption and work for world-redemption.
On meeting such Guruwards, all the sins are destroyed. ...1

Pauri 2 (Daily routine of Gursikhs)
I am a sacrifice to those Gursikhs, who get up in the later part of night
I am a sacrifice to those Gursikhs, who take bath in the tank at the ambrosial hour
I am a sacrifice to those Gursikhs, who recite the Guru’s hymns single-mindedly
I am a sacrifice to those Gursikhs, who go to join the holy congregation
I am a sacrifice to those Gursikhs, who always sing and listen to the Guru’s hymns
I am a sacrifice to those Gursikhs, who go to meet the persons of similar bent of mind
I am a sacrifice to those Gursikhs, who in devotional love celebrate Guru’s festive days
They grow and bear fruit in Guru’s service. ...2

Pauri 3 (The heart of the Sikh of the Guru)
I am a sacrifice to him, who, being powerful, exhibits himself powerless
I am a sacrifice to him, who, being venerable, exhibits himself humble
I am a sacrifice to him, who, being wise, exhibits his ignorance
I am a sacrifice to him, who submits to the Will of the Lord
I am a sacrifice to him, who gets allured on seeing the discipline of Guruward
I am a sacrifice to him, who like a guest considers the worldly stay as short-lived
Such a Gursikh is approved in religion, world and God’s Court. ...3

Pauri 4 (Gurmukh is a detached one)
I am a sacrifice to him, who remains humble in heart under Guru’s discipline
I am a sacrifice to him, who does not go near another’s woman
I am a sacrifice to him, who does not touch the wealth belonging to others
I am a sacrifice to him, who keeps himself away from calumniation
I am a sacrifice to him, who practises the instructions of the True Guru
I am a sacrifice to him, who sleeps less and eats less
That Guruward merges in the state of equipoise. ...4
Pauri 5 (Gursikh is a learned person)
I am a sacrifice to him, who considers God and Guru as One
I am a sacrifice to him, who has no duality within himself
I am a sacrifice to him, who is conscious about the vices like virtues
I am a sacrifice to him, who does not speak ill of anyone
I am a sacrifice to him, who dupes himself for the sake of people
I am a sacrifice to him, who feels pleasure in helping others
In the carefree Court, the humble receive respect and the proud get humiliated
The True Guru is recognised through his ‘Word’. ...5

Pauri 6 (Selfless state of the Sikhs)
I am a sacrifice to those Gursikhs, who efface their self on meeting the True Guru
I am a sacrifice to those Gursikhs, who remain unattached in the world of maya
I am a sacrifice to those Gursikhs, who sit at Guru’s feet and follow his discipline
I am a sacrifice to those Gursikhs, who through Guru’s instructions bring a Sikh to Guru
I am a sacrifice to those Gursikhs, who restrain their outgoing mind
I am a sacrifice to those Gursikhs, who remain unattached with the world of hopes Such Gursikhs firmly establish the Guru’s instructions in others’ minds. ...6

Pauri 7 (Brahma’s mischief)
Brahma calls himself greater and merged into the tube of the navel-lotus
He strayed up and down for several ages and ultimately got puzzled
He tried his best, but exhibiting his self, he strayed in illusion
The four-headed god recited all the four Vedas and considered himself very wise
Though he instructed the people, but on seeing Sarsvati, he was allured by his beauty
He lost all the four Vedas and repented because of his ego
Ultimately, he said that Lord-God is Indescribable and ‘Neti, neti’ (not that). ...7
Pauri 8 (Feats of the ten incarnations)
Vishnu manifested himself in ten incarnations and killed the criminals and tyrants
He became a fish, a tortoise, a boar, a man-lion; a dwarf and Buddha
He came as Parsurama, Rama and Krishna, he will come as Kalki to kill egoistic tyrants
Parsurama killed Kshatriyas 21 times, ‘Ramayana’ and ‘Mahabharata’ recorded wars
The lust and anger could not be conquered, the greed, attachment and ego were not killed
The True Guru could not be contacted and they could not be united with congregation Therefore they indulged in egoistic vicious actions. ...8

Pauri 9 (Maha Dev, Shiva)
Though Mahadev became a Yogi, but he was subjected to mode of morbidity
He was involved wrongfully with Bhairo, ghosts and Khetrapala
He ate wild plants and weeds and passed his nights in cremation grounds
He wore the skin of elephants and tigers and wonderfully played on tabor
He was called the Nath of Naths and did not enjoy the divine ecstasy in humility
He, of ‘tamasic’ mode, destroyed the world and knew not the way of Yoga or pleasure
The Guruwards realise the fruit of bliss in congregation. ...9

Pauri 10 (Indr and Brahmā)
The god Indra has a long life and he rules in Inderpuri
When fourteen Indras are dead, only one day of Brahma passes.
When Brahma dies working, only one hair of the sage Lomas is worn out Seshinaga and Shiva are said to be live long, but they do not attain peace of mind
The Yoga-practices, luxuries, austerities, recitations and meditations do not please God
No one can realise the state of Equipoise if the selfish not effaced. ...10
Pauri 11 (Rishi Nārad and others)
The well-known sage Nārada knew the Scriptural texts, but had no forbearance
He heard counsels in Courts and passed them on as tell-tales
Sanak etc. had Children's intellect and thus could not achieve Supreme spiritual state
When once they went to heaven, they cursed the watchmen Jai and Bijai forcibly in ire
Because of his ego Sukhdev had to remain in amazement in the womb
The sun and moon are engrossed by flaws and thus they are busy in rising and setting
The duality of Shiva and Shakti creates ego and fall. ...11

Pauri 12 (The celibates and virtuous etc.)
The celibates, truthful and contented did not know celibacy, truth and contentment
The adepts and Naths started many sects and becoming egoistic perform miracles
All the four castes, because of illusion, are destroyed, clashing amongst themselves
People are absorbed in six Shastras and their followers are divided into twelve sects
The Guruward becomes casteless amongst castes and are imbued with divine betel hue
Within six seasons and twelve months, the Guruward is sighted with sun’s effulgence
The Guruwards realise the True Love as fruit of Bliss. ...12

Pauri 13 (The earth and Tree)
Gathering all the five elements, the Earth was created as the favourite abode of Piety
The Earth was placed in water and the water placed within the Earth
The trees have the heads downwards and abide in forests with firm mind
They bear fruit benevolently, they impart fruit to the world even when pelted with stones
Just as the vegetation grown near the sandalwood spreads fragrance like the sandal
The Guruwards, in ‘Word-awareness’ in congregation get sweet hymns as fruit of bliss
The story and condition of the Guruwards is immensely indescribable. ...13

Pauri 14 (The devotees like Dhruv)

Dhruva, Prehlad, Vibhishana, Ambrik, Bali and Janak are said to be Lord’s great devotees Being princes and belonging to royal families, they were amazedly tied with royal hopes Dhruva was agonised by step-mother and Prehlad was oppressed by his father Vibhishana obtained kingdom by divulging the secret and Ambrik was lured by discuss Putting his foot in the cauldron, Janak forced hypocrisy in Dharma
One loses on effacing his self, but with humility he receives honour in Lord’s Court
The Guruward obtains honour, approval and fruit of bliss. ...14

Pauri 15 (Low born selfless devotees)

In Kaliyuga the saint Namdev reversed the temple and revived the cow
The saint Kabir is said to have vanished from the prison
The Jat Dhanna was redeemed and also the butcher Sadhna of low caste
The cobbler saint Ravidas was praised by all the four castes
The saint Beni was a spiritualist and Sain of low caste belonged to barbers’ clan
The Sikhs of the Guru become the dust of feet in humility and realise equipoise
The Guruwards comprehend the Incomprehensible and do not exhibit their selves. ...15

Pauri 16 (Superiority of the Kaliyuga, the dark age)

Satyuga is said to be the superb Age, when for the evil done by one, the country suffered
In Treta Yuga, the town, suffered and in the Dwapara Yuga, the whole family was afflicted
There is true justice in Kaliyuga, the evil-doer only suffers for his deed
The Transcendent Lord is Perfect and ‘Word-awareness’ of True Guru is Guru and Sikh
The Sikh gets firm about Name, Charity and Bath and meets congregation very early
He speaks sweetly, works with humility, gives charity and thus attains Equipoise State
The sincere love is the fruit of bliss for the Guruward. ...16

Pauri 17 (Vāhīgurū Mantr)
The Unmanifested Lord became manifest putting His Unique Light within the world
The Absolute Lord, Who is beyond the ken of Vedas and Katebs related ‘Guru Word’
All the four castes of Hindus and four sects of Muslims, took shelter at Guru’s lotus feet
The separated world contacting philosopher’s stone transmuted eight metals into one Causing it to bow at Guru’s feet, the incurable ailment of ego was effaced Thus the cart-track of Guruwards was started, in which the Sikh works under God’s Will
The Perfect Lord has created the Perfect Splendour. ...17

Pauri 18 (Description of the Gurmukh)
The philanthropists, devoid of birth and death, have come into the world
They instructed about devotional love and founded the congregation as region of Truth
The Guruward as ‘Supreme Swan’ abiding in Manasarvar is absorbed in ‘Guru’s Word’
The fruitful and fruitless vegetation near the sandalwood is fragranced by the sandal
The Guruward is like a ship in the sea of existence and he takes one across like family
He remains above the waves of the sea and beyond the impact of maya
The Guruward merges in the state of Equipoise, which is his fruit of bliss. ...18

Pauri 19 (To bear the unbearable)
Blessed are the Guru and his Sikh, who have paid obeisance to the Primal Purusha
The sight of the True Guru is blessed and that vision is blest which meditates on Guru
The ‘Word’ of the True Guru is blest and the awareness of Guru’s gnosis is blest
The Guru’s lotus-feet are blest and the forehead which bows before them is also blest
The Guru’s instruction is blest and the heart in which Guru’s mantra abides is also blest
The washing of the Guru’s feet is blest and that time is blest, when this nectar is drunk
The Guruward attains the fruit of bliss and bears the unbearable. ...

Pauri 20 (Grandeur of the holy congregation)
The congregation is the ocean of bliss, the glory of whose waves is measureless
The Guru’s instructions are invaluable gems, pearls and diamonds
The valuable music is like Unstruck melody and absorption in ‘Word’ is inaccessible
All the powers and treasures are like women-slaves and the four substances are slaves
Lakhs of moons are lamps and lakhs of nectars are decanted and quaffed
Lakhs of wish-fulfilling cows graze and lakhs of Elysian trees stand firmly in the forest
The Guruwards obtain indescribable fruit of bliss. ...

VAR–XIII
One Oaṅkār the Eternal Truth, realized through the grace of divine preceptors

Pauri 1 (Guru and disciple)
To be the disciples of preceptor, is very difficult, some rare one knows it
One is called the preceptor of preceptors and Guru of Gurus
The Guru is disciple and disciple is Guru, it sounds marvellous
The same is the Guru and the same a Sikh, the light merges in light
One is Guru and one is Sikh, the ‘Guru’s Word’ recognises it
The grace and love are united, the fear and love are kept under God’s Will. ...
Pauri 2 (Making of the Guru by the Guru)
From one Gursikh, another Gursikh is created, but rarely a preceptor from preceptor
The ‘Word’ is Guru and ‘awareness’ is disciple, in which abides God Himself
The vision of a Sikh mediates on the sight of the Guru and scans Guru’s image Absorbed in ‘Word-awareness’, the Sikh sings and reflects in holy congregation ‘Waheguru’ is the mantra of the Guru, remembering which the ego is effaced
One knows himself on effacing his self and virtues are stringed by the virtuous. ...2

Pauri 3 (Fortunately the elaboration of the Primal)
With the union of ‘sight’ and ‘vision’, the fear and love are united
The ‘Word-awareness’ brings non-attachment and healthy bliss of equipoise
His condition is of chief Yogis, who has no illusion of mind, speech and action
He quaffs the cup of love and enjoys ambrosial essence
He obtains knowledge, meditation and remembrance and quaffs the bliss-giving nectar. ...3

Pauri 4 (Elixir of love)
How can a Guruward describe the essence of love, his fruit of bliss
After listening and speaking repeatedly, he does not comprehend the taste
Brahma, Vishnu and Shiva together describe it in Vedas and Puranas
All the four Semitic texts in Islam speak about it
Seshinaga remembers it in beautiful songs
The innumerable seekers listening to the Unstruck melodies, remain amazed
The Lord, Who is ‘Neti, neti’ and Indescribable, causes it to be quaffed under His Will. ...4

Pauri 5 (As above)
All the six tastes remain amazed regarding Guruward’s love-essence, his fruit of bliss
All the thirty-six ambrosias yearn for it and feel highly astonished
There may be thousand ambrosian currents, all in fear and amazement
The channels of Ira, Pingla and Sukhmana with recitation of ‘Soham’ do not approach it
The Guruward rising above the world obtains its approval
None can speak while drinking, then how can he speak about it. ...5
Pauri 6 (Description of the carefree)

The taste can not be known through words, as long as the mouth is empty
How can we speak, when the mouth is full? Only the tongue enjoys relish Absorbed in ‘Word-awareness’ and Name, the Guruward does not look anywhere else
Engrossed in his thoughts, one does not think of good or bad path
Though he wavers in his gail, his discipline is unique
The rising moon cannot be hidden, though we try to cover its light with earthen vessel. ...6

Pauri 7 (Elixir of love)

Lakhs of Agar (Guleria Agallocha) be added to lakhs of dwarfish sandal tree
Lakhs of camphors musks and ambars (a perfume-ambergris) may spread fragrance
Lakhs of Gaure-Med be mixed with the shining saffron
Mixing all these incenses, they may be distilled
Lakhs of distilled spirits be kept with flower scented oil alongwith garden flowers
All these cannot equal the fragrance of love attained by Guruward as fruit of bliss. ...7

Pauri 8 (Joy of love)

Lakhs of beautifil unique forms, which abide in the abode of Indra
Lakhs of all types of colours, which are found in heaven
Lakhs of blooming youths, lakhs of embellishments and lakhs of attractive costumes
Lakhs of lamps, lakhs of stars, moons and suns
Lakhs of pearls and rubies and lakhs of brilliantly shining gems
All of them do not equal the resplendence of love attained by Guruward as fruit of bliss. ...8

Pauri 9 (As above)

Four ends of human action and lakhs and crores of powers and treasures
Lakhs of philosopher’s stones, lakhs of Elysian trees with lakhs of Lakshmis
Lakhs of wish-fulfilling gems, wish-fulfilling cows and four types of forces
Lakhs of invaluable rubies, pearls and diamonds
Lakhs of Kailash mountains and lakhs of Sumeru mountains and lakhs of kings
The value of all these does not equal the love attained by Guruward as fruit of bliss. ...9

Pauri 10 (The drop of the cup of love)
In the world of lakhs of waves, the Guruward attains the fruit of bliss
There are lakhs of rivers merging in themselves lakhs of waves
There are lakhs of rivers falling in the sea and lakhs of holy Ganges
There are lakhs of seas in great ocean of many colours
There are lakhs of great oceans in the wave and lakhs of tear-drops of Guruward
For the Guruward, quaffing the cup of love, there is nothing good or bad. ...10

Pauri 11 (The infinity)
The Transcendent Lord created the expanse with one ‘Word’ and uttered ‘Oankaar’
From ‘Oankaar’ lakhs of figures manifested and the universe was created Lakhs were created from five elements and the three worlds were splendidly fashioned Water, plains, mountains, fruit-bearing trees and rivers were created Lakhs of rivers, when merged together did not weigh equal to a sesame seed
The nature is unweighable and unaccountable
When the nature cannot be evaluated, who can then evaluate the Creator? ...11

Pauri 12 (One drop of the cup of love)
The fruit of bliss of the Guruward is the Indescribable essence of love, O brother!
Whose expanse is endless and unapproachable
It has no beginning and no end and its excellence is supreme
It is Unfathomable, having merged in the ‘Fathomless’
Who can evaluate one drop from the cup of love?
It is highly Inaccessible, only the Guru cause the Imperceptible to be realised. ...12

Pauri 13 (One moment of the joy of love)
The fruit of bliss of the Guruward is love-essence, whose minutest part is Unknowable
In eighty-four lakh species, there are numberless beings
There are many types of hair and marks on all of them
If in every pore there be lakhs of heads and lakhs of mouths
In lakhs of these mouths there be tongues and there be powers to listen, speak and see
All of these countless ones cannot equal Guruward’s one moment of fruit of bliss. ...13

Pauri 14 (How the joy of love is attained)
The Guruward obtains love-essence as his fruit of bliss after meeting the Guru
Which ever remains fresh in his ‘Word-awareness’ Rising above the world, the Sikh and Guru become one
The Sikh still quaffs the nectar, bears the Unbearable and remains in Guru’s service
He effaces his self while living and conquers the world in utter humility
It is like licking the tasteless tablet, but he is rewarded with lakhs of ambrosias. ...14

Pauri 15 (Living up to one’s natural repute)
The water, responsible for the growth of wood, does not cause it to sink in itself
After getting the saw to be placed over its head, it runs over the head of water as ships
When the ship is studded with iron and filled with weighty things, the water still keeps it
There is fire within the wood, but the water still shields the wood
It deliberately causes the wood of Agra to sink in it in order to enhance its value
Therefore the Guruward like wood follows its discipline leaving all other by-paths. ...15

Pauri 16 (Diamond)
The invaluable diamond is brought out after digging the mine
That serious and serene precious stone comes in the hands of jewellers
The kings and ministers look at it in their Courts
Its value is fixed after assaying it and the mind of the kings is satisfied
It is assayed on putting it on the anvil and striking hammer over its body
Like this only a rare one stands the test in the Courts of Gurus and preceptors. ...16
Pauri 17 (The path of the Gurmukhs)
After quaffing the cup of love the drowned one swims and the swimmer gets drowned
The conqueror is defeated and the defeated one conquers, this is the Guruward’s way
The path is on the edge of the sword, when there is ever the fear of the sea of existence
The discipline of the Guru is unique, which is said to be finer than hair
The ego is very heavy like Vajra (meteorite) and the vicious intellect is calamitous
In the Guru’s discipline, the self is effaced and the Sikh moves in comfort. ...17

Pauri 18 (Like the banyan tree the Gursikhs preach Nām)
The banyan seed penetrates into the earth, where its roots grow
It comes out as a glossy plant and its stub and branches grow
The tree extends its appearance with many of its hanging offshoots like matted locks
These offshoots mixing with earth grow again like stubs
The dense shade, the beautiful leaves and lakhs of fruit are observed
In every fruit there are many seeds—this is the secret of a Gursikh. ...18

Pauri 19 (Guru in the form of tree)
One is a Sikh, two are a congregation and within five there is Lord-God Himself
The zero with nine numerals becomes countless and zero-Shunya creates incarnations Rising above the world, there are countless redeemed Sikhs
In every city there are thousands of Sikhs and in every country there are lakhs of them
From one tree there are lakhs of fruit and within these fruit there are lakhs of seeds
The Sikhs absorbed in enjoyment, are kings and the Sikhs absorbed in Name are saints. ...19

Pauri 20 (A wealthy banker)
The love of the preceptor and disciples is like that of shopkeeper and customers
The commodity of Name is only in one shop, where the people of world come Someone sell of kauris and someone comes to collect the money
Someone purchases gold for rupees and goes to the goldsmith for assaying it After praising them, someone purchases the gems
The dealing should be done with trustworthy shopkeeper, who stands the test. ...20
Pauri 21 (Satiguru the bomber)
The commodity is available in one shop and the shopkeeper is the Perfect True Guru
Who takes away the vices and sells virtues and who is the keeper of his words
He makes the fruitless Simmal tree fruitful and who transmutes the dross into gold
He fragrances the bamboo plant like sandalwood and transforms a crow into swan
The owl is enabled to view the sun and the conchshell becomes an ornament
The Lord-God, beyond the Vedas and Kateba, His presence is felt through ‘Guru’s Word’. ...21

Pauri 22 (Praise of the Guru)
Though lakhs of praises are uttered, none can actually praise Lord-God
Though lakhs of eulogies are sung, but one is amazed for Lord’s Eulogy
Though lakhs of panegyrics are made, but none can write the Panegyric of Lord-God
Though lakhs of laudations are made, but real Laudation is not recognised
I bow in Obeisance to the Primal Purusha, who has honoured a humble person like me. ...22

Pauri 23 (Praise of the Guru and His Grandeur)
Lakhs of advices, lakhs of intellects and lakhs of wisdoms
Lakhs of devices, lakhs of cleverness and lakhs of understanding awarenesses Lakhs of knowleges, lakhs of meditations and lakhs of remembrances Lakhs of learnings, lakhs of deity’s japas’ and lakhs of gains from Tantras and mantras
Lakhs of enjoyments, lakhs of devotions united with lakhs of redemptions
Just as the stars and the darkness vanishes at day-dawn,
Similarly the ‘Guru’s love’ helps in the attainment of the fruit of bliss by the Guruward. ...23

Pauri 24 (Praises of Vāhiguru)
All the wonders seeing the Lord-God’s Wonder, feel amazed
Like this lakhs of ecstasies and lakhs of miraculous acts get astonished Lakhs of marvellous and miracle-performing people wonder on seeing Lord’s Will That lord is Indescribable, Unfathomable and Beyond Understanding His story is Incommunicable, He is Beyond all Meditations and ‘Neti, neti’(not that)
My Obeisance is to that Primal Purusha and I am a sacrifice to His Nature. ...24

Pauri 25 (Remembering the six Gurus)
Guru Nanak Dev is the Manifestation of the Transcendent and Perfect Lord
Guru Angad was created from his limb and merged in the ‘True Word’
From Guru Angad, Guru Amar Das attained the Unknowable Supreme State
From Guru Amar Das, Guru Ram Das realised the Undeceivable Lord
From Guru Ram Das, Guru Arjan Dev became absorbed in the Everlasting Lord Guru Hargobind was the Lord Himself, the cause of causes. ...25

VAR–XIV
One Oaṅkār the Eternal Truth, realized through the grace of divine preceptors

Pauri 1 (Satiguru the pride of the lowly)
The True Name of the True Guru is known to the Guruward
The congregation is the True Place, where the ‘Word’ is uttered
The True Justice is in God’s Court, where water and milk are separately filtered
With the support of the Guru in his refuge, the service is rendered
The ‘Word-awareness’ be brought within the heart on listening and singing about it
I am a sacrifice to him, who has honoured a humble person like me. ...1

Pauri 2 (Congregation of the Sikhs of the Guru)
The Sikhs of all the four castes come in the congregation
The Path of the Guruward is very difficult, which cannot be estimated Even the sweet ambrosia does not equal divine singing
All the four ends of human action can be attained by begging for them
The gain from remembrance of ‘Word’ is accountless and indescribable
The Guruward becomes conscious about past and future and he does not exhibit his self. ...2
Pauri 3 (To have the glimpse of inaccessible)
I bow before the Primal Purusha, who, though Unknowable, has made Himself known
He has manifested Himself through Unstruck melody and moulded the Unmouldable
He abides in the congregation and causes the quaffing of ambrosia
The Perfect Guru has firmly established Truth through his instruction
The Guruwards are dressed like kings, but the maya has no impact on them
Brahma, Vishnu and Shiva could, not even have the sight of Lord-God. ...3

Pauri 4 (Brahma, Vishnu, Mahesa)
There were ten incarnations of Vishnu, who caused the repetition of their own Name Continuously killing the demons, they increased the strife
Brahma, after serious reflections, uttered the Vedas
There was ego in his mind and he created the world
Mahadev, though absorbed in meditation, adopted the quality of morbidity
Only the Guruward attains the gate of salvation, on effacing his self. ...4

Pauri 5 (Sanak and Sukhdev et. al)
Narada caused others to call him a sage, but he talked to others
He was therefore announced ‘unbelievable’ and was called a tell-tale
He went to the house of Sanak and others and exhibited anger
For his redemption, the ten incarnations wasted their births
The mother, who gave birth to him for comfort, did undergo suffering
But the Guruward only ate the fruit of bliss and bore the Unbearable. ...5

Pauri 6 (The Earth)
The earth in utter humility absorbed her mind towards the feet of all Quaffing the essence of the lotus-feet, she effaced her self
She has become the dust of the feet of three worlds, which is desired by all
She has adopted forbearance and contentment as her discipline
Stringing herself with the conduct of life, she gives sustenance to all
She is submissive to Lord’s will, therefore Guruwards take birth over her. ...6

Pauri 7 (Description of water)
The water is within the earth and the earth is within water
It does not hesitate to go the lower levels, therefore it is considered pure
It bears the great pull towards the lowest strata
It is so much amiable that it becomes one with everything and adopts all colours
When mixes, it does not separate itself, therefore it has the recognition of the Lord
It mixes with others for welfare, which is the saintly conduct. ...7

Pauri 8 (Description of the tree)
The tree grows on the earth with its head downward
It bears suffering, but gives comfort to the world
When pelted with stones, it gives fruit and removes hunger
Its dense shade gives delight and amuses the mind
When men come to cut it, it gets chopped
Such Guruwards are rare, who submit to Lord’s Will. ...8

Pauri 9 (Other gifts of the tree)
With the help of the tree, the house is thatched and a column is placed On putting its head under the saw, it causes the ship to be built
When studded with the iron, it causes the boatful to be swum over Though there be lakhs of waves in the river, they are crossed over
The Sikhs of the Guru observe devotional love and fear alongwith repetition of ‘Word’
They likewise cause lakhs to be crossed over on the ship of Lord’s Name. ...9

Pauri 10 (Examples of Sesame seed)
The sesame-seed is crushed in the oil-press and oil is extracted
That oil is burnt in the lamp, which removes the darkness
The ink of the burnt oil is put in the inkpot, with which ‘the word’ is written
The instruction of that writing is further written and elucidated as the praise of accountless Lord
The Guruward effaces his self and practises the repetition of the ‘Word’ Absorbing himself in the antimony of knowledge, he merges in the state of Equipoise. ...10

Pauri 11 (Animal is setter than a Manmukh, the mind-oriented)
Grazing only grass, the animal gives milk, but does not show himself
From that milk, the curd is congealed and the ghee is produced
The cowdung is daubed and the urine of cow is worshipped
But the human being consuming thirty-six types of tasteful dishes, turns them into faeces
But the Sikh, who goes to the congregation and meditates on the True Guru
His coming into the world is fruitful and he attains the fruit of bliss. ...11
Pauri 12 (Gurmukhs tolerate sufferings like cotton)
The cotton undergoes suffering and accepts the Will of God
It is rolled into a cotton gin and then it is carded
After that it is moved by the carding -bow and the cotton-yarn is spun
The weaver then throwing his pipe weaves the cloth
Then it is steamed in the washerman’s copper, after which it is washed in water
Ultimately it is worn by the chiefs and kings and makes the society delightful. ...12

Pauri 13 (Gurmukhs engage in service)
It may be known that the root of madder gets ground itself
It does not forsake its original colour, whatever its shape is The sugarcane is chopped unhesitatingly and gets crushed itself
It does not spoil its taste and the ambrosia drips out of it
It is then enjoyed as jaggery, brown sugar and in several other ways
Similarly the saint does not back out for the welfare of the world. ...13

Pauri 14 (Like iron discarding ego, one sees the self)
The iron is put in the furnace and heated
Then it is put on the anvil and hammered, bearing a great suffering
It is moulded clean like glass and evaluated
It is then put on the rough grindstone and its limb is sharpened
Then putting it under the feet, sharp-edged weapons are burnished
The Guruward similarly effaces his self and manifests his real nature. ...14

Pauri 15 (Like rebeck gurmukh after attain Sahaj State)
After chopping a good tree, the rebec is fashioned
The goat is mercilessly killed and its flesh is distributed
The chord is made from its intestines and its skin is used for encasing the rebec
When it comes to the congregation, the music is played Creating the colourful tunes, the hymns are sung
There the Guruward meditates on the True Guru and merges in the state of Equipoise. ...15
Pauri 16 (Description of Sandal tree)
The tree of sandal is grown in the forest
It remains unknown unless the wind passes over it
It fragrances other trees with its incense, which is its real test
All of them, good or bad, lose their own identity
Similarly in the congregation, observing fear and love, and tasting the ambrosia
The Guruward manifests his love spontaneously. ...16

Pauri 17 (Service of the Gursikhs)
The Sikhs of the Guru render their services to other Sikhs
They give in alms all the four ends of human action to their humble fellows
They sing the hymns of the Lord, Who is Unaccountable and Inexpressible
The sweetest essence of devotional love drips like ambrosia
Which is unequalled in past and future and cannot be evaluated
Not even an iota of Guruward’s path is comparable to anything. ...17

Pauri 18 (Reward of the Service of Gursikhs) Lakhs of the kingdoms of the abode of Indra cannot equal the merit of filling and serving water Lakhs of the comforts of the highest heavens cannot equal the merit of grinding corn
Lakhs of the powers, treasures and paraphernalia cannot equal the merit of serving in kitchen
The holy congregation is supporter of the humble, which brings great humility
The singing of the hymns of the Gurus is the echo of the Unstruck melody. ...18

Pauri 19 (Rewards of Service)
Lakhs of offerings, sacrifices and enjoyments do not equal the merit of eating grams
Going to holy places and attending festivals do not equal the merit of washing the feet
Lakhs of knowledges, meditations and Yoga practices do not equal the merit of singing the hymns
That Sikh, who visits the congregation becomes free from any illusion and sorrow
He remains healthy in the ocean of existence and no wave can bring fear to him Passing through the experience of meeting and separation, the Guru’s discipline is realised. ...19
Pauri 20 (Infinite reward of the Service)
The seed is sown in the earth, which expands a thousand times
Similarly something put in the mouth of a Gursikh brings in an unaccountable reward
Whatever is sown in the earth, the fruit is obtained accordingly
But if something is put in the mouth of a Gursikh, all the fruits are obtained
Nothing is reaped and enjoyed without sowing
But even the desire of serving Gursikhs in the mind, brings in the desired fruit. ...20

VAR–XV
One Oanákār the Eternal Truth, realized through the grace of divine preceptors

Pauri 1 (Praise of the True Guru)
The True Guru is the True Sovereign and all other sovereigns of the world are false
The True Guru is the Nath of the Naths and other nine Naths are patronless and placeless
The True Guru is the True Donor and other donors move behind him
The True Guru is the Creator and other Purushas performing bad deeds remain nameless
The True Guru is the True treasurer and other treasurers are highly untrustworthy
The True Guru is the True doctor and all other doctors are false Without the True Guru all are Guruless. ...1

Pauri 2 (As above)
The True Guru is known as the holy shrine, all other sixty-eight shrines come under his shelter
The True Guru is the indistinguishable god and other gods get redemption on serving the Guru
With the touch of philosopher’s stone like True Guru, lakhs of such stones bedeck his feet’s dust
The True Guru is the Perfect Elysian tree, under whom lakhs of such trees become fruitful
The True Guru is the ocean of bliss, who causes his Sikhs to listen to his most precious instruction
The feet of the True Guru are the wish-fulfilling jewels, which make other such jewels worryless
Without the True Guru all are in duality. ...2

Pauri 3 (Creation of the Human body)
In the eighty-four lakh species, the superb birth is that of a human being With eyes he sees all around and with tongue speaks formless words
With ears he listens with attention and with nose he smells through friendly breaths
With hands he works and with feet he walks with the support of his internal light
The birth of the Guruward is fruitfull and the self-willed person is foolish without intellect
Forgetting the Creator he only relies on the support of man in his mind
He is worse than even animals and ghosts. ...3

Pauri 4 (Man slave of man, the position of Manmukh)
Forsaking the real master, his True Guru, the self-willed person becomes the serviteur of man
Becoming an obedient servant, he ever goes to pay obeisance
He stands in the presence of his master all the time with folded hands
He has no sleep, no hunger and no comfort and is always fearful of the noose over his head
He bears great suffering from water, coldness, sunshine and shade over his head
In the battlefield he sees gun-firing and sword-rattling and getting wounded, he breathes his last Without the True Guru, he takes birth and dies in various species. ...4

Pauri 5 (Condition of the split-ears)
They do nor remember the Nath of Naths and are patronless amongst many Gurus and disciples
They get their ears ripped and besmear their bodies with ashes, they carry quilt, bowl and staff
They beg at every door and play with others on their musical instruments
They enjoy the cup of wine jointly in their meals and the adepts and seekers gather in Shivratri fair
They follow their twelve sects and suffer greatly in their twelve paths
They are not redeemed without ‘Guru’s Word’, they are like jugglers playing jugglery
They are like blind ones driving the blind ones to fall in well. ...5

Pauri 6 (Weeping and wailing without the perfect Guru)

Forgetting the True Donor, they go to beg from the beggars
The minstrels sing the ballads of praise in which they appreciate the warriors involved in enmities
The barbers sing the invitations about persons who died committing bad deeds
The poets recite their stanzas and speak only their false concoctions
The priests adopt the custom of enhancing their love and then begging for alms
Some of them frighten with their carvers and fly like birds begging from one place to another
Without the Perfect Guru they wail and weep loudly. ...6

Pauri 7 (The fake relations)

They have not remembered the Creator and consider the created one as the creator
The wife loves her husband, the son to his father and the grandson to his grandfather
The daughter and sisters honour their fathers and brothers, they feel happy and become angry with them
The in-laws, the parents and the maternal relatives are merely forced relations
Their conduct and behaviour get the approval and honour in the reflections of the elders.
At deathbed none recognises or accompanies one, while falling in the noose of death
Without the support of the Perfect Guru they proceed to the abode of Yama. ...7

Pauri 8 (False traders)

Except the Unfathomable banker, the True Guru, all other bankers and their customers are false
The traders trade in the great sale and purchase of horses
The Jewellers, who assay the jewels and extensively trade in diamonds and gems
Here are many jewellers and drapers, who deal in gold, silver, cloth and muslin. There are agriculturists doing works of agriculture, sowing, reaping and gathering the corn. There is profit and loss, the boon and the curse and the reflections on union and separation. Without the Perfect Guru there is suffering in the world. ...8

_Pauri 9 (Without the perfect Guru all physicians are fake)_

He has not remembered the True Guru as Doctor, the ailing doctor cannot efface the ailment. Indulging in lust, anger, greed, attachment and duality, he increases the malice. He continues to die and take birth in all types of ailments and undergoes great suffering. He comes, goes and rotated in the sea of existence, whose limits he does not know. He does not get peace in hopes, alluring desires, morbidity and cravings. On putting oil in the burning fire, how can the foolish man extinguish the fire? Who can cause him to get release without the Perfect Guru? ...9

_Pauri 10 (Fake pilgrimage centres)_

Forsaking the holy shrine of the True Guru, he goes to take bath at the sixty-eight holy shrines. Sitting in a trance like a crane he devours the beings after squeezing them. The elephant is bathed in water, but coming out it he causes to fly the dust. The gourd does not sink in the river and the holy shrine does not remove its bitterness. If the stone is washed in water, its hard heart is not softened. The illusion of the self-willed person is not cast off and he stray in perplexity. Without the support of the Perfect Guru, he cannot achieve redemption. ...10

_Pauri 11 (True Guru is philosopher's stone)_

He forsakes the Philosopher's stone of True Guru and merely goes away to seek the stone. After transmuting eight metals into one, he conceals himself and does not exhibit himself.
The mammon-worshipper, getting dejected goes to seek this stone and only strays in illusion
His hands are blackened with the touch of mammon and by his inner darkness he is allured by greed
When caught, he is punished by the State and even bears punishment in the abode of Yama
The birth of this self-willed person is useless, he wastes it in the foul trick of duality
The illusion does not leave him without the Perfect Guru. ...11

Pauri 12 (Guru, the wish fulfilling tree)
Forsaking the Elysian tree of the Guru, he goes to beg the false fruit from the Elysian tree
Lakhs of Elysian trees along with heaven get disgraced in the cycle of transmigration
People have died away in desires and absorbed in material enjoyments they have destroyed themselves
In greed they have risen to the sky as stars, but ultimately, being shaken, they break and fall down
And become fathers and mothers of many and children of many
They sow the seeds of virtue and vice and only remain pleased with reaping fruits of pleasure and pain
The Lord is not pleased without the adoption of the Perfect Guru. ...12

Pauri 13 (Without true Guru hard times are there)
Forsaking the Guru as ocean of bliss, the self-willed persons stray in the sea of existence
They are overthrown by the surges and get burnt in the fire of ego
They are tied and beaten in the abode of Yama and driven by the blows and jolts of his messengers
Their stay in the meadow of world is short-lived and they proclaim themselves as prophets
No one considers himself small and is absorbed in amazing personal anxiety
They undergo hard labour and inconvenience as the pearl-divers of sea
Without the support of the Perfect Guru they only rely on the staffs. ...13
Pauri 14 (Enjoyments increase fire of lust)
They forsake the wish-fulfilling gem of the Guru, but their anxieties are not removed by mere gem
They have lakhs of anxieties during night and day and the fire of desire does not remove their fear
They have great deal of gold and silver and they wear gems and jewels on their limbs
They dress themselves in silken raiments and get fragranced with sandal, agallochum, saffron and musk
They ride on saddled elephants and horses, live in palaces and have orchards of fruit and flowers
They enjoy the beds with elegant wives and are engrossed in the malicious attachment of maya
Just like putting the oil on burning fire, they pass through sufferings created by hopes and desires
Without the support of the Perfect Guru, they go to the abode of Yama. ... 14

Pauri 15 (Description of Nature)
There are lakhs of holy shrines lakhs of gods, lakhs of philosopher’s stones and lakhs knowing alchemy
There are lakhs of wish-fulfilling gems, Elysian trees and cows along with lakhs of ambrosias
There are many oceans with gems, many kings with glory of powers and treasures
There are lakhs of substances, fruits and treasures under their command
There are lakhs of kings, lakhs of Sovereigns and lakhs of pleasing Naths and incarnations
The gifts of the Lord cannot be evaluated, who can count the Gifts of the Great Donor?
We are a sacrifice to the Creator and His creation. ... 15

Pauri 16 (Guru disciple, disciple Guru)
Every one looks at the gems, but a rare one is the assayer of gems
Every one listens to the voice of music, but a rare one understands the ‘Word-awareness’
The Gursikhs are the substances like gems and like beads of rosary in congregation
The diamond perforates the diamond and realisation comes with the union of ‘Word’ and ‘Awareness’
The Gursikh then gets the recognition of Transcendent and Perfect Brahman as God and Guru
The fruit of bliss of Guruward is the home of Equipoise, he knows and makes known the cup of love
The Guru is disciple and the disciple becomes the Guru...

Pauri 17 (Success of the organs)
The birth of human being is invaluable, but on joining the congregation it becomes more invaluable
Both the eyes are invaluable, which have a sight of the True Guru and are absorbed in his meditation
The forehead and head are invaluable, which take shelter at Guru's feet and are glorified by their dust
The tongue and ears are invaluable, which listen, understand and relate the 'Word-awareness'
The hands and feet are invaluable, which render service of the path of Guruward
The heart of Guruward is invaluable, which absorbs within itself the Guru's instruction
If such a Guruward if weighed, his honour has the Approval of the Lord.

Pauri 18 (Gifts of God and our mistakes)
He was conceived by the contact of blood and semen, what a charming and amazing play is created?
He was placed in the tank of womb, then the soul was put in it and the body was built beautifully
The mouth, eyes, nose, ears, hands, feet, teeth and hair were fashioned With eyesight, speech, activity and awareness, it got allured by music, colour and essence.
The superb clan and the superb birth were given with the required pores in every limb
In childhood, the milk was given to drink and the conduct of faeces and urine began
When he became older and wiser, he forsook the Creator and clung to the created Without the support of the Perfect Guru, he was allured by maya...
Pauri 19 (With Guru man is in transmigration)
The animals and ignorant ghosts are better than the body of a self-willed person
Though in consciousness, the man ignorantly looks towards the man
The animal does not beg anything from the animal and similar is the case with birds
Among the eighty-four lakh species, the human birth is considered superb
Though he is superb in mind, speech and action, he undergoes transmigration in sea of existence
Being a king or his subject, he experiences sufferings in all conditions
Even if the dog is seated on the throne, he still goes to lick the handmill in darkness
Without the support of the True Guru, one goes to abide in the womb. ...19

Pauri 20 (No Spiritual Bliss without Gurmukh)
The vegetation is in all forests, which does not become sandal without the presence of sandal
There are eight metals in all mountains, but they cannot become gold with our philosopher’s stone Within four castes and the followers of six Shastras, none can become a saint without congregation
Absorbing himself in Guru’s instruction, the Guruward knows the merit of congregation
He become engrossed in ‘Word-awareness’, he quaffs the ambrosia from the cup of love
Though they achieve the highest spiritual state, their body remains weak, they rise above body-love
The Guruward realises the fruit of bliss and comprehends the Incomprehensible. ...20

Pauri 21 (Detached in Maya)
The Guruward realises his fruit of bliss in congregation and remains apathetic in maya
Just as there is lotus in water and meditates on the sun living in the sky
Though the sandalwood is encircled by snakes, but it remains cool, peaceful and blooming
Similarly, being absorbed in ‘Word-awareness’ in congregation, the Guruward attains Equipoise. He conquers device of Yoga and worldly enjoyments, gets redeemed while living and realises the Lord. He realises Transcendent and Perfect Brahman as God and Guru, remaining apathetic amongst hopes. The story of God is Indescribable, Who is both Unmanifested and Manifested. ...21

VAR–XVI
One Oaṅkār the Eternal Truth, realized through the grace of divine preceptors

Pauri 1 (As you sow, So shall you reap)
The earth is the lowest of all and is honoured in the Lord’s Court. Someone hoes and someone ploughs it, someone makes it dirty with faeces and urine. Someone plasters it and cooks on it and someone worships on it with fragrances. Whatever is sown, is reaped, whatever seed is put in it, the same fruit is obtained. The Guruward gets Equipoise as fruit of bliss, he effaces his self and not exhibits it. Rising above waking, sleep and dreamless sleep he remains absorbed in Equipoise state. Which is obtained by practising the discipline of ‘Guru’s Word’ in congregation. ...1

Pauri 2 (Lessons from water)
The water abides in earth, which mixes with many colours and relishes. Whenever it is caused to move, it goes down to the lower levels. It becomes hot in the sunshine and cool in the shade. The living takes bath and the dead is bathed in it, when quaffed, one gets satisfaction. It purifies the dirty and stabs in the low level tank. The Guruward gets fear and devotion as fruit of bliss and ever blooms in Equipoise. He, like water, becomes a complete philanthropist. ...2
Pauri 3 (Detached like lotus)
The lotus remains detached from water and remains flawless amongst blames worthy
It allures the bees at night on becoming cool and giving fragrance
At dawn it meditates on the sun and smilingly blossoms
The Guruward attains Equipoise as fruit of bliss and abides according to situation
For the people he acts according to them and performs actions as directed by Vedas
But he is alert in Guru’s knowledge and acts according to ‘Jiwan-mukta’ discipline
He abides in ‘Guru’s Word’ in congregation. ...3

Pauri 4 (Impartial like tree)
The tree grows in the earth and fixes firmly its feet on the roots
Its head (of branches and leaves) swings over it and gives shade in its suitable place
It endures wind, water and cold and stands immovable with its head downwards
When pelted, it gives fruit, though sawed, it causes the iron-studded ship to float
The birth of the Guruward is fruitful, who becomes a philanthropist spontaneously
He is equanimous and absorbed in ‘Word, without friend, foe, attachment and malice
He receives Guru’s great discipline in the congregation. ...4

Pauri 5 (True Guru is the boatman)
There is a ship in the ocean, in which there is a philanthropist sailor
The traders load it with weighty commodities and move to conduct business
The waves of the unfathomable and boundless ocean do not give any trouble
Many shipfuls are caused to cross over safely to their destinations
The traders sell their commodities on manifold profits and execute their work
The Guruward’s fruit of bliss is congregation which enables crossing of terrible ocean
The Lord’s beloved discipline brings redemption while living. ...5
Pauri 6 (From Sandal to Gurmukh)
The dwarfish tree of sandal abides in the solitude of the forest
Residing near the vegetation, it is firmly absorbed in a trance with its head downwards
With the movement of the wind, it happily spreads its fragrance
It turns all fruitless and fruitful vegetation around it equanimously into a sandal-orchard
The Guruward’s fruit of bliss is congregation, which instantly purifies the sinners
He blesses the vicious ones with virtues and in the congregation makes the raw mature Where neither the water drowns them nor the fire burns them. ...6

Pauri 7 (Gurmukh Altruist like sun)
There is pitch darkness in the night and millions of stars are twinkling
In every home the lamps are lighted and the thieves observe the homes of others
The householder men and women close the doors of their house and shops and sleep
When the sun rises, the stars and the night darkness vanish away
It frees them from the bondage of night and the people engage in Name, Charity and Bath
The Guruward’s fruit of bliss is congregation, which redeems animals, ghosts and Sinners
These beloved Sikhs of the Guru are philanthropists. ...7

Pauri 8 (Holy congregation is Mansarovar)
It is said that on Manasarovar lake, good fairies of swans abide
The swans pick up the invaluable pearls and gems from the Manasarovar lake
They separate milk and water and swim over the waves of the lake
They do not leave Manasarovar to go to any other place
The Guruwads’ fruit of bliss is congregation, which is glorified by Gursikhs as swans
They meditate on the Lord single-mindedly and do not stray in duality Absorbing themselves in ‘Word-awareness’, they comprehend the Incomprehensible. ...8
Pauri 9 (Gurmukh is Philosopher's stone)
The philosopher's stone is said to be a stone, which hides itself and does not show itself.
The rare one recognises it, only the seeker seeks and finds it.
On touching the philosopher's stone eight metals are transmuted into one metal.
When the gold becomes pure, it is sold at exorbitant price.
The Guruward's fruit is congregation where the 'Word-awareness' moulds Unmouldable.
He, the man of world, is absorbed in Guru's feet and is liked by Lord-God.
Being only a householder, he reaches his own real home. ...9

Pauri 10 (Gurmukhs are the highest ones)
The wish-fulfilling gem, removes anxiety, the wish-fulfilling cow fulfils desire.
The Elysian tree giving flower and fruit allures nine Naths with powers and treasures.
The ten incarnation manifesting themselves, performed great deeds, but exhibited ego.
The Guruward's fruit of bliss is congregation, the source of service by four substances.
Absorbed in 'Word-awareness' he attains love-essence, whose story is indescribable.
The Transcendent and Perfect Lord becomes Gracious and Himself gets duped.
The Guruward is accountable and invaluable. ...10

Pauri 11 (Creators cup of love)
With one 'Word', the Lord created all the expanse.
Which is Unweighable and cannot be weighed on any balance.
Which is Unaccountable and Indescribable in syllables and numerals.
Which is Invaluable, lakhs of substances cannot equal it.
Which is Unspeakable, and can only be related on listening to others.
He is Inaccessible, Unfathomable and Infinite.
His Nature cannot be evaluated, then how Great is the Creator and where He came?
The fruit of bliss of Guruward is congregation, where through 'Word' God can be known.
The Guruward bears the Unbearable cup of love. ...11
Pauri 12 (Holy Congregation the abode of truth)
He is beyond taste and speech, His story is Indescribable, how can the tongue know?
He is beyond Praise and slandery and does not come within speech
He is beyond the senses of smell and touch, human breath only 'marvels' about Him
He is beyond colour and mark, He is beyond perception and meditation
He is without any support and amazingly Pervades the Earth and Sky
The congregation is the region of Truth, where through 'Guru's Word', the Lord is known
We are a sacrifice to this Nature of the Creator. ...12

Pauri 13 (The True way of the Gurmukhs)
The path of Guruward is Inaccessible like the path of fish moving in water
The search of the Guruward is Incomprehensible like the bird flying in the sky
Only the tradition of congregation is apt, the rest of the world abides in illusion
All the four castes give betel-taste, but the colour of Guruward's cup of love is unique
He is absorbed in 'Word-awareness' and spreads his fragrance like sandal
Through the observance of the merits of crane, tortoise and swan he extends his family
The Guruward, in this way, attains the fruit of bliss and knows the Unknowable. ...13

Pauri 14 (God is incomprehensible)
Brahma alongwith Vedas and other gods said 'Neti, neti', but could not know the secret
Mahadev became a Yogi, uttered 'Namo, namo', but could not see the Lord in meditation
The ten incarnations after manifestation could not comprehend the One Lord
The nine Naths realising all the powers and treasures, paid obeisance to Primal Lord
The thousand-hooded Seshinaga, uttered innumerable Names, uttering a thousand daily
The sage Lomas performed austerities, but his ego increased and he could not be a saint
He could not achieve the long-lived fruit of bliss like the Guruward
He strayed in illusion in the creation. ...14
Pauri 15 (Attachment of Lord Amidst maya)
The fruit of bliss of Guruward is congregation, where the Kind Lord is subdued
The cause is controlled by the Creator, but in congregation He acts for devotees
The Transcendent and Perfect Lord’s Will reigns supreme in congregation
In every pore He has merged His Created universes
The banyan tree extends from the seed, which abides again within the fruit
The Guruward, quaffing ambrosia, bears the Unbearable, effaces self and not exhibit
He realises the Lord while living in the world of maya. ...15

Pauri 16 (ī-higuru is beyond all limits)
The praise abides in fragrance, but lakh of praises do not know the ‘real praise’
Lakhs of greatesses are in the saint, but he cannot describe an iota of Lord’s Greatness
There are lakhs of praises of great people, but one is amazed at moment’s Praise of Lord
There are lakhs of marvels of ‘Marvellous Lord’, but each marvel contains amazing acts
There are lakhs of enraptured ones in ecstasy, but none of them equals Lord’s Bliss
The Lord is Inaccessible and Indescribable, but people relate only hearsay about Him
The Guruward is Approved one and beyond all others. ...16

Pauri 17 (As above)
The Lord is unapproachable, even the inaccessible ones call Him highly Inaccessible
The Lord is Incomprehensible and even the unknowable ones meditate on Him
The Lord is Infinite and all those love Him, who are said to be without limits
The Lord is Imperceptible and all those said to be indiscernible are His Creation
The Transcendent and Perfect Lord is said to be Unfathomable by the congregation
The fruit of bliss of Guruward is love-essence before which the Kind Lord gets duped
The Lord makes him rise over and above the world. ...17
Pauri 18 (Satguru has made man understood the incomprehensible)
The Transcendent and Perfect Lord created and manifested the expanse
The Unmanifested Lord is Unfathomable, as Guru He comprehends the Unknowable
In the true region of congregation, becoming kind to devotees, He Himself gets duped
All the four castes become one therein and the obeisance is made to the Primal Purusha
The Guru is meditated therein and the followers of six Shastras have assembled therein
Though the Lord Himself is everything, but He did not reveal Himself. ... 18

Pauri 19 (Under the protection of the Guru)
The Sikhs of the Guru unite in the congregation and take shelter at Guru’s lotus-feet
Who delights them with his ambrosial vision and bestows on them the divine sight
They apply the dust of Guru’s feet as mark on their foreheads, removing their illusions
Quaffing the washings of Guru’s feet, they wipe out the ailments of ego and duality
Bowing and becoming dust of Guru’s feet, they become ‘Jivan-muktas’ in Equipoise State
They become like bees at the lotus-feet, they become absorbed in the essence of bliss
They adore primarily the Guru’s feet and do not go near the perishable duality
The fruit of bliss of the Guruwards is their refuge under the Guru. ... 19

Pauri 20 (Greatness of true Guru)
Let lakhs of readers of Shastras, Smritis, Vedas, Mahabharta and Ramayana get together Let lakhs of readers of Gita, Bhagavat and astrology be there with doctors and actors
Let there be fourteen learnings and Gayatri with Brahma, Vishnu and Shiva
Let there be lakhs of Sanaks etc., Naradas, Shukas, Vyasa and Seshinagas uttering Name
Let there be many Gurus and disciples engrossed in knowledge, meditation and Name
But only the Guru of Gurus i.e. True Guru is Perfect, his mantras and sayings are blissful
The story of ‘Guru’s Word’ is Indescribable, it is boundless and to it we bow
The fruit of bliss of Guruward is realised through practice at ambrosial hour. ...20

_Pauri 21 (Nothing is equal to Guru)_

There are said to be four substances, but there are lakhs of substances under Guru’s Will Lakhs of powers, treasures and grazing herds of wish-fulfilling cows are in His service
There are lakhs of Philosopher’s stones and lakhs of Elysian trees fructify in orchards
There are lakhs of wish-fulfilling gems and lakhs of alchemies sing His ‘Eulogies’ Lakhs of oceans of pearls, treasures and fruits remember Him
There are lakhs of devotions and devotees, who are absorbed in performing miracles
The Guruwards, absorbed in ‘Word’ in congregation, quaff love, bearing the Unbearable
They assemble in the congregation with the Grace of the Guru. ...21

_VAR–XVII_

_One Oaṅkār the Eternal Truth, realized through the grace of the divine preceptors_

_Pauri 1 (Learning from conch, without merit)_

Churning the unfathomable ocean, fourteen invaluable gems were extracted
The moon, Sarang bow, wine, Kaustak gem, Lakshmi and Dhanantar Vaid were found Rambha, wish-fulfilling cow, Elysian tree, Uchshrava horse and ambrosia Airavat elephant, conch and poison Kalkoot; both the gods and demons divided them
Other invaluable pearls, jewels and diamonds came out, which pleased all
But the conch that came out, was empty from within, it wailed and wept
Listening to the ‘Guru’s Word’ in congregation, he who does not imbibe instructions,
He wastes his precious birth uselessly. ...1
Pauri 2 (Manmukh, the mind oriented and a frog are identical)
In the tank of pure, clear water filled to the brim, the lotus flowers blossom
Their form and figure is unique; they are perfumed and spread their fragrance
The bees also abide in the forest, who seek and find these lotus flowers
They are allured by their essence and come to meet them from afar
When the sun rises in the sky, these flowers in the tank meditate on it
The frogs live in the mud, but they, not recognising them, cannot enjoy them
Listening to the ‘Guru’s Word’ in congregation, he, who does not follow the discipline,
He, assuredly, has a bad fortune. ...2

Pauri 3 (Like the crane the cheats can’t get the fruits of labour)
People come and gather from all the four directions on festival days in holy shrines
People from all four castes and followers of six Shastras practise Name, Charity, Bath
They perform ‘Japas’, austeries, restraints sacrifices and fasts and listen to Vedas
Following the practices of gnosis meditation and remembrance, they reach holy places
They are outwardly white like cranes, they bow and contemplate in guilt
Listening to the ‘Guru’s Word’ in congregation, he does not follow the Guru’s discipline
And being full of malice, he does not obtain the fruit. ...3

Pauri 4 (Undeserving person even after listening Guru Śabād can’t attain peace)
In Sawan, the rain brings greenery in the forest, but ‘Ak’ and ‘camel-thorn’ remain dry
The rain-bird is satisfied to quaff the rain-drop, which becomes a gem in the shell
The camphor is created in banana with the rain-drop, but in barren land, it goes waste
It becomes poison in the mouth of a serpent, it takes the nature of good and bad pots
Listening to the ‘Guru’s Word’ in congregation, peace does not come with groans
The Guruward’s fruit of bliss is ‘love-essence’ and the self-willed goes astray
The self-willed experiences loss and the Guruward gets profit. ...4
Pauri 5 (Examples of the egotists)
There is vegetation in the forests, the same earth and the same water
There are colourful flowers and fruit, whose taste and fragrance are wonderfully related
The head of Simmal tree is high and the fruitless pine tree rises very high
The burning bamboo is chopped, whose flutes are being played in the forests
The vegetation abiding near sandal becomes sandal, but bamboo is not fragranced
Listening to the ‘Guru’s Word’ in congregation, the unfortunate one does not imbibe it
Absorbed in ego, he goes astray. ...

Pauri 6 (Lesson from owl-manmukh)
When the sun rises, it spreads light and removes darkness
The world attends to its work and the bondage of night is removed
The animals, birds and flocks of deer talk in their language of love
The Mullah gives call, the Yogi blows his horn and the king sounds his trumpet
The owl does not see the sun and passes his time in solitude Listening to ‘Guru’s Word’ in congregation, he who remains without Lord’s love and fear
That self-willed person wastes his birth. ...

Pauri 7 (Cheats like ruddy sheldrake remains without fruit even in the Holy congregation)
The partridge loves the moon and scans its gleaming light
The fields and trees bear crops and fruit and the cool ambrosia drips from the moon
The wife and husband are absorbed in love, meeting in their bed for enjoyment
Every one meets during the night, but the Brahmani ducks undergo separation
Listening to ‘Guru’s Word’ in congregation, one does not fathom love in deceit
He comes there after eating garlic and the nasty one spreads foul smell
The duality-loving person is wicked and worthless. ....
Pauri 8 (Ladle, red lady bug and the cheat)
Bringing together sweet and sour tastes, thirty-six types of meals are cooked in kitchen
The cook causes the world of four castes, following six Shastras, to eat meals
One who gets satisfaction on eating, he recognises the relishes of the tongue
The ladle cannot assess the relish, even if it absorbs itself in thirty-six types of meals
Even if the ‘rati’ is strung with gems in a necklace, it cannot mix with them
Listening to ‘Guru’s Word’ in congregation, if there is no impact of Guru’s instruction
Such people of deceitful demeanour do not get shelter in Lord’s Court. ...8

Pauri 9 (The Cheat lover is like elephant and colocynth)
The stream, brooks and drains, when mixed with Ganges, become Ganges
The devotees go to sixty-eight holy shrines and make offerings to gods and goddesses
They listen to the Name of the redeemer of sinners from the learned and Vedic scholars
But their conduct is like the elephant bathed in water and smearing with dust outside Listening to ‘Guru’s Word’ in congregation, they do not imbibe in mind Guru’s instruction
Like the gourd, which even it is irrigated in the nectar, does nor bear the sweet fruit
Such like deceitful persons do not reach the target. ...9

Pauri 10 (Manmukh like a barren woman)
The king has a hundred queens and he comes to their bed turn by turn
All are his beloved queens and are immensely loved by the king
All of them have to enjoy king’s love, therefore they decorate the bed in beautiful palace
All the queens have their children, but someone may unfortunately remain barren
There is no flaw in the king or queen, but the Writ recorded earlier cannot be effaced
Listening to ‘Guru’s Word’ in congregation, if Guru’s instruction is not imbibed in mind
That person is unfortunate and a lover of vicious intellect. ...10
Pauri 11 (Manmukh cheat is like a stone)
Eight metals are transmuted into one and every one describes it as gold
Its form and figure is unique and the assayers approve it as invaluable
If a stone touches a philosopher’s stone, it does not become one of that proud clan
If it is thrown in water, being weighty, it immediately sinks
The hard heart is not softened and remaining weighty it can break a pitcher
If put in fire, it cracks and on the anvil, it is amazed at the blow of hammer
Listening to ‘Guru’s Word’ in congregation, the atheist remains sans Guru’s instruction
The love cannot come in the fraudulent by force. ....11

Pauri 12 (In the company of the Swans)
There are gems in the pure and clear water of graceful Manasarovar lake
The family of swans is of stable intellect and their company is reliable company
They pick up the food of gems, with which their honour and delight increases
The crow is placeless and nameless and remains cheerless amongst swans
For eating the desirable and undesirable food, it strays from forest to forest Listening to ‘Guru’s Word’ in congregation, the mind of atheist remains unstable in body
The lock of his hard door does not open. ...12

Pauri 13 (Manmukh is a ailing person)
The man getting ill goes to many doctors for advice
The inexperienced doctor does not know the medicine to be given to the patient
If right medicine is not given for ailment, the patient undergoes greater suffering
If the right doctor comes to the house, the ailment goes away with his prescription
If the patient does not remains under restraint and prevention and enjoys sweet and sour
We cannot find fault with medicine or doctor, the ailment ever increases sans restraint
The fraudulent Sikh, though he comes and sits in the congregation
He gets humiliated in duality because of vicious intellect. ...13
Pauri 14 (Mataphor of donkey and the manmukh)
Mixing the perfumes of sandal, agallochum, saffron, musk, ‘med’ and camphor
The chief perfumer mixing them well distils them
When it comes to the society of chiefs, it spreads its fragrance in the talented ones
If that fragrance is applied to an ass’s body, the damned one does not know the substance
Listening to ‘Guru’s Word’ in congregation, the atheist does not have devotion in mind
Having his eyes, he is blind and having ears he is deaf
He penalises himself under compulsion. ...14

Pauri 15 (Silk, wool - gurmukh, manmukh)
On being washed, the silken raiments look bright and become really invaluable Dyeing them with fine colours, they all adopt good fast colours
The chiefs purchase them and wear them, looking new in beauty, colour and taste
Such like raiment look splendid and increase the embellishment at weddings etc.
The black blanket does not become white on washing and cannot also be dyed clean
Listening to ‘Guru’s Word’ in congregation the atheist looks around uselessly
The fraudulent Sikh remains only like a deserted ruin. ...15

Pauri 16 (Manmukh is like a seedless sesame plant)
Growing in the field, the sesame plant exhibits itself higher than others
Getting taller it spreads itself, it becomes verdant and supports itself
When the crop is harvested on maturity, the odd sesame plant is left there
It remain useless in the whole field like the elephant grass in sugarcane
Listening to ‘Guru’s Word’ in congregation, the ghostlike persons become fraudulent
Their birth is useless and they are disgraced in this as well as the next world
They are handed over to the messengers of Yama in his abode. ...16
Pauri 17 (Manmukh is like bronze and conch)
The bronze is white and shining, but when food is eaten in its salver, it becomes impure
That impurity is cleansed and even washed in the water of Ganges
It outwardly becomes pure on washing, but its inner smut ultimately humiliates it
Its mind is impure and its body is also impure, when spitted, it chimes and weeps
Listening to ‘Guru’s Word’ in congregation, the fraudulent Sikh prattles
But mere talk does not give any satisfaction; by uttering ‘sugar, its taste is not enjoyed
By churning water, one cannot eat butter. ...17

Pauri 18 (Castor oil, plant, oleander, cheat person)
There are bad trees amongst trees, both castor plant and Oleander, growing around fields
The castor plant bears buds and fruit, there are speckled seeds in the fruit
This rootless plant does not last long, with a small puff of wind, it is uprooted
The Oleander plant also bears buds, but it spreads bad smell because of its evil thinking
Outwardly it is red in colour, but inwardly white; thus it is in duality Listening to ‘Guru’s Word’ in congregation, the atheist is full of calculations
The face of fraudulent Sikh is blackened. ...18

Pauri 19 (Akk, grass hopper, leech and the manmukh)
The vegetation bears fruit in the forest, glorified by many relishes and fragrances
The mango tree gives luscious fruit, the guava, apple and pomegranate trees bear fruit
The grapes of Bijaur, black plum, ‘khirni’, mulberry, date give happiness
Many ‘Peelus’, capers, bers, the bananas and walnuts grow
All of them are not liked by the ‘Ak’-cricket, they leave ambrosial fruit and live on ‘Ak’
If a leech is applied to the teat, it sucks filthy blood and does not quaff milk
Listening to ‘Guru’s Word’ in congregation, the atheists only prattle in calculations
The fraudulent Sikhs do not reach anywhere. ...19
Pauri 20 (I have all the vías of manmukhs)
There are lakhs of frogs, cranes, conches, ‘Ak’ plants, camel-thorns and black cobras
There are Simmals, owls, Brahmani ducks, lades, elephants and barren women
There are many stones, crows, patients, asses and black blankets
There are lakhs of bronzes, sesame plants, ‘Ak’-crickets, castor plants and spotty gourds
Then the bud of Oleander is described; all these dreadful vices are within me
Listening to ‘Guru’s Word’ in congregation the atheists do not imbibe Guru’s instructions
Fie on their life, they are impertinent and evil. ...20

Pauri 21 (Counting the slanders and apostates)
There are lakhs of slanderers, impertinents, evil tyrants and ungrateful
There are lakhs of rebels, rude persons, thieves, paramours and ill-reputed persons
There are killers of Brahmins, cows, families, Untrust worthy and vicious people
There are lakhs of liars and slanderers of Gurus, sinners and notorious persons
There are lakhs of culprits, sinners, people full of flaws, disgraced and ill-reputed
There are lakhs of disguised, treacherous and devilish people, lakhs of deceivers Thou art the seer and I deny, I am the deceiver and Thou art Omniscient Thou are the Redeemer of sinners and this is the Reputation. ...21

VAR–XVIII
One Oaṅkār the Eternal Truth realized through the grace of divine preceptor

Pauri 1 (Invocation)
With one ‘Word’, the One Lord Created a great expanse with many forms
He extended His Abode with air, water, fire, earth and ether
He Created innumerable and infinite creatures in water, on plains and mountains
One universe is indivisible and in one moment He Created lakhs of universes
His Nature cannot be comprehended, how great can be the Creator?
He is Endless and Infinite. ...1
Pauri 2 (As above)
How great He is? Great is the Excellence of the Great
He is described as the Greatest of the Great and He is related so on knowing
He has Created and kept millions of universes in the pores of His Body
He, Who has Created all expanse with one ‘Word’, which is Unweighable
He is beyond the ken of Vedas and Katebs, His Story is Indescribable How can one know about Unmanifested Lord? How can the Unknowable be known? ...2

Pauri 3 (Craftmanship in the nature)
He Created the body, putting soul in it, He fashioned mouth, eyes, nose and ears
He then gifted it with hands and feet, ‘Word-awareness’ and nine good-looking doors With talent to work and serve others; He also Created the breathing and eating systems
He Created the tastes for music, colours and essences, alongwith smelling of fragrances
Garments, meals, intellect, strength with support of knowledge and thinking were gifted
Such a Great Donor and His innumerable gifts cannot be evaluated
He is Accountless and Infinite. ...3

Pauri 4 (The creation is accountable)
Approving the five elements, He Created the world of four divisions through them
He promulgated the conduct of transmigration in eighty-four lakh species
In every species, he increased innumerable creatures
Every one has a writ about him, which is recorded on foreheads of all
He has given the accountable breaths and morsels to all and such recording is endless
He Himself is Accountless and Incomprehensible. ...4

Pauri 5 (Creation is in fear)
The earth and sky are in Lord’s fear, which have been placed without support
He has put and united in His fear the air, water and fire
He has placed the earth in water and has kept the sky without columns
He has placed fire within the wood, causing it to blossom and bear fruit
He has put the ‘prana’ within nine doors and rotates the sun and moon in fear
The Sovereign Lord Himself is fearless. ...5
Pauri 6 (Creator is infinite and omnipresent)
If one rises high on lakhs of skies, he cannot comprehend the Lord’s Height
He is greatly higher than the high and Untiring without the names of His Abodes
If one goes below lakhs of nether-worlds, the lowest one cannot know His Limit
He moves towards East, West, North and South and none can cover Him
His end cannot be found and He can Create and Destroy in an instant
He Pervades everywhere like the fragrance in flowers. ...6

Pauri 7 (Only Creator knows the mystery of creation)
The Lord, after Creating the expanse did not mark it with lunar date, day and month
Before the Creation of expanse, the One Lord remained Incomprehensible
He Himself manifested Himself and Himself adopted His Name
We bow before the Primal Purusha, Who is, Who Has been and Who Will be
He is Beginningless Endless and infinite, He is all in all ,but does not Exhibit Himself
He Himself Creates and then Merges within Himself. ...7

Pauri 8 (The Creator in inaccessible to the creation)
He has kept millions of universes within the pores of His Body
How Great He is? In Which House He Abides and what will be its Dimensions?
With one ‘Word’ He Creates Unthinkable expanse with lakhs of Unreckonable rivers
The Creator is Infinite and His Limits are Incomprehensible
Being such a Great One, where has He concealed Himself?
The gods, men and Naths are absorbed in Him. ...8

Pauri 9 (As above)
With the utterance of ‘One Word’, lakhs of Unfathomable rivers began to flow
He is Beginningless, endless and Infinite, all seek the Inaccessible and Unknowable Lord
He is described, as Incomprehensible and Infinite, none can know His limits
Lakhs of waves arise unhesitatingly, moving for the conduct of unity of the oceans
There are lakhs of substances like gems which are invaluable and Unweighable
I am a sacrifice of air, water and fire. ...9
Pauri 10 (The Creator is detached and perfect)
The Creator should be Praised for creating the colourful world
He is the Preserver, Who arranges sustenance and Who gives gifts to all unasked for No one resembles the other; they appear good or bad in duality
The Transcendent Lord is unattached, but that Perfect Lord ever Pervades all
He is without colours and marks, but still He is united with all.
He is the associate of air, water and fire. ...10

Pauri 11 (Reasons for the creation of Maya)
The Lord Creating the expanse, created a fly-like maya
The three worlds, fourteen regions, waters, plains, earth and sky have been duped by her
She has caused Brahma, Vishnu, Shiva and ten incarnations dance in the bazars
She has strayed celibates, truthful and contented ones, adepts, Naths and many disciplines
She has maliciously caused enmity and fight amongst lust, anger, greed and attachment
Every one is under the impact of ego and none has called himself deficient than others
The cause has been concealed by the Creator Himself. ...11

Pauri 12 (Majesty orders of the emperors)
He is the king of kings and eternal ruler, his kingdom is Unlimited
How Great is His Throne? How Great is His Palace and how much Great is His Court?
How much Great is His Praise? How much Great is His paraphernalia and vast country?
How much Great is His Honour? How Great is His Army and the serving soldiers?
Every one is under His Command? How Great is His Command, when He is Carefree?
He does not take advice of any other. ...12
Pauri 13 (The creation forgot the creator)
Brahma recited lakhs of Vedas, but he could not know the secret of one syllable
Shiva has been absorbed in meditations, but could not know Lord’s form, mark and garb
Vishnu has manifested in lakhs of incarnations, but could not know iota of Lord’s secret Repeating lakhs of new Names, lakhs of Seshinagas could not know Lord’s Greatness Long-lived sages and very ancient disciplines could not recognise the Lord’s ‘Word’
They were allured by Lord’s gifts, put forgot the Lord. ...13

Pauri 14 (How could creation attain created? The highway)
The Lord Created His expanse and taking Guru’s form caused meditation of the Lord
He made all the four castes his Sikhs and colonised congregation as region of truth
He related the story and ‘Word’ of the Indescribable Lord, beyond the Vedas and Katebs Rising above the world, the Guruward caused the comprehension of Incomprehensible Keeping himself detached from maya, he firmly established Name, Charity and Bath
The Guruward, gathering together all the twelve disciplines, started the cart-track
Ascending the rungs of honour, he realised his own home. ...14

Pauri 15 (Gurmukhs the traders of the highway)
The Guruward places his foot on the Path and does not run on the wrong path of duality
Having the sight of the True Guru, he does not have any fear of birth and death
Listening to ‘Guru’s Word’ with his ears, he listens inwardly the Unstruck Melody Coming in the presence of True Guru, he has been caused to meet saints permanently
He merges in the Equipoise and enjoys sweet essence of the blissful fruit of lotus-feet
He is caused to quaff the cup of ambrosial love. ...15
Pauri 16 (Gurmukh, the liberated one in life)
Following the practice of congregation, he bears the Unbearable cup of love
He bows and becomes the feet’s dust, effacing his ego and causing his death while living
He is described as ‘Jivan-mukta’, who lives on his self’s death and floats on drowning it
He is absorbed in ‘Word-awareness’, quaffs the ambrosia and grazes the Ungrazable
He listens to the Unstruck Melody and the ambrosial hymns of the Guru drip within him
He becomes cause of causes and powerful, but he does not exhibit such power
He redeems the sinners and gives shelter to the shelterless. ...16

Pauri 17 (Remaining detached and suffering a lot the gurmukh does good to others)
The Guruward takes birth, lives and practises in fear and love
He remains in fear and love in congregation and dupes the Undeceivable Kind lord
Like the lotus remaining detached in water, he rises above the world of hope and tangle
Like a diamond hammered on anvil, he remains firm in disciple and does not swerve
Thinking of the welfare of others, he is merciful towards beings, melting like wax
He becomes one in essence with all the four castes like betel, effacing his self
He burns like a lamp with wick and oil. ...17

Pauri 18 (The way of liberation of the gurmukhs)
Truth, contentment, mercy, piety and wealth worth crores do not know his end Four ends of human action are told, even lakhs of them are not approved by him
Lakhs of powers and treasures cannot equal an iota of the Guruward
Lakhs of sights and meetings feel amazed before the ‘Word-awareness’ Countless learning, meditations and remembrances of ‘Neti’ do not equal devotion
Guruward’s fruit of bliss is cup of love in marvellous state of Equipoise
There are lakhs of pure intellects in Guruward’s meeting with the Lord. ...18
Pauri 19 (Truthfulness is the best conduct)
Lakhs of japas, austerities, restraints and sacrificial worships and crores of worships
Many fasts, observances, restraints and rituals and lakhs of telling the beads
Lakhs of meetings at festivals on holy shrines and innumerable charities for welfare
Lakhs of services to gods and goddesses, boons and curses, unions and separations
Lakhs of Shastras of castes and casteless, lakhs of bondage’s of worship broken Lakhs of Vedas and learnings and lakhs of meditations and enjoyments overthrown Everything is below Truth and lakhs of wisdoms are all very small
And above the Truth is clung the conduct of Truth. ...19

Pauri 20 (The True Kingdom)
The True Guru is the True king and the congregation is the true and comfortable throne
The ‘Word’ is True and the mint is True, where eight metals touch philosopher’s stone
His kingdom is True and eternal, where the new palace of Truth is well-adorned
His True Command is prevalent there, His Order is True, which gives True Happiness
His Praise and Commendation are True and the ambrosial time is truly admirable
The discipline of Guruward is True, where there is True instruction and no ego
The Guruward lives unattached in the world of hopes, this is his true move and sport
He is a Sikh and can reach the position of Guru. ...20

Pauri 21 (Non attachment of the Gurmukhs)
The Guruward forsakes ego and gladly accepts the Lord’s Will in his mind
He bows and becomes the dust of feet and in humility receives honours in Lord’s Court
He deals in the present and gladly accepts his destiny
Whatever the lord does, he respectfully accepts the same with gratitude
He is well-pleased with the Lord’s Will and considers himself as guest in the world
In ecstasy he remains amazed and becomes a sacrifice to the Nature of the Creator
He ever remains unattached. ...21
Pauri 22 (The obedient always in obedience) Submitting to Lord’s Command, the Guruward remains under His Will Every one is under His Command and all have to bear the suffering
Merging his heart in the river of Divinity, he effaces his ego and moves in humility
Rising above the world, he sits on his true seat in the congregation
He remains absorbed in ‘Word-awareness’ and causes the moulding of his experience
He remains firm in faith and forbearance and becomes grateful with no ‘give and take’
Then he is not drowned in water and burnt in fire. ...22
Pauri 23 (Love between guru and the disciple)
The Grace of the Guru for the Guruward is his intense love, which cannot be concealed
The sandal abides in vegetation and spreads fragrance, but does not exhibit his self
The streams and drains meeting with Ganges, become pure, but do not declare
The diamond perforates the diamond, when its grain on the tip of drill merges in it
In congregation, he becomes a saint and meeting philosopher’s stone he becomes like it
He becomes film in discipline and the Lord becoming Gracious to him becomes duped
The Guruward attains fruit of bliss and comprehends the Incomprehensible. ...23

VAR–XIX
One Oaṅkār the Eternal Truth, realized through the grace of divine preceptor

Pauri 1 (Invocation)
The One Lord Himself Created the Guru’s Form
The One Lord manifested Himself as Guru He
He Created the Wonder of the expanse of five elements
The world of four divisions of creation and speech was created
His Nature is Inaccessible and Infinite, none knows its end
The Creator of True Name remains merged in Truth. ...1
Pauri 2 (The best among the eighty four lakhs of species of life)
He rotated the beings in eighty-four lakh species
The human birth is hard to attain through good deeds
The discipline of the Guruward is superb, wherein self is effaced
The conduct of congregation is bowing at the feet
When Name, Charity, Bath and Truth are firmly established
One is absorbed in ‘Word-awareness’ and bows to God’s Will. ...2

Pauri 3 (Gurmukhs is the guest)
The Guruward becomes wise with Guru’s instruction
He comes in the world-society as a guest
He eats and drinks whatever is given to him
He never talks in ego and laughs only when caused to laugh
He is approved as a guest and looks pleasant in his work
When he goes away, the world-society is amazed. ...3

Pauri 4 (Method of moving around)
The Guruward knows that his stay is short-lived in the world-meadow
Like the grazier of the cowherd wondering at he frolic
The current of the ambrosial hymns trickles down
He enjoys the flute’s music in the congregation
The wise one sings the modes of Majh and Malar
He effaces his ego and subdues his mind
The Guruward absorbing himself in the ‘Word’, realises the Truth. ...4

Pauri 5 (Method of following - Living in an inn)
Travelling on his path, he stayed at the inn at night
At day-dawn he moved further on his path
He had no jealousy for anyone and no involvement
Neither he was asked about dead man’s caste, nor did he enjoy someone’s wedding
He was content with whatever he got and made no complaint about hunger and thirst
The Guruward remembers the Lord with his mouth and remains blossomed like lotus. ...5
Pauri 6 (Moving technique)

On the night of Diwali, the lamps are lighted
The stars, dim and bright, are seen twinkling in the sky
In the orchard, the flowers are selected and plucked
The pilgrims visit the holy shrines and see them with their eyes
Like looking at the mirage appearing and disappearing
The Guruwards gift of the fruit of bliss is the remembrance of ‘Word’.

Pauri 7 (Way of the world - parents home)

The mind of Guruward is enlightened with Guru’s instruction
He considers the world as parent’s house, without any worry
He remains unattached in the world of hopes, absorbed in knowledge
He follows the conduct of congregation, receiving the message of ‘Word’
And also follows the advice of adopting total humility
He remembers the Lord with every breath and morsel, living anywhere.

Pauri 8 (Technique of Life)

We meet in the world like the travellers in a boat
We enjoy in the world like becoming king in a dream
We undergo the short-lived happiness and sorrow like shade of a tree
The Guruward dispels the ailment of ego and does not exhibit himself
He realises the spiritual unfoldment within his own home
According to Guru’s instruction, he remains obliged to Lord, whatever happens.

Pauri 9 (Method in the world - desirelessness)

The Guruward in the company of saints knows the life to be short-lived
He enjoys all the situations like the spring in the month of Chet
He imbibes humility like the surging water of Sawan flowing to lower levels
The union of such people is mannerful and marvellous
The discipline of the Guruward is pure, which is Approved by the Lord
The meeting with the Guru’s discipline is unimpaired, true and pleasing.

Pauri 10 (Success of the birth)

The birth of the Guruward in the world is fruitful
The Guru’s discipline comes with full grace, because Guruward effaces his self
He works with devotional love and attains the fruit of bliss
He abides the Guru’s inaccessible instruction in his heart
He becomes the banner of forbearance and piety spontaneously
He does not bear the suffering and fear, because he accepts God’s Will.
Pauri 11 (Gurmukh - mind)
The Guruwards consider the attainment of human body as the great opportunity
They love the congregation and enjoy all its aspects
They absorb themselves in ‘Word-awareness’ and repeat God’s Name
They rise above the body and realise the Truth
They do not recognise any sort of duality
They consider in their mind the life as short lived. ...11

Pauri 12 (Rarity of Gurmukhs)
Some rare philanthropist Guruward takes birth in the world
He attains the fruit of bliss by effacing his self
The ‘Word’ is a witness for him, which he causes the other Sikh to listen
He reflects on the ‘Word’ and practises Truth
There is Truth in his heart and mouth and only Truth is pleasing to him
He fructifies his birth and caused the world to cross the sea of existence. ...12

Pauri 13 (Conduct of Gurmukh)
The Guruward effaces his self and thus recognises his self
He merges in Truth, Contentment an Equipoise
He enjoys bliss in forbearance, piety and mercy
He reflects on the connotation of the ‘Word’ and describes it
He, having all power, pretends to remain without it
He receives all honour in Lord’s Court, but remain humble. ...13

Pauri 14 (Gurmukhs always accept the divine order)
The Guruward, making best use of his birth, goes to Lord’s Court
On reaching the True Court, he occupies the true arena
He has the food of love with firmness of zest
He stabilises his mind, which does not wave at all
He speaks Truth, which renders welfare for all
He goes on away on being called and comes, when sent. ...14

Pauri 15 (Virtues of a Gurmukh)
The Guruward, curing the incurable, is called a saint
He is known as a knowledgeable person, having the discriminating intellect
He is recognised as a devotee, being absorbed in devotional love
He, having gnostic tendency, is known as knower of Brahman
He is a person of Perfect understanding, being absorbed in ‘Guru’s Word’
He, rising on the rungs of hour, enjoys the essence of love. ...15
Pauri 16 (Gains from a Gurmukh)
The Creator’s True Name is obtained by the Guruward
He meditates on ‘Oankar’ the True Name of the Lord
He reflects on the ‘Word’, being absorbed in it
He, practising Truth, is a person of True conduct,
He is a gate of redemption and having his sight one merges in Equipoise
His base is Lord’s Name, therefore he has not to repent. ...16

Pauri 17 (As above)
The Guruward, touching the philosopher’s stone, becomes as such He rises above the world, on having sight of the Lord
He, meditating on the Lord, effaces duality
He neither looks towards the wealth and beauty of others nor slanders them
He churns the ‘guru’s Word’ Lord’s Name
He goes towards the Lord in bliss and has not to lament, while dying. ...17

Pauri 18 (The nature and form of Gurmukh)
The Guruward, on becoming a Pundit, instructs the world
He effaces his self and purifies his internal self
He is absorbed in truth and contentment and forsakes lust and anger
He is without enmity and had no inimical feelings
He instructs all the four castes and merges in Equipoise
His mother be hailed, who has given birth to such a mighty warrior. ...18

Pauri 19 (Carefree Gurmukh)
The Guruward Praises the True Guru’s ‘Word’ Waheguru
He Praises and Commends the True Lord
He acclaims Truth, which is a God’s Gift for him
His path is the ‘cart-track’, which ultimately leads him to Truth
His wisdom is very deep and thus unfathomable
He is carefree, but not indifferent. ...19

Pauri 20 (Serious and tranquil Gurmukh)
The Guruward has exact weight, neither more nor less
His speech is exact, neither more nor less
His wisdom is stable, neither more nor less
His love is invaluable and cannot be evaluated
His discipline is pure and cannot be equalled to any other
His ambrosial ‘Word’ is steady, which can be quaffed after stirring. ...20
Pauri 21 (Gurmukh remain tranquil in their self)
The Guruward attains all the fruits with his fruit of bliss ...
Dyed in good fast colour, he dyes all others
Merged in the good fragrance, he fragrances others
All the relishes come within his contentment-giving ambrosial essence
On being absorbed in ‘Word-awareness’ the Unstruck Melody rings in him
He stays firmly on going to his own eternal home and does not stray anywhere. ...21

VAR–XX
One Oaṅkār the Eternal Truth realized through the grace of divine preceptor

Pauri 1 (Invocation - description of the Guru)
The Lord Himself Created the True Guru Nanak
His Sikh Angad became Guru on coming to Baba Nanak
Amar Das Guru was the Sikh of Guru Angad and was liked by him
Ram Das was the Sikh of Guru Amar Das, who was caused to be called the Guru
Arjan Dev was the Sikh, who became manifest as the Guru
The Gursikh Hargobind cannot be concealed. ...1

Pauri 2 (All gurus had the same light)
The Guruward, on becoming like philosopher stone caused Sikhs to perform worship
He transmutes eight metals into one and manifests the inner light of the Sikhs
He becomes like sandal and fragrances the trees
The Sikh of the Guru becomes the Guru and works wonders
With his Light, he enlightens the other lights, like the lamp lighting the lamp
He merges the Sikh within himself as water merges in water. ...2

Pauri 3 (Praise of the Gurmukh)
The birth of the Guruward is fruitful, he has met the Guru
He has come in the presence of the Guru because of perfect karmas
He has bowed at Guru’s feet and established firmly in himself Lord’s Name
He remains unattached within his home and maya has no impact on him Practising Guru’s instructions he has comprehended the Incomprehensible
He has become a ‘jiwan-mukta’, having effaced his self. ...3
Pauri 4 (The Gurmukhs only sustain the unbearable cap of love)
The Guruward has effaced his self and not exhibited it
He has wiped out duality and meditated on the One Lord
Considering the Guru as God, he has absorbed himself in ‘Word'
He goes to the congregation and bows his head
Following Guru’s discipline, he has attained the fruit of bliss
He has obtained the cup of love and borne the Unbearable. ...4

Pauri 5 (Daily routine of the Gurmukhs)
He get up at the ambrosial hour and on waking cause others to wake up Bathing in the holy shrine of Guru’s discipline, he has not strayed in illusion
He remembers the Guru’s mantra and cause it to be remembered by others
Establishing firmly in Guru’s wisdom, he meditates single-mindedly
On his forehead, there is red mark of Approval, the charming sign
He falls at the feet of Sikhs, who continue this tradition. ...5

Pauri 6 (The earning of Gursikh)
He falls at the feet of the visiting Sikh and cause them to be washed
He tastes the ambrosial hymns and subdues his mind
He serves water and fans the congregation, he grinds flour and bums kitchen’s fire
He listens to the Guru’s hymns, learns them and writes them
He practices the actions like Name, Charity and Bath
He works in humility and speaks sweetly, he labours and Provides food. ...6

Pauri 7 (Meeting of the Sikhs of the Guru)
The Sikhs are caused to meet the Sikhs
They celebrate the Guru’s festivals in devotional love and cause others to celebrate
They consider their elders as gods and goddesses
They consider other Sikhs like the mother, father and brother of their family
They obtained the profit of service to the Sikhs like Agriculture and Business
They consider all the Sikhs and their offspring as the family of swans. ...7

Pauri 8 (Omens)
He does not keep in mind the omens of right and left
He does not move backwards on seeing a man or a woman
He does not consider the good or bad voices or the effect of sneezing
He does not make offerings or worship to the gods and goddesses
He does not stray here or there or absorb his mind in illusions
The Gursikh is like a true field, in which the seed of faith fructifies. ...8
Pauri 9 (Holy congregation, the abode of Truth)
He labours with piety in mind and is firm on Truth
Which have been Created by the True Lord of True Name
The Gracious True Guru came with Mercy for his Sikhs
The Transcendent Lord manifested through him, who caused us to listen to his ‘Word’
He populated the congregation as the region of Truth
And making it the True Throne, he caused it to be saluted. ...9

Pauri 10 (Service of the Holy congregation)
The Gursikh himself serves and causes others to serve the Guru
Serving the congregation, he obtained the fruit of bliss
He spreads the sack-cloth after cleansing it and bathes himself in its dust
He causes to be brought the fresh large pitchers and fills them with water And then brings the communion food and causes it to be distributed and eaten. ...10

Pauri 11 (Do good to evil persons)
The tree grows in the world with its head downward
It bows its head, so that it may remain stable
It blossoms and fructifies and for fruit it bears the pelting of stones
It causes the saw to be placed on its head, so that the ship is built
Which is caused to steer through its path on the head of water
He, who gets the saw placed over its head, gets crossed, sitting over its head. ...11

Pauri 12 (The tree bears the evil and does the good)
Having been chopped with an iron implement, it is studded with iron
Getting the iron loaded over its head, it is caused to be floated over water Nourishing the wood like son, it does not drown it
It drowns the ‘Agar-wood’ deliberately, causing it to become more valuable Performing good action brings the good reward, the world is pleased to know The Gursikh bearing vicious act performs virtuous act, I am a sacrifice to him. ...12

Pauri 13 (Order of the true Guru)
He, who obeys the Command of True Guru, causes it to be obeyed by others
The Guru has said that the Sikh should obey the Will of the Lord as Command
He quaffs the cup of love and comprehends the Incomprehensible
The Guruward Knowing the Unknowable, do not declare it
He effaces his self and does not exhibit it
He receives the fruit of bliss and gets its seed fructify in others. ...13

Pauri 14 (Love of the disciple)

Having the sight of the True Guru, the Sikh meditates on him
He reflects on the True Guru’s ‘Word’ and practises his knowledge
He abides at the lotus-feet of the Guru and is absorbed in his mantra
On serving the True Guru, he causes others to serve him
The disciple exhibits full faith in the Guru and causes the world to have full faith
The Guruward causes the Guru’s discipline to flourish and covers his own home with it. ...14

Pauri 15 (Yoga technique for gurmukh)

The Guru has caused his Sikhs to understand the device of spiritual unity
The Sikh remains unattached in the world of hopes, quite apathetic
He quaffs less water and eats less food
He talks less and does not waste time for nothing
He sleeps less during night and is not entrapped in attachment
He is not allured by greed even in his dream. ...15

Pauri 16 (Yoga technique for Gurmukhs)

His ear-ring is Guru’s instruction and he has listened to Guru’s mantra
He has got sewn the quilt of forgiveness and has obtained and put in his wallet the bowl
He falls at the feet and make the dust of the feet the ashes
His bowl is his cup of love and the food in it is liked by him
His staff is his reflection on knowledge, with which he tames the evils
The congregation is his cave of Equipoise, where he remains absorbed in contemplation. ...16

Pauri 17 (Other means of yoga a technique for Gursikhs)

The Guruward blows the significant horn of awareness and sounds the ‘Word’
His significant sect of ‘Aaee’ is the attainment of his own home
He pays obeisance to the Primal Purusha and comprehends the Incomprehensible
The Guru initiates the tradition of the disciple for stability of his mind in faith Causing him to rise above the world, he absorbs him in the ‘Word’. ...17
Pauri 18 (World, the game of dice)
Listening to the instructions of the Guru, the disciple was declared a Sikh
The Sikh learning the instructions of the Guru, gives it further to another Sikh Listening to the instructions of the Guru, he has absorbed his mind in love
He has liked the fellow-disciple accepting the Lord’s Will He comes into contact with his fellow-disciples
In this way he has won the world’s game of dice of sixteen chessmen with the pair. ...18

Pauri 19 (Game of Chess)
The world’s game of dice and its accessories have been made by the Lord
Including the elephants, horses, chariots and footmen
There are kings and ministers, who control both the armies
The warriors get jumbled up and begin the war
Only the Guruward moves on and reaches the destination
The minister, who becomes humble, the Guru causes him to reach the target. ...19

Pauri 20 (Living in the fear of God, Gurmukh attain union with formless God)
One is conceived in the fear of the Lord and takes birth in fear
The Guruward comes under the Guru’s refuge in fear
He practises the Word in fear in congregation
He becomes ‘Jiwan-mukta’ in fear and accepts Lord’s Will He makes his birth fruitful in fear and merges in Equipoise
He goes to his own home, in fear and realises the Perfect Lord. ...20

Pauri 21 (Praise of Guru)
Considering the Guru as God, the Sikh took his shelter Absorbing his mind in Guru’s feet, he does not swerve
He becomes stable in Guru’s discipline and attains his own Equipoise state
He works in Guru’s discipline and accepts Lord’s Will He effaces his self and merges in Truth
His coming into the world is fruitful and causes the world to cross the sea of existence. ...21
Varan Bhal Gurdas

VAR—XXI
One Oaṅkār the Eternal Truth, realized through the grace of divine preceptor

Pauri 1 (Invocation, Vähiguru and Praise of Satiguru)
The Lord is the king of kings, both the True and Beautiful,
The Supreme and Carefree, none knows His Limits,
His Court is also said to be Carefree,
His Nature is Unknowable and Unfathomable, with Marvellous Sports,
With True Praise and Inexpressible Tales,
I am a sacrifice to that Wondrous True Lord and True Guru. ... 1

Pauri 2 (Praise of Primal Lord)
Lakhs of Brahmas, Vishnus and Shivas remember Him, Narada, Sarda and Seshinaga sing His Praises, Ganas, Gandharvas and Ganesha sing His Eulogies playing their instruments,
The Six systems of Philosophies in various garbs exhibit imitations, Under instructions from their Gurus, the disciples are unable to know His Limits,
We bow before that Primal Purusha Whom none can Comprehend. ... 2

Pauri 3 (As above)
There are preceptors and Prophets, who Meditate on Him,
There are Sheikhs and Elders who are only His Destitutes,
Many people of high spiritual rank supplicate for His Grace,
Many of them standing at His Gate are happily absorbed in Him,
The holy men obtaining information about Him like Him utmost,
There is rare one, who enters His Court deserving High Position. ... 3

Pauri 4 (Creators Creation can’t be known)
Listening to holy texts the people deliver discourses on Him,
Both Hindus and Muslims have not comprehended the Truth,
Only they are Approved in His Court, who considered themselves lowly,
The Vedas, Katebs and the Quran could not know His end,
People of both the worlds marvel about God’s Marvellous Sports,
They are a sacrifice to the Creator, Whose Nature they enjoy. ... 4
Pauri 5 (Pleasure seekers are away from his abode)
Lakhs of elegant, beautiful and unique forms are destined to leave,
Many of good and bad colours emerge like waves and depart,
The musical modes and instruments in wonder sing about God, the Treasure of attributes,
Lakhs of tastes and relishes are being tasted and relished
There are millions of odours and smells, which keep spreading fragrances,
The kings and other strayed away from God's mansion, will not be able to enter it. ...5

Pauri 6 (Duality and Unity)
With the union of Shiva an Shakti the duality is created,
Within the play of the maya of three modes, people get stained and unstained,
Getting all the four substances, they get them strung and worn like garlands,
The beings of five elements waste themselves at the end,
The six seasons and twelve months bring experiences both good and bad,
The attainment of miraculous powers and treasures bring no satisfaction at all. ...6

Pauri 7 (Every thing useless without loving devotion)
Thousands and lakhs of wisdoms are of no use,
Knowledge, Contemplation and Supreme State cannot comprehend His Limits, Lakhs of moons and suns traverse day and night, in His Fear,
Lakhs of services for others during life are being performed,
Lakhs of works done in pride result in shamefulness,
Lakhs of religious faiths are being concentrated on Him,
But devotion with love for the Lord results in merger within Him. ...7

Pauri 8 (Without loving devotion, all is futile)
Lakhs of religious elders and kings cast their influence on others,
In several spiritual and worldly ways they create followings,
But they cannot fathom the unfathomable spiritual and worldly ways,
Innumerable disciples are under their refuge and in their service,
They even declare that there is no end to the Praises of the Lord,
The Lord's Court is Carefree, they stand in meditation. ...8
Pauri 9 (As above)
There are lakhs of chiefs and heads, who come and go,
There are lakhs of huge courts ever scheming and planning,
There are stores full of wealth, busy in estimations,
There are reformers of families, being called saviours,
There are people absorbed in greed, attachment, ego and fraud,
There are others indulging in good thoughts, move in all the ten directions,
There are lakhs of elders, busy in amusing their minds. ...9

Pauri 10 (Without loving devotion all else is futile)
There are lakhs of donors, begging from God and giving to others,
There are lakhs of incarnations, taking their birth and engaged in their works,
There are boatmen setting sails, but cannot comprehend the limits,
There are ruminating wise men, but cannot divulge the Lord's secret,
There are doers performing deeds and eliciting praise of others,
There are lakhs of cooks serving others and lakhs partaking their dishes,
There are lakhs of Courts and lakhs of serviteurs engaged in service. ...10

Pauri 11 (As above)
There are brave warriors, exhibiting their strength,
There are lakhs of listeners and lakhs of orators delivering speeches,
There are explorers busy in exploration moving in all the ten directions,
There are lakhs of people with long life, but with no knowledge of Lord's limits,
There are really very wise people, but who cannot train their minds,
They get due punishment in the Carefree Court of the Lord. ...11

Pauri 12 (Sufferings of ego and delights of contentment)
There are lakhs of doctors, who prepare medicines and sell them,
There are very erudite people with understanding, scheming and planning,
There are enemies, who remaining idle, enhance their strife's,
There are fightings for invasions, where warriors exhibit their strength,
Though it may be the present or past, the people cannot get their ego erased
One who remains contented and humble, he only rises above his self. ...12

Pauri 13 (Negation of ego lends to salvation)
There are lakhs of preceptors and their disciples, who meet one another,
There are lakhs a helpless people, who visit the graves of their martyrs,
There are lakhs fasts and festivals, wherein they perform prayers,
With speaking an listening, they amuse their minds,
There are cells of meditation under lock and key, where austerities are performed,
Those hermits who reach the gate of the Lord’s Court, rise above their selves. ...13

Pauri 14 (Ugly are the people who indulge in maya)
Building high mansions bedecked with cosy beds,
The great worldly-wise men make them under their names,
The kings raise millions of forts to stabilise their rule,
There are lakhs of officers with fat salaries,
All of them are filled with ego, therefore they come and go,
In the True Lord’s Court, they look really horrible. ...14

Pauri 15 (Hypocrisy does not avail there)
There are millions of holy shrines, where people take bath on religious festivals,
They are the places of gods and goddesses, where service is performed,
They perform lakhs of meditations, austerities and restraints,
They engage themselves in havanás and sacrifices and offer consecrated food,
They hold lakhs of fasts regularly, give charities and perform rituals,
In the Lord’s Carefree Court, hypocrisy is not approved. ...15

Pauri 16 (Man approved in the Court of the Lord is highest) Lakhs of boats float in the sea,
They do not get consciousness of the depth of the sea,
The mythical birds thinking and longing fly in the firmament,
Their young ones fly in the sky without getting any clue of the vastness,
They cannot search the Lord’s end in lakhs of skies and nether-worlds,
Before One Lord’s Court all the male and female entities look like dust-particles. ...16

Pauri 17 (Creation of the Vāhiguru - the wonderous Lord)
The Lord Created and exhibited this Play of the three modes of maya,
He Created the show of four divisions of creation and speech,
He Created the five elements and systematized them,
He Created six seasons and twelve months and well-organised them,
He lit the two lamps of sun and moon during day and night,
He Created the whole expanse with one utterance and Himself looks at His Creation. ...17
Pauri 18 (God is detached)
With one utterance the Lord Creates and Destroys His Creation,
Lakhs of rivers of life begin to flow without end,
Lakhs of universes seem merged in His Utterance without any upsurge in Him,
He Creates and Scans with glee lakhs of glorious entities,
Who can surmise it as an act of boon or a sinful act? ...18

Pauri 19 (The creator and His creation are infinite)
The Creation of the Lord is Unapproachable and Unfathomable, none can know its limits,
The Lord Himself is Carefree, none can tame Him,
How Great is His Court, tell me about this,
No body discloses the Path and how to tread it?
How Great is His Praise, how can we meditate on Him?
He Himself is Incomprehensible and Unfathomable, how can we know Him....19

Pauri 20 (Only grace of the God is desired)
He is the Primal Lord; He is Supreme and Primal, He is called Marvellous,
He is from the Beginning, He is Infinite and without Beginning, no words can describe Him,
He Pervades from the beginning and the beginning of Ages, He cannot be described by mere talk,
He is the Saviour of His devotees, He is Undeceivable, He is said to be realised in Supreme State,
In the Supreme State the limitless Music resounds and those in tune with it ever crave for it
Those absorbed in this Marvellous State realise the Perfect Lord,
Only the Lord can be realised with the grace of the Perfect Guru. ...20

VAR–XXII
One Oankär are the Eternal Truth, realized through the grace of divine preceptor

Pauri 1 (Invocation to the divine creation)
The Transcendent Lord is without any support and incomprehensible,
From Him He manifested Himself as One Immanent Lord,
Then He began the Play of Creation,
He, the Creator assumed the Name of Truth, His reputed Nature,
The True Sustainer manifested again the three modes of maya,
Thus the world was created with Writ on every head,
He gives sustenance to all without weighing it,
None knows the time, day, month of Creation,
Such a thought was not divulged by Vedas and Katebs. ...1

Pauri 2 (Divine Power)
Without any support and pressure He shot His arrow,
The swan flies at a great height, but who sends him,
It has marvellous power in its wings, which takes it to greater heights,
The saint Dhru mounted on the sky, getting a stable position,
The lowly are blessed with honours, who rose above their selves,
The enlightened one meditated on the Lord and obtained Honour in Lord’s Court. ...2

Pauri 3 (As above)
They searched for His end, but without any success,
Those who went on this search, were lost,
Millions did this search, but strayed in illusion,
His beginning is greatly wondrous, none knows the end,
He is Unfathomable, there is expansion of waves,
With one utterance the Unknowable expanse was created,
We are a sacrifice to the Creator, Whose Nature itself is Maya,
He alone knows Himself, the Guru has made it known. ...3

Pauri 4 (The Creation)
The True Creator is merged in Truth,
The air emerged from True Lord, which works in every being,
The water was created from air, which moves downwards,
The earth was made a boat, floating over water,
The fire was created from water, which pervades in the forest,
Though there is fire in wood, the trees bear fruit and flowers,
The Lord has combined together air, water and fire,
We bow before the Primal Purusha, who has manifested this Play. ...4

Pauri 5 (Creation)
How great is Truth, liked by the True Lord,
How great is air, which moves in all the four directions,
The vegetation which grows around sandalwood, is fragranced by it,
But the bamboo loses Its family, which burns down by colliding,

---
The Shiva and Shakti in sandalwood and bamboo have proved their mettle,
The nightingale and crow are both separately known by their utterance,
The beings of all the four divisions of creation have been given number of breaths
The five approved celestial sounds resound on entering the Lord's Gate. ...5

Pauri 6 (Qualities of a Sadhu)
The union of sound and musical mode remind us about the knowledge of God,
One who disciplines the nine doors is called a saint,
He rises above the worldly relations and enters his own home,
He moves beyond the Yogic Pranayama,
He takes his seat at Bhujangma channel after purifying himself,
He leaves Ira and Pingula channels and enters Sukhmana channel,
He disciplines the five Yogic Mudras and becomes a saint,
This saint playing the imperceptible Play enters the Supreme Spiritual State. ...6

Pauri 7 (Yoga)
The Yogi unites the mind air measuring three plus seven fingers,
He repeats the 'So-ham' mantra in equipoise state and realises the Lord,
He causes the ambrosial current to drip and quaffs the nectar,
He remains in tune with the limitless celestial tune and causes it to play,
Reciting the silent prayer, he merges in the highest state of meditation, Merging in the highest state of meditation he rises above his self,
The enlightened ones tasting the cup of love remain intoxicated in their own home,
The Gursikh gaining Unity realise the Perfect Lord. ...7

Pauri 8 (The Guru and the Sikh)
The light is lit by another light just as the lamp is lit by another,
Just as the vegetation near the sandalwood is fragranced,
Just as the waters of Ganga and Yamuna unite and flow as Triveni,
Just as the air mixes with air and the tunes resound as limitless music,
Just as the diamond cuts the diamond and pieces are strung as a necklace,
Just as the philosopher's stone lies mixed with other stones,
Just as the mythical bird remains with its young ones in the sky,
Likewise the soul unites with Brahman in-the blissful equipoise state. ...8
Pauri 9 (Praise of the Lord)
How great is the One Utterance, which resulted in the vast expanse, How great is the weighing balance, which weighed the created things,
How enhanced is the Utterance, which created millions of universes, Lakhs of earth are created and lakhs of skies remain suspended without columns,
Lakhs of airs, waters and fires have been created,
The Play of eighty-four lakhs of species has been created,
There is no end to the beings in all the species,
The Writs are recorded on the heads of all beings, who remember the Lord without Writ ...

Pauri 10 (The Path of Gurmukhs)
The True Guru has Uttered the True Name of the Lord,
The real thing is the Guru's Being, who is to be meditated,
There is the haven of holy congregation, where only Truth shines,
In Lord's Court, there is True Justice, His Hukm (Command) Pervades everywhere,
For the enlightened ones, the congregation is the True Village, where only Word abides,
There the ego is erased and only humility pervades,
Keeping the instructions of the Guru in their hearts, the enlightened ones endure the Unbearable,
We are a sacrifice to this enlightened one, who works under the Will of the Lord ...

Pauri 11 (Gurmukh, the Supreme Stage)
The Will of the Lord is True, which is liked by the enlightened one,
He remains at the feet of the Guru and rises above his self,
The disciple remains amused with the Guru's instruction and his mind is reassured by it,
The enlightened one in equipoise state knows the unknowable,
The Gursikh is without any greed and serves the Guru unhesitantly,
His attention is ever in tune with the Guru's Word and remains under his Command,
He leaves the worldly wisdom and enters his own home,
The enlightened one attains Bliss and merges in the Supreme spiritual state ...

Pauri 12 (Guru Angad Dev)

One Guru and one Sikh, this fact is known to the enlightened one,
Gursikh, the disciple of the Guru, merges in the True Lord,
They are True Guru and Sikh, who only talk only about the Word,
They are Marvelous in the past and future and shine only in Truth,
Their account cannot be written, they give honour to the lowly,
The nectar and poison are equal in their eyes and they do not transmigrate,
Within the limit of this target, they are apparently the enlightened ones,
This is really wondrous that from the Gursikh, other Gursikhs emerge. ...12

Pauri 13 (Virtues of the Gurmukhs and the glory of the dust)

Those who have quaffed the nectar from the cup of love,
They become familiar with the Omnipresent Lord and know the Unknowable,
The Lord, who fills every heart, merges within their hearts,
The seed erupts as greenery, which further grows into flowers and fruits,
The sandalwood being cool, fragrances the vegetation surrounding it,
Though sandal, moon and camphor are cool by nature, but not like the Gursikh,
Who pacifies like moon the heat of the sun of vices,
He applies the dust of the feet of the Guru on his forehead,
Which becomes the cause of producing new greenery in abundance,
With which the Light of God shines within and the limitless celestial tunes resound. ...13

Pauri 14 (As above)

With one Utterance of the Lord, the Unweighable Nature was produced, None can talk about that Lord, Who is Illustrious and Marvelous, Lakhs of rivers of life cause those waters to flow further,
The Gursikhs may be considered like precious diamonds and gems,
In them the instructions of the Guru have stabilised and they are Approved ones,
The path of the enlightened ones is Pure, True and Graceful,
The eulogisers are rare among lakhs, who are totally absorbed in the Word,
The dissolved dust of their lotus-feet is nothing less than ambrosia,
Which is quaffed to their fill by the Gurmukhs, whose story is indescribable. ...14
Pauri 15 (Vāhiguru, the wonderous Lord is ineffable)
We are a sacrifice to the Creator, Whose value is inestimable,
How great can be His Equivalent, cannot be described,
How great can be His Strength, He gives Honour to the lowly,
Lakhs of earth and skies are merely like sesame-seed in weight,
His creation consists of lakhs of universes, which make us wonder,
He is the Sovereign of sovereigns, His Command makes it apparent,
Lakhs of oceans are merely like a drop for Him,
Whatever people say about Him is untrue, His Story is Indescribable. ...15

Pauri 16 (Conduct of the Gurmukhs)
The enlightened one knows to work under the Will of the Lord,
On their Path the enlightened ones move under Lord’s Will They are firm on faith and forbearance ever remaining grateful to the Lord,
The enlightened ones Know the Unknowable of innumerable wonders,
They have been said to work like a child from olden times,
They remain intuned in the holy congregation being truthful and graceful,
Because of their knowledge of the Word, they are emancipated in their life,
The enlightened ones knowing their identity rise above their selves. ...16

Pauri 17 (Praise of Satguru)
The Unknowable State of the Lord is said to be Unfathomable,
It is Profound, Serene and Immeasurable, without cognition of its depth,
From One of His drops lakhs of currents flow, highly-flooded,
The enlightened ones eulogise Him relating indescribable stories,
He is Infinite and Limitless with boundless elegance,
His Court is Carefree and Stable,
The Lord Himself is Great and Carefree and strength for the weak,
We marvel at the Indescribable True Guru and True Guru. ...17

Pauri 18 (Holy congregation is the abode of Truth)
The holy congregation is the abode of the True Lord, this fact is known to the enlightened one,
Knowing the strength of the True Name, the enlightened one meditates on it,
He awakens within himself the powerful Supreme Light skilfully,
He has checked the whole universe and knows no light equal to it,
He who goes under His refuge, he never suffers the punishment of Yama,
His massive sins are destroyed and he does not go to hell.
Just as the husks are separated from rice-grains,
Likewise the True ones remain whole and safe and are saved from the false ones. ...18

Pauri 19 (Conduct of the gursikhs)
The Gursikhs are worthy of approbation, they have reformed their life,
This is the traditional practice of Gursikhs that they intensely love their Guru,
The enlightened one remembers the Lord’s Name with every breath,
He remains detached from maya and effaces his ego,
He considers himself lowliest of the lowly and gains high character,
He discards all hopes and reflect only on the Word,
He abides in the Supreme spiritual state after destroying the persistence of his mind,
His mind is fully enlightened and those who being sinful follow them are saved. ...19

Pauri 20 (As above)
The Gursikhs are hailed because they have come across the True Guru, Because of their remembrance of the Word, they even save their families,
The enlightened one has truthful character and works under the Will of the Lord,
He enters the gate of salvation because he has effaced his ego,
He has trained his mind, therefore he works for the welfare of others,
He has the base of Truth and also merges in Truth,
He remains uninfluenced from the public opinion,
By remembering the One Lord, He knows the Unknowable. ...20

Pauri 21 (The Nature and form of Gurmukhs)
The enlightened ones remain cool like the Light of the moon, and shower the nectar of Name,
By coming into contact with philosopher’s stone, eight metal are transformed into gold,
Abiding near the sandalwood, other plants also take the fragrance of sandalwood,
Coming into contact with the waves of Ganges, the streams become like the Ganges,
The swans, who go to Mansarovar lake leave all other desires,
The Gursikhs are like the Supreme swans, whom the people like to see,
Those who have taken refuge under the Guru become worthy of contact,
They become the residents of the heaven of holy congregation and thus become immortal. ...21
Pauri 1 (Invocation)
The True Guru manifested Perfect Brahman as Marvellous,
He meditated on the True Name of the Creator, the Transcendent Lord, With knowledge-giving True Guru's Word, we are made to hear the wonderful Limitless tune,
The discipline of the Guruwards has been set going with emphasis on Name, Charity and Cleanliness,
With his instructions, the Guru produced Gursikhs creating heaven like holy congregation,
Bestowing the traditional practice, the True Guru made the Gursikh bow at the feet of others,
In this way the Glory of falling at the Lotus-feet was made known. ...1

Pauri 2 (Pilgrimage centres and Sadhus)
The sins are removed on bathing at holy shrines and called them 'redeemer of sinners,
But the holy shrines are fruitful only on having the sight of the saints,
One becomes a saint on controlling the mind and enshrining in it the Lotus-feet of the Guru.
The Praise of the saint is Unfathomable and the saint is rare one among the millions,
There are innumerable Gursikhs in the world, with their abodes of piety at many places,
Bowing at the feet and washing them and taking their washings the feet are worshipped,
The resultant fruit is that the Guruwards know the Unknowable. ...2

Pauri 3 (Dust)
The Lord Created the five elements, out of which the Guruward Earth effaced its self,
Taking its example the Guruward taking refuge at the Lotus feet is blessed with all treasures and fruits,
It is within the knowledge of folks, Vedas and the Guru that the dust of the feet of saints saves the world,
This dust purifies the sinners and keeps the purity of the saintly people in tact,
The Praise of this dust is limitless, even the thousand-headed Seshinaga cannot measure it,
This dust effaces the Writ, it brings the mind under control,
The world falls at their feet, ho fall at the feet of the Guru. ...3

Pauri 4 (Lessons from the examples of Ganges)
The Ganges being the humble one left the heaven and came to the earth, Nine hundred and ninety-nine streams alongwith Ganges touched the sixty-eight holy stations,
Ganges is approved in the three worlds and Shiva mounted it on his head,
The gods and goddesses hail her with respect and talk about her with great praise,
Alongwith Ganges lakhs of heavens and lakhs of intuned masters of heavens speak out
That the dust of the feet of saints is invaluable, which is got with the blessing of Guru and congregation
None can evaluate the dust of the Lotus-feet. ...4

Pauri 5 (Grandeur of the pleasure fruit of gurmukhs) Lakshmi, who sits at the Feet of the Lord, has lakhs of powers, which cannot be comprehended,
The treasures and powers are her slaves, whom the adepts and strives cling Before whom bow the four Varnas, six Shastras, the celibates, the donors and nine Naths,
Who pervades with deception the three worlds, fourteen regions, in water, on plains, in sky and nether-world,
She comes alongwith her spouse in the presence of holy congregation,
She bows at the Feet and becomes the dust of the feet, she effaces her self and does not get noticed,
The Guruward obtains the fruit of bliss, it is his greatness. ...5

Pauri 6 (Grandeur of the Lotus feet in contest with King Bali Story)
The Lord manifes himself as Vaman and deceived Bali but because of his devotion was Himself guiled,
He asked for two and a half steps of land but later on enlarged His body,
He measured the three worlds in only two steps being followed by Bali, Considering him better than being the king of heaven the kingship of netherworld was bestowed upon him,
Being affectionate towards His devotee, He appointed Brahma, Vishnu and Shiva as His watchmen,
Lakhs of Immaculate Vamans long for the dust of holy congregation the fulfiller of all the wishes,
Thus I have meditated upon the Feet of the Guru in the holy congregation. ...6
  Pauri 7 (Parsu Ram remained devoid of the delight of the lotus-feet)
Sahasarabahu came to the house of Jamdagni as a guest,
He became greedy of Kamadhenu, the wish-fulfilling cow, and got the head of Jamdagni slashed,
Hearing the cries of Jamdagni’s wife Renuka, Parasarama came instantly,
He, in anger, killed the Kshatriyas for twenty-one times,
Those who came under his shelter remained safe and no other dared to take up sword against him,
Though a long-lived one, he could not erase his ego and made himself known,
He could not taste the nectar of the Lotus feet. ...7
  Pauri 8 (Lessons from Ramchandar dust of feet)
When Kaushalya, the queen of Dasrath, became pregnant in the festivity of the royal palace,
In their pleasure of easy life, both husband and wife began to discuss
If the son is born to them, what name was to be given to the child, Naming him Ramchand, they were absolved of three murders (of Sarwan and his parents), ‘Ram-Rajya’ is famous in the world for Truth, Contentment and Piety, Rema was indifferent to worldly attachments and used to listen to Puranas from sage Vasishtha,
The high ideals of ‘Ram-Rajya’ were in vogue, when touched by his feet, the stony-Ahalya was transformed,
The holy congregation loves the dust of the feet of Gursikhs. ...8
  Pauri 9 (Krishṇachandrāvatar)
Krishna incarnated in the world, his greatness is described in the Tenth Skand,
His Plays were marvellous, and he indulged in worldly merriments and spiritual pleasures,
He was responsible for Mahabharat and surprised both Kurus and Pandavas,
The gods like Indra and the Trinity do not sufficiently know his greatness,
When after Mahabharat, Rajsuya sacrifice was performed the duties were to be allotted, Krishna took the service of washing the feet of the saints and joyfully relishing their washings,
Such recognition comes with the Word of the Guru in the holy congregation. ...9

Pauri 10 (Incarnation of Lord is available but the feet of Guru are rare)
The Lord incarnating as Fish, with great effort, saved the Vedas,
When He incarnated as Tortoise, the Ocean was churned and gems were produced,
When He incarnated as the Third one i.e. Boar, He saved the earth and killed the demons,
When He incarnated as the Fourth one i.e. Narsingh, He killed the demons and saved Prehlad,
In one universe, He manifested Himself in Ten incarnations,
He Created millions of universes merging them in every pore,
The One Lord has produced millions of such incarnations,
But the Lotus Feet of the Guru are Unapproachable and infinitely Great. ...10

Pauri 11 (Feet of the Guru are the best ones)
The Shastras, Vedas and Puranas speak out whatever they have come to know, Lakhs of musical modes, listening to the Limitless tunes, sing the Praises of the Lord,
Lakhs of Seshinagas and Lomsas attune themselves in the Unknowable Lord, Brahma, Vishnu and Shiva do not know the end of the knowledge and contemplation of the Lord,
The gods and goddesses remember the Lord, but neither they can know his secret nor can they reach Him,
Lakhs of adepts like Gorakh and Machhinder meditate the ‘Neti, Neti’ Lord,
The Lotus-feet of the Guru are Unapproachable. ...11

Pauri 12 (Only the higher is alone not respectable)
Seeing a frown on Brahmin’s forehead, the outgoing one relinquishes the idea of going out,
Tying of crooked turban with twists by an egoist is not considered respectable,
The eyes which look in duality are not worshipped,
Nobody likes that nose, which shows signs of contempt for others,
Those ears are not liked, which indulge in Praise and slander,
That tongue is not liked, which surrounded by the teeth, relishes many tastes,
The feet are the lowliest, but are worshipped with hands. ...12
Pauri 13 (Lesson from the Symbol of Goat)
The flesh of the egoist elephant and the powerful lion are not eaten,
The goat is humble, it is honoured in both the worlds,
Its flesh is accepted on the occasions of death and marriage and also in sacrifices and big feasts,
Its meat is good for householders, the strings of instruments playing hymns are made from its intestines,
The shoes are prepared from its skin, which are worn by people visiting saints,
The pairs of Indian drums are made from its skin, on which ‘kirtan’ is performed in congregation,
Going to the congregation amount to taking refuge under the True Guru. ... 13

Pauri 14 (Human body)
All the bodies are useless, but the most impure is the human body, It eats many types of foods and sweetmeats, which result in faeces and urine of bad odour,
The fine silken clothes are become dirty on it, the betel and camphor meeting it become miserable,
The fragrant articles like sandalwood meeting it emit offensive smell,
The ruling kings and sovereigns collide and get killed, Without the impact of congregation and Guru’s Word, the human body is fruitless,
Those who adopt the refuge of the Feet and live in humility have a fruitful body. ... 14

Pauri 15 (Names of the devotees-bhagats)
The enlightened ones obtained the fruit of bliss, who came under the shelter of the Guru and congregation,
Dhru Prehlad, Ambrik and Bali were all devotees,
The congregation emancipated Sanak etc. Jaidev and Balmik, Beni, Trilochan, Namev, Dhanna and Sadhna were called saints,
Kabir, Ravidas and Bidar were liked by the Guru, Amongst all the castes they are Guruwards, whose minds are absorbed in the Lotus-Feet,
They effaced their ego and became renowned. ... 15
Pauri 16 (Quarl of Hindus and muslims is useless)
Listening to the Vedas, the knowledgeable describe the things of knowledge,
The people of heaven, earth and seven nether-worlds though listening do not know anything,
In the past, present and future, the people in the beginning, middle and end are perplexed at not grasping,
The superior middling and lowly people do not understand the marvellous Play,
The people of all the three qualities only speak out, whatever they have heard,
They only stray in mind, speech and actions and do not recognise the congregation and the True Guru,
Both Hindus and Muslims are nonsensical chattering. ...16

Pauri 17 (Duties of the Yugas the time periods)
In the Satyuga, if one person did any wrong act, the whole country was punished,
In Treta Yuga the town was punished and in Dvapar Yuga the whole family,
But in Kaliyuga there is true justice, whosoever does anything wrong, only he is punished,
In Satyuga, the Truth was considered supreme, in Treta the sacrifices and in Dvapar the worship,
In Kaliyuga the remembrance of Name is supreme and one is not emancipated with other works,
In the previous ages, one reaped what he had sown, good actions brought comforts and sins sufferings,
But in Kaliyuga one who thinks of good actions is rewarded, but who commits sins is punished,
The fruit of bliss is received by the Guruward on effacing his self. ...17

Pauri 18 (Example of the Dharma Bull)
Seeing injustice in feet of the Bull-Dharma became useless, and the people became busy in worship-works,
In Kaliyuga, the Bull-Dharma has only one foot to stand, he became much distressed,
The True Guru Nanak, giver of honour to the lowly, laid foundation of ‘Sadh Sangat’ on manifestation,
The Great Guru stabilised the Dharma-Bull. ...18
Pauri 19 (Path of the Gurmukh)

The Great Guru made one caste of the four and brought forth the congregation with one caste of humanity,
In the world of six seasons and six Shastras he made prevalent the sunlight of Guru’s instruction.
He was victorious over the twelve Paths of Yogis and started his Glorious Path of Gurmukhs, Outside the pale of Vedas and Katebs, he uttered the Unapproachable Limitless Unstruck melody,
The practice of falling at the feet of Gursikhs and becoming their dust was recognised,
Rising above the worldly ties, they effaced their self and absorbed themselves in silent utterance of Name,
They move beyond the world of boons and curses. ...19

Pauri 20 (The king and the poor are equal)

When the two Muslims meet, they greet other with ‘Salamaa lekam’
When the Yogis meet, they say ‘Aad Purakh Ades’
When Sannyasis meet, they greet with ‘O-nam Narayan’,
When Brahmins meet, they bow and say ‘Namaskar’,
When the Gursikhs meet, they greet with ‘Pairin Pavana’, this is the practice fixed by the True Guru,
There is no distinction of the king and the pauper, the child and the old,
There is no outline for the saints spreading fragrance like sandalwood. ...20

Pauri 21 (Examples of the humility)

To be called the lowliest of the low, this instruction is practised by the rare ones,
Before the sixty paise, the one rupee coin looks very light,
Taking ten rupees before us, one gold coin is also very light,
We get a diamond against one thousand gold coins, which is stringed in a necklace,
From mind, speech and action we erase fear and illusions by utter humility,
One becomes superb by controlling the mind and destroying the five evils,
The utterances of such saints are very invaluable. ...21
Pauri 1 (Invocation)
The Lord, manifesting His Immanent Form, became the Patron-Lord of all, The Lord, Who is the Sovereign of men, adopted this Form, He is the Creator, the Doer of all causes and the Keeper of His Natural Repute, He is the Great God of all the gods and goddesses, the Incomprehensible and Unknowable,
The True Gum Nanak caused the meditation on the True Name of the Lord, He established a ‘dharamsala’ at Kartarpur, where the heaven like holy congregation was founded, Where Wahegum’, the Word of the Guru was recited. ... 1

Pauri 2 (Guru of the World)
The Great Guru laid the eternal foundation of the heaven-like holy congregation, The Path of enlightened ones was started, which is immeasurable and infinite ocean of bliss, There the True Name is meditated upon, which is inaccessible, imperceptible and indistinguishable, There the instruction is for every man or woman, six philosophies and all worshippers, The enlightened ones are absorbed in devotion with love, sweet talk and humility, There the obeisance is for the Primal Purusha, who is eternal, undeceivable and impenetrable, Such a Great Guru is Guru Nanak Dev. ... 2

Pauri 3 (The True Emperor)
The True Guru is the True Sovereign, Carefree and Unfathomable Master, He is called the Uplifter of the lowly, without any indigence and attachment, The Transcendent Lord of limitless attributes is recognised as Unknowable and Infinite, His Lordship is Permanent for all times and He is Omnipresent, thus say the Vedas and Katebs, He is Unapproachable, Inestimable and Steady, Who is unweighable by any balance,
He rules like Great Sovereigns, but without any enemies and din,
Like a Great Judge, he judges all, He is neither cruel not there is any tyrant
Baba (Guru) Nanak manifests himself as the Living Preceptor and the Guru of the world. ...3

Pauri 4 (As above)
The Ganges and Varanasi are adorable for Hindus and Mecca and Kaaba for the Muslims,
In every home the Baba is eulogised, where musical instruments are being played,
He has manifested himself as Saviour of the devotees and sinners and is doing marvellous things,
All castes have now only one caste, meeting in the holy congregation and being ferried across,
Just like all the vegetation near the sandalwood have the same fragrance,
All are under the Command of the Guru, none dares to do anything wrong,
Baba (Guru) Nanak manifests himself as the living preceptor and the Guru of the world. ...4

Pauri 5 (Advent of Guru Angad)
Guru Nanak created another limb from his limbs like a wave on the surface of the Ganges,
With his attributes of Profundity and serenity, the enlightened one was called the Guru and Lord.,
He is the giver of happiness and suffering, for him both happiness and suffering are the same,
The Guru has become a disciple and the disciple became the Guru, both became one,
The fruit and the tree continue to grow just like the father and son continue their progeny,
The Transcendent and Perfect Lord by attuning the consciousness and Word has made Himself known, Likewise Guru (Baba) Nanak manifested himself as Guru Angad. ...5

Pauri 6 (Guru Angad imported the spiritual knowledge)
From one philosopher’s stone another one came, the True Guru was pleased and called the other True Guru,
From the sandalwood another one came up and the Guru’s instruction took the form of a discipline,
The Light merged in the light, the bliss of the Guru’s instruction effaced the suffering of bad intellect,
The wondrous meets the wondrous and the marvellous merged in the marvellous,
The nectar was quaffed from the flowing current and the unendurable was endured,
The Truth merged in the Truth, the discipline continued to be practised in the holy congregation,
In the house of Guru (Baba) Nanak Lehna (Guru Angad) radiated like a Light. ...6

_Pauri 7 (The Worthy Son Guru Angad)_
The Word merged in the Word, the enlightened Guru fashioned the unhewn ornament,
He worked in love-devotion and fear and rose above his self and strifes,
He attained the Lordship over both the worlds, but the enlightened one remained in seclusion,
He became powerful, but he remained undeceivable in this fraudulent world,
Being absorbed in Truth, contentment mercy and piety, he attained the Supreme state in the world of maya,
He forsook lust, anger and enmity and effaced greed, attachment and ego,
Such like son of Guru (Baba) Nanak was Lehna. ...7

_Pauri 8 (As above)_
Having been blessed by Guru Nanak, Guru Angad grew into a tree of ambrosia,
The Light lit another light just like a lamp lighting another lamp,
The diamond perforated another diamond, the undeceivable deceived the undeceivable, Nobody could comprehend that the water became one with another water-current,
The Glorious True Guru melted and became one with the truthful.
The True throne is eternal, and its rule is steady and eternal,
The Lord presented the True Word to the Guru and from the True mint the coin came out,
All the adepts, Naths and incarnations stood there with folded hands
And received the True Command, which cannot be evaded. ...8
Pauri 9 (Guru Amar Dās)
The Undeceivable, Impenetrable and Indistinguishable Lord with love for the devotee got deceived,
Being beyond the limits of Praise and being Immeasurable none could discern His Limits,
The real traditional practice of bowing at the feet of the Guru has brought the whole world to his feet,
The Guruward obtained Supreme Spiritual State as the fruit of bliss and the ambrosial tree flourished,
The Guru and disciple became one, the Purusha created another Purusha and merged in him,
In the present state of the world, another one (Amar Das) came and entered the Supreme spiritual state,
Guru Amar Das made prevalent the True Command. ...9

Pauri 10 (Guru Nanak’s grandson-Amar Dās)
Absorbing the Consciousness in the Word, the disciple became the Guru and the Guru became the disciple, Though warp and woof are separate, but the thread is one and thereby the cloth is prepared,
The curd is made from the milk and the butter is made from the curd, which makes the event graceful,
The juice is obtained by crushing the sugarcane from which the sugar and lump-sugar made,
With the mixture of milk, sugar and ghee, several things of wonderful taste are made,
With the combination of betel, aeronaut and catechu, crushed with teeth, a good red colour appears,
Likewise Amar Das, the grandson of Guru Nanak is exclusively new. ...10

Pauri 11 (Guru Amar Dās)
The sesame with flowers take the form of scented oil, likewise the Gursikh becomes so with the Guru,
Likewise there is a wonderful Play of cotton turning into various kinds of cloth,
The Guru’s image is the Guru’s Word, which can be remembered in the-early hours in the congregation,
The Lordship of the world is false, one should only be proud of pursuing the Truth,
The gods and goddesses run away on seeing the Guru like the animals on seeing the tiger,
The Sikhs follow the Guru’s will as though their noses are strung,
Guru Amar Das is the truly soothing Guruward. ...11

Pauri 12 (Guru Amar Dās)
From the True Guru emerged the other True Guru, the Marvellous Amar Das started the unique play,
He had the same frontal mark and the same throne and he gave the same True Command,
He opened the treasure of the Word and united in the congregation the researchers of Truth,
The Guru approved the disciple and caused all the people bow at his feet,
The enlightened ones meditated on the One Lord and effaced the duality and the vices,
All the Gursikhs leaving their family traditions remained detached from the world of maya,
The Perfect Guru created a complete management. ...12

Pauri 13 (Guru Amar Dās)
Salutations to the Primal Purusha and the Guru, Who made prevalent the Word from the very beginning,
Making the Gursikh firm on Name, Charity and Cleanliness, caused him to be ferried across the world,
Though Kaliyuga stands on one foot, but the Guru propagated the Dharma of four feet, Guru Amar Das Bhalla considering the welfare of all continued the discipline of the elders, Attuning the consciousness in the Word, the Guru caused the Gursikhs to know the Unapproachable Lord,
None could fathom the Unfathomable Lord, Who is beyond the comprehension,
The Guru is unique, but did not exhibit his self. ...13

Pauri 14 (Guru Rām Dās)
Guru Ramdas is above attachment and enmity and only the life-style of a saintly king prevails,
He is Infinite and Limitless, no one could know his secret in mind, speech and action,
He is donor, enjoyer and merciful, he raised a divine temple and emancipated his Sikhs in congregation,
He remains in equipoise trance and is beyond comprehension, adorning the Truth,
Guru Ramdas emerged from Guru Amar Das, kindling another light, to whom we bow,
The Gursikh absorbed his consciousness in the Word and the ambrosial current of Limitless melody flowed
The Guru’s throne and fortune became apparent in the world. ...14

Pauri 15 (Guru Rām Dās)
Like his father and grandfather, the great-grand-son had the approval of great-grand-father,
There was total sleep in the Kaliyuga, he awoke in Guru’s instruction and awakened others,
He became the supporting column of both the worlds and supported a heavy burden of Atharva Veda, Boarding the Guru’s ship no worldly fears prevailed and no dipping in water,
On the Guru’s shop the Gursikh casts off the vices and imbibes qualities, there the trade is fruitful,
Once united, he does not suffer any separation and strings for himself the necklace of qualities,
He never gets polluted again, once he takes bath in the Pure waters of the Guru-ocean,
In the family of Guru (Baba) Nanak Guru Ramdas was like an unpolluted Pure Lotus. ...15

Pauri 16 (As above)
The enlightened one is united with the True Lord, the Truthful meets the True One,
In a householder’s family, he enjoys various relishes like a king,
He remains detached in the world of hopes, like a Yogi, he knows the discipline of Yoga,
He ever gives and never asks for anything, he neither dies nor separated,
He never experiences any ailment and ever remains healthy and does not suffer any disease,
Pleasure and Pain are equal to him, following the Guru’s instructions he rises above happiness and sorrow,
He rises above the consciousness of his body and remains detached in the world. ...16

Pauri 17 (As above)
There is only One Lord and there will be no other place,
Guru Ramdas is the Supreme swan in the ocean of Peace, with him there is food of the gems of Gurmat,
The Gursikh should quaff the milk of Truth and leave the water of falsehood and imbibe only Gurmat,
He should remember the Lord with full concentration, and cast off all the duality, Attuning his consciousness in the Word in the congregation and experience in his house the Sahaja State,
The Guru is above the cycle of birth and death, he is a philanthropist and Supreme Yogi,
Within Guru Ramdas is merged the Light of Guru Amar Das. ...17

Pauri 18 (Guru Arjan Dev)
Guru Arjan Dev is called unknowable, beyond birth and death and infinite like the Lord,
His Light is the Supreme Light of the Lord Himself and above the lights of sun and moon,
Within him kindles the resplendent Light of God, he is the life of the world and all the world hails him,
The whole world bows before him like the Primal Purusha, whosoever bows before him, is emancipated,
In the world of four major castes and six Shastras, his discipline is of Guruwards teaching truthful character,
The Guruward is firm on Name, Charity and Cleanliness and attains salvation through the devotion of love,
Guru Arjan Dev is the real creator. ...18
Pauri 19 (Guru Arjan Dev)

Guru Arjan Dev became the Powerful Light of the family of his spiritual forefathers,
He occupied their throne and fortune and propagated his discipline of absorbing consciousness in the Word,
He created a treasure of Gurbani and remained absorbed in 'Kirtan' and 'Katha' of the Lord,
The ambrosial current of Limitless melody trickled and he quaffed the nectar of Perfect Love,
The Guru's society is the holy congregation, where the trade of the gems and rubies of Name is carried on,
The Flag and Court of the Guru are true and their power and honour are also true,
The rule of Guru Arjan Dev is Superb and Eternal. ...19

Pauri 20 (Guru Arjan Dev)

All the people of four directions bowed to him, innumerable Sikh Sangat came to him,
There was free kitchen of Guru's Word, the Perfect one had made perfect arrangements,
The canopy of the Guruwards is divine and the Guru remains absorbed in the Supreme state of Perfect Lord
He is beyond the pale of Vedas and Katebs and the Guruward is absorbed in the Word in congregation,
The Guru keeps the Sikhs detached from mammon and innumerable Gursikhs have become as saint Janak,
His demeanour cannot be evaluated, his story is indescribable and it is not possible to comprehend him,
The Guruwards are rewarded with the fruit of bliss spontaneously. ...20

Pauri 21 (Guru Hargobind from Guru Arjan Dev)

Guru Hargobind is above happiness and sorrow, he is powerful to make or mar whatever he wants,
He is detached from relishes and attractions and is indifferent towards all enjoyments and pleasures,
He is beyond the discussions and intelligence, he is beyond the pale of intellect and reasoning,
The Guru and the Lord are one. Hargobind is ever in bloom, Marvellous meets the marvellous and wondrous with wondrous,
To walk on the path of the Guruward is like accomplishing the most difficult task,
The Gursikh takes only a Gursikh alongwith him. ...21

Pauri 22 (Praise of the Guru, Lessons for the Sikh)
The swan emerges from a swan and with its knowledge it separates water from the milk,
The tortoise emerges from a tortoise and in contemplation it does not experience any swirl,
The crane emerges from a crane and remembering its young ones it soars in the sky,
The Gursikh knows and loves his Guru and is absorbed in contemplation and remembrance of Gurbani,
The Gursikhs getting instructions from the Guru should consider the congregation as their worldly abode,
They should bow at the feet and become their dust, they should cast off ego and remain in humility,
They should quaff the washings of the feet of the Guru considering it as nectar. ...22

Pauri 23 (Guru Arjan Dev’s light mingling with the eternal light)
The Guru was then in the river there like the fish-family absorbed in the love of stable Lord,
Having the Lord’s Sight His Light merged in the Supreme Light of the Lord like a moth, Attuning his consciousness in the Name like a deer in distress thinking of nothing else in the mind,
Doting on the Lotus-feet of the Lord like a bumble bee, the night passed away in bliss,
He did not forget the instruction of the Guru, he repeated the Lord’s Name like the rain-bird,
The Guruward Guru Arjan Dev considered the relish of love and tranquil trance in congregation,
I am a sacrifice to Guru Arjan Dev. ...23
Pauri 24 (Guru Hargobind)
The Transcendent himself has created the True Guru, Guru Arjan Dev, The Guru and the Lord are one, though they have two different names, The son from the father, both father and son, are like marvellous from the marvellous, The fruit from the tree, the fruit and the tree, were comely and graceful, wondrous from wondrous, There are said to be two banks of a stream, but being asked none could know their limits, None else had known the Lord, but the Guru and disciple together have known the Unknowable, Hargobind, both Gobind and Guru, having two different names are actually One. ...24

Pauri 25 (Description of the Sixth Guru) Nanak Dev is the Transcendent Lord and the Lord Himself has Created him from His Self; From Guru Nanak’s limb Guru Angad emerged like the wave of the Ganges, From Guru Angad, Guru Amar Das came having the same Light, a miracle occurred, From Guru Amar Das, Guru Ramdas appeared, the Limitless melody of the Word resounded, From Guru Ramdas, Guru Arjan Dev came like a reflection shown in the mirror, From Guru Arjan came Guru Hargobind, who was called Guru Gobind, The image of the Guru is in the Word of the Guru, which manifested itself in the holy congregation, Falling at the feet of the Guru, the whole world was saved. ...25

VAR-XXV
One Oanikar the Eternal Truth realized through the grace of divine preceptor

Pauri 1 (Invocation to the Sixth Guru) The Guru made obeisance to the Primal Lord and the Lord made the whole world bow before the Guru, The Lord created the material world and caused the Guru to be called Guru Govind,
The Transcendent Lord became Immanent and the Unknowable made Himself known,
The congregation meditated on Him and He, as lover of the devotees, got Himself deceived,
The Lord created the world and expanded the whole universe with one Utterance,
With His every pore, he kept millions of universes,
The saintly persons meditated on the feet of the Guru. ...

Pauri 2 (Path of the Gurmukh)
Those who set their foot on the Path of the Guruward did not stray in ten directions and twelve paths, Keeping their attention on the image of the Guru, they visualised the Perfect Brahman in every heart,
Attuning their consciousness of mind in the Word, they attained the knowledge of the Guru, Tasting the saltless stone, they were able to quaff the ambrosial washings of the Lord’s Lotus-Feet, Steadying their mind in the Guru’s instruction, they attained Bliss in their own home,
They effaced any desire for other’s body and wealth and remain detached on getting the contact of the Guru
Coming into the holy congregation, they have controlled the uncontrollable mind. ...

Pauri 3 (Spiritual perfection of the Gurmukhs)
Just as the seed of the banyan tree, when sown, grows and expands into a huge tree,
In the tree there are thousands of fruit and in each fruit there are many seeds,
The obeisance is made to the Primal Lord like the honour shown to the second day’s new moon in the sky,
The saintly persons are like stars in the heaven of the holy congregation,
Bowing at the feet, they become the, dust of the feet, they efface their self and do not exhibit it,
The Guruward attains the fruit of bliss like saint Dhru, who got a permanent abode in the sky,
All the stars circumambulate him. ...
Pauri 4 (Bhagat Namdev, the Saint)

Namdev was a Calico-printer, that Guruward was absorbed in devotion with love for the Lord.
The Kshatriyas and Brahmins, the higher castes were busy in Praise of the Lord, Namdev was seized and made to go, who went in the back-yard to sing the Lord's Praises,
The Lord who is said to be the lover of devotees kept his honour by revolving the temple,
The Lord's Court gives honour to the lowly, who take the refuge of the Guru in the congregation,
All the four high and low castes fell at the feet of the saint,
Like the water, which flows downwards. ...4

Pauri 5 (Saints have no caste)
The demon Vibhishan was a saint, Vidur and the prostitute had taken shelter under Him, Dhanna was said to be a Jat and Sadhna belonged to the low caste of butchers,
The weaver saint Kabir and Namdev, the calico-printer sang the Praises of the Lord, Ravidas belonged to the family of cobblers and Sain was a low-caste barber,
The she-crow brings up the nightingale, who ultimately goes to meet her family,
Krishan was brought up by Yashodha, but he was said to be the lotus of the family of Vasudeva,
No pot is considered special for the ghee, likewise the saints are above the high and low castes,
They have taken the refuge of the Lotus-feet of the True Guru. ...5

Pauri 6 (Examples of the lowly places and the best articles)
There is lump sugar in the hornet's nest and honey in the beehive,
The silk-cloth is made from silk produced by worms and after flogging the hemp the paper is made,
The cotton-seed is the cause of making muslin, the lotus comes out of mud on which dotes the bumble bee,
Likewise the topmost vertebra comes from black snake and among the stones the diamonds and gems shine
The musk is obtained from the navel of the deer and the sword is made from iron,
The civet is made from the marrow of cat, which spreads fragrance in the social gathering,
Likewise the saints arose from low castes and attained the superb fruit. ...6

Pauri 7 (Tale of the King Bali)

The king Bali was the grandson of Prehlad, who longed to become the Lord of Inderpuri (heaven),
After completing a hundred yajnas he was performing the hundred - first yajna,
The Lord came there as Vaman, he effaced the ego of Bali and emancipated him,
He left the idea of Inderpuri and under the Command of the Lord went to the nether-world,
After deceiving the king Bali, he got himself deceived and became his watchman,
Just as the shell taking in it the rain-drop is gracefully converted into a gem after diving,
Likewise the diamond perforates the diamond on meeting it. ...7

Pauri 8 (Example of an ant)

The ant is called the lowliest of the lowly, it does not exhibit itself,
Its Path is like that of Guruward, thousands of ants merge in one hole,
Wherever there is odour of ghee and sugar, it goes there,
If the sugar is spilt in the sand, it picks and consumes each grain,
It dies in the fear of bumble bee, but it itself is transformed into a bee,
The eggs of tortoise and crane remain detached after producing young ones,
Likewise the Guruward is rewarded with the fruit of bliss after receiving instructions from the Guru. ...8

Pauri 9 (Many a story of becoming humble)

Vyas went to the Sun-god receive high learning, where it entered the ear of his horse as an insect,
When it returned after receiving education, he, the Guruward, was liked by the sage Valmiki,
He was known as the Primal Vyas, who prepared the Shastras, Vedas and Puranas,
But for peace of mind he received instructions from sage Narada and attained peace after reading Bhagavat,
After amending the fourteen learnings, he became peaceful after accomplishing the welfare works,
The holy congregation is philanthropist, which according to its nature saves the sinners,
The honour of the Guruward was kept and he received the fruit of bliss. ...9

Pauri 10 (Sukhdev)
Taking birth from the mother's womb after twelve years, Sukhdev remained detached,
Though he became indifferent towards maya, but he could not free himself from the persistence of mind,
His father Vyas instructed him to go to the king Janaka, who remained in state of spiritual equipoise,
He forsook the vices and adopted the Guru's instruction and received approbation for getting leftovers
Being absorbed in Guru's instructions, he effaced his ego and all the world came to serve him,
The Guru's instruction unfolded to him the practice of becoming the dust of the feet and the love-devotion,
The Guruward was rewarded the fruit of bliss in the spiritual state. ...10

Pauri 11 (Virtues of the Gursikhs)
The king Janaka enjoyed both worldly and spiritual grandeur, the Vedas call him a great saint,
Sanak etc. and Narada remained detached from their very childhood,
The Gursikh passing through lakhs of such grandeurs remain detached in the holy congregation,
Those who exhibit their self come to grief and those who efface their ego recognise their self,
The Path of the Gurmukh is the Path of the True Lord, which teaches everyone utter humility,
The Gursikh forgets the pride and ego and under Guru's instruction remains humble in his mind,
On becoming humble, the Guruward receives honours in Lord's Court. ...11
Pauri 12 (Virtues of the feet wash)
The head remaining high in pride is full of darkness like the black hair,
The eyelids are full of darkness and the eyelashes are like the dark spikes,
The eyes are considered dark and the face is turned dark like the beard and the whiskers,
There are many hair in the nose and every pore is dark and frightening,
The higher limbs are not worshipped and for the Guruward, the dust of the feet is the abode of piety,
The face of the nails of feet is bright, which carry the burden of the body, the abode of sufferings,
To quaff the washings of the head is impure, the Guruwards are only the seekers of the washings of feet,
The Guruward is rewarded the fruit of bliss, they abide happily in the state of equipoise. ...12

Pauri 13 (Godly creation)
Earth the abode of piety is installed in water, but the water is also within the earth,
The earth, which come under the refuge of the Lotus-feet, it abides permanently in forbearance and piety,
On the earth, there is farming, there are inexhaustible trees, flower-gardens, plants and grass,
There are many tanks, seas, mountains, Merus, which are full of enjoyable gems and substances,
There are sacred places of gods, many holy shrines and various substances of colour, form and relishes,
Because of the practice of Guru and disciple, the Guruwards in congregation appear as treasure of qualities,
The Guruwards remain detached in the world of hopes and obtain the reward of bliss. ...13

Pauri 14 (Worship of the feet of Sadhu)
The Lord has kept the millions of universes in His each pore,
That Transcendent Lord became Immanent True Purusha and True Guru,
People of all the castes have taken shelter in the congregation and under True Guru,
The Guruwards are ever absorbed in Lord’s meditation and remembrance and attune themselves in Word,
In both Fear and Love of the Lord, they inhabit image of the True Guru in their heart,
Since the feet carry the weight of the body, the worship of the feet of the saints is superb,
The reward of bliss of the Guruwards is invaluable. ...14

Pauri 15 (Unjust Kings)

Rain comes in showers and moving down from the gutters it flows in the streets,
Lakhs of channels gush further and Lakhs of currents run in floods,
Lakhs of channels and currents further mix into streams,
Nine hundred and ninety nine streams move towards east and west,
These streams and rivers fall into the sea and unite with it,
The seven seas go further into the ocean. which still needs filling,
These oceans go into the nether-world and merge like a drop on the hot plate,
The heads of lakhs of sovereigns become the fuel to heat the plate,
Who, claiming their right over the world collide with one another. ...15

Pauri 16 (Two Kings and twenty Faquirs)

Two sword cannot fit in the same scabbard likewise the two kings in the same country,
But twenty recluses in a mosque hide themselves under the same quilt,
Two lions in the same forest cannot abide, but there are innumerable seeds in a poppy-pod,
The poppy pod at first endures torture and then sold in the bazar at a high price,
The seeds of poppy are crushed in an oil-press and the extract of distilled poppies is quaffed,
In the Lord’s Carefree Court-the egoists are considered sinners and the humble are honoured,
Though the Guruwards are powerful, they only show themselves quite meek. ...16

Pauri 17 (She goat)

The lion seized a goat which laughed while dying,
The lion asked her the cause in wonder as to how she did so,
The goat supplicated that her offspring be castrated,
They eat wild plants and still they are very mercilessly killed,
They are beheaded to eat their flesh, but what will become of those killers?
The bodies of egoists will become dust, but what about those who eat and do the forbidden things,
Every one who has been born in the world will surely pass away. ...17
Pauri 18 (Gurmukh)
The Guruwards who abiding in congregation has practised the tradition of falling at the lotus feet, They becoming the dust of the feet have become accountless and eternal, Quaffing the washings of the feet of the Guru, they have become free from all ailments, Under instructions of the Guru, they have risen above their selves and remain detached in maya, Attuning their consciousness in the Word, they abide in the heaven of the Lord, In Guru’s service they remain detached with profound knowledge and wonderful indescribable story, The Guruwards being detached are rewarded with fruit of bliss. ... 18

Pauri 19 (Holy congregation liberates even the Travis)
The hemp and cotton grow in one field, but hemp is vicious and cotton philanthropist, The hemp after getting its skin peeled is intertwined and becoming a rope binds others, The cotton is first made into yarn and then various kinds of useful cloth is weaved, It covers the nudity of all good and bad persons, In the company of the good, the vicious ones are also saved, they ever do welfare of others by nature, If the hemp becoming the shoes comes to the congregation, its dust makes it a worthy object, By thrashing the hemp, the paper is made, on which the eulogies and stories about the Lord are written, If the devotee of the Lord wants, he can purify the sinners. ... 19

Pauri 20 (Virtues of the Holy congregation)
The stone is hard-hearted but when burnt in fire, it becomes lime, When the water is sprinkled, the fire is extinguished, but with water, the fire increases too much, But the water does not decrease its fire of poison, with this demerit, the fire does not disappear, When placed on the tongue, the blisters appear creating great torture,
When combined with betel leaf, betelnut and catechu, a fine red colour is created, coming into contact with congregation, one becomes a saint, the Guruward controls the uncontrollable. He, who meets such saints for a moment only, he effaces his self. ...20

VAR-XXVI

One Oaṅkār the Eternal Truth realized through the grace of divine preceptor

Pauri 1 (Invocation)
The True Guru is the True Sovereign, who has created the kings of kings, He sits on the True Throne, which abide in the holy congregation, His Commands are True and His Banners are True, no one can violate His True Command, His Word is True and Mint is True, whosoever meets Guru's Word becomes Guru-like, His Devotion is True, His Store is True and He likes His 'Kirtan' (divine music), The Path of the Guruward is True, his proclamation of Truth is True and his rule is True, He, in the world, is ever in the love with One Lord. ...1

Pauri 2 (As above)
Guru may be considered as God Himself, the True Lord has laid His True Name, The Transcendent Lord has created the world of matter and manifested Himself as One Lord, From One Lord emerged the resonance of Word and He manifested as 'Aumkara', From 'Aumkara' emerged the Trinity and the three gods unitedly appeared as ten incarnations, We pay obeisance to the Primal Lord, who Scans, but the gods cannot see Him, Seshinaga remembers Him, with no end to His Names, The Guruward loves the True Name in his mind. ...2
Pauri 3 (Praises of vahiguru, the wondrous Lord)
He separated the sky and the earth and by creating His Nature, He was called the Creator,
The earth was installed in water and the sky was placed without columns,
The fire was placed in the fuel, and the sun and moon were created with day and night,
Six seasons and twelve months were created and also the Play of the divisions of creation and speech,
The human birth is very rare and he who meets the Perfect Guru, his birth is fruitful,
Coming into contact with the holy congregation, one is emancipated. ...3

Pauri 4 (Benevolence of True Guru)
The True Guru is the True Donor, who caused the human birth to be given,
He gave the face, the eyes, the nose, the ears, the hands and feet, and caused one to move and walk,
He instructed for the devotion with love and caused the firmness on Name, Charity and Cleanliness,
The Guruward has to take bath early in the morning alongwith the remembrance of Guru-mantra,
At night he has to recite the Aarti and Sohila and remain detached in the world of maya,
He has to speak sweetly, walk humbly and giving charity with his hands without exhibiting himself,
All the four means of life follow him. ...4

Pauri 5 (Praises of the Guru)
The True Guru is very Great and his Praise is also very Great,
The One Lord created lakhs of the rivers of life and none can evaluate Him, Creating the one indivisible universe and creating the creatures, He gives sustenance to all,
In His every pore He has kept millions of universes,
How Great is He? From where and from whom I should ask for it?
No one can reach Him, everyone say whatever He has heard,
His Image is manifested in the True Guru. ...5
Pauri 6 (As above)
The source of Guru's sight is Perfect Brahman, only someone having comprehension knows it,
The source of worship are the Feet of the True Guru, one obtains bliss on meditating on them,
The source of the mantra are the words of the True Guru, and he is rare who remembers it single-mindedly,
The source of salvation is the grace of the Guru, in the congregation he attains 'Jivan-mukt',
None can attain anything by exhibiting his self and he is very rare, who meets Him by effacing his self,
By effacing his self, one actually knows his self and every one seems his own and considers him his own,
Then the disciple becomes Guru-like. ...6

Pauri 7 (Religions of four yugas)
In Satyuga, if someone committed a sin, the whole country suffered for that,
In Treta Yuga, the whole town suffered and in Dvapar Yuga the whole family was destroyed,
But in Kaliyuga, everyone reaps whatever he sows, there prevails only easy Justice of Dharma,
In three ages, the fruit was obtained in due time, but in Kaliyuga the fruit is obtained immediately,
By committing a sin, one is considered a sinner, by performing good act, one is fructified with superb fruit,
By performing devotion with love as directed by the Guru, the Gursikh sows superb seed in congregation,
His objective is fulfilled and his labour fructified. ...7

Pauri 8 (Religion of the Kalyug)
In Satyuga emancipation was obtained for Truth, in Treta for Jajnas and in Dvapar for worship,
In Kaliyuga, the Guruward on remembrance of the Name ferried across the sea of existence,
In Satyuga the Dharma-Bull stood on four feet and in Treta he stood on three feet,
In Dvapar he stood on two feet and in Kaliyuga he stands on one foot, suffering very much,
Considering the Lord as the Giver of honour to the lowly he requested Him to shower His Grace,
The Perfect Guru Nanak, then manifested, and installed the True congregation of forbearance and Piety,
He himself is the field and himself the Protector. ...8

Pauri 9 (Losing after victory)
With tear of the Lord, there is no other fear, but with no fear of the Lord, there are many other fears,
By raising its head, the fire is hot, but the water moves downwards, therefore it is cool,
The filled pitcher sinks, and the empty one floats, the filled one is soundless and the empty one resounds,
The mango tree bows down, when laden with fruit, but the castor plant does not bow and remains fruitless,
The mind flies like a bird, it is only rewarded with such fruit like the company it keeps,
If weighed in a balance, the difference between the heavy and light is known,
The winner loses and the loser wins, the head is placed on the feet,
He, who has fallen at the feet of the Guru, the whole world bows before him. ...9

Pauri 10 (One gets what one desires)
The Command of the Lord is True, His Writ is True, He has Created this Play of the world for Truth,
The Cause is under the control of the Lord, but for the utterance of the rare one, He acts sometimes,
That saint does not ask for anything else, he accepts the Will of the Lord,
The Lord also like it, He keeps the honour of the saint, this is His reputed nature,
The saint attunes himself in Guru’s Word in congregation, the Creator only acts according to His Will,
The saint abides detached in the world, he rises above the illusion of boon and curse,
He believes that one gets the fruit according to his inclination. ...10
Pauri 11 (Making of the virtues from the evil)

This is the nature of the tree that if anyone tries to harm it, if gives fruit to him, Sitting under its shade, the cutter thinks bad of this good one,
He, who pelts stone on it, gets fruit and the boat made from its wood ferries across the cutter,
The self-willed do not obtain fruit, but the good one is blessed with innumerable fruit,
The Guruward is rare, who with his goodness serves the good people,
The whole world bows to the moon and the sea enhances the delight with the reflection in its waves,
O Lord ! Whosoever becomes your devotee, the whole world serves him .... 11

Pauri 12 (Example of Sugarcane)

The sugarcane is marvellous, it grows with its head downward,
At first its outer covering is removed and it is cut into parts,
Then it is crushed in the sugarcane crusher, its juice goes in the cauldron and the residue is burnt as fuel,
It endures the suffering and ease with patience, then it is boiled and later blessed by the world,
The fruit of bliss for Guruwards are like jaggery and sugar, the prop of all relishes,
They quaff the cup of love like sugarcane by obtaining fresh life after self­ sacrifice,
The utterances of the Guruwards are like invaluable gems. ...12

Pauri 13 (Guru the river)

The Guru-river is immeasurable in which lakhs of rivers of Guruwards remain merged,
In that great river move lakhs of rivers with holy shrines,
In each current lakhs of natural waves emerge,
The ocean alongwith its gems and substances swim like fish in that great river,
All of them do not even come upto one wave of the Guru- river, which is infinite,
Only one drop from the Guru’s unendurable cup of love, is endured by a rare Guruward,
After knowing the unknowable, he cannot divulge it to anyone. ...13
Pauri 14 (God the infinite)

Brahmas are tired of reading the Vedas and Indras are tired of ruling in heavens, Shivas became ascetics and Vishnus have been busy with their ten incarnations,
The adepts, Naths, great Yogis, goddesses and gods could not comprehend the Secrets of the Lord,
The ascetics performing asceticism in holy places, the celibates, the virtuous ones enduring sufferings,
The Seshinaga alongwith all the musical modes remember the Lord and ever sing His Praises,
Those Gursikhs are very fortunate in world, who meet in congregation attuning their consciousness in Word
The Guruwards attain fruit of bliss by comprehending the Incomprehensible. ... 14

Pauri 15 (Virtue of humility)

The tree has its head downwards, it fructifies with thousands of fruit,
The water is pure, with its bowed head, it moves downwards,
The head is high and the feet are the lowest, the head falls at the feet of Guruwards,
The earth is the lowliest, the whole world gets corn and wealth from it,
That earth and that place are blessed, where the saintly Gursikh places his foot,
The Praise of the dust of the feet of those Guruwards is sung by the saints and Vedas,
They are very fortunate, who apply the dust of the feet of the Guruwards on their foreheads. ... 15

Pauri 16 (Guru Nanak Dev the perfect Guru)

Consider the True Guru as Perfect, because he has created a Perfect splendour,
The weight of the Perfect of perfect, it cannot be changed by anyone,
The instruction of the Perfect is perfect, who does not get advice from others,
The mantra of the Perfect is perfect, whose perfect utterance cannot be evaded,
All his wishes are fulfilled, who meets the Perfect one in the congregation, Crossing all worldly relations and ascending the ladder of honour he obtains his own home,
One becoming perfect merges in the Perfect. ... 16
Pauri 17 (The true Guru is ever vigilant Guru)
Attending the fair of Shivratri, the adepts, strivers and pilgrims all remain awake during the night,
Mahadev is a recluse and Brahma enjoys sitting on his Lotus-seat,
The Yogi Gorakh awakes and his Guru Machhinder enjoys merging in the queen Dharel,
The True Guru himself awakes and causes others to awake in the early hours of morning in congregation,
They sit in a trance in their own home and are absorbed in love-pleasure, where the Limitless word resounds
My obeisance is to the Primal Purusha (Guru), who remains absorbed in ever fresh love of the Lord,
The disciple becomes the Guru and the Guru bows before him. ...

Pauri 18 (The Truth is true and the falsehood is false)
Brahma, Vishnu and Shiva, the three gods work as creator, preserver and destructor respectively,
The people of four castes are householders, but are dependent on caste and maya,
They are absorbed in the false karmas preached by the six philosophies and Shastras,
The Sannyasis are there in ten sects and the Yogis in twelve sects,
They are straying in all the ten directions and beg at the doors of others the valid or invalid food,
The Gursikhs of all castes meet in the holy congregation and listen to the divine utterance of Gurbani,
The Guruwards are above all castes and are absorbed in the blissful discipline of Lord’s Name,
The True one is ever True and the hypocrisy of the false one is false. ...

Pauri 19 (Praises of the True Guru)
The True Guru is the treasure of qualities, he pardons the vicious ones out of generosity,
The True Guru is the perfect doctor, who removes all the incurable five maladies,
The True Guru is the ocean of comforts, who unites with himself the ailing ones by bestowing comfort,
The Perfect Guru is without enmity, he ferries across the backbiters, malevolent and apostates,
The Perfect Guru is ever without fear, he removes the fear of birth and death and of Yama,
The True Guru is sagacious Purusha, who ferries across the greatly ignorant and foolish persons,
The True Guru is considered as the leader, who catching the blind from their arms, saves them,
I am a sacrifice to him, who gives honour to the humble ones. ...19

Pauri 20 (The True Guru)
The True Guru is like the philosopher’s stone, who by his mere touch changes the dirty dross into gold,
The True Guru is like sandalwood, who with his fragrance makes his poor Sikhs worth lakhs,
The True Guru is like the Elysian tree, which in its company makes others like Simmal tree fruitful,
The True Guru is like Manasarovar turns the crow into a swan, who separate the water from the milk,
The Guru is like the holy shrine on a river-bank, who changes the animal and ghost into an expert being,
The True Guru is the liberator, he turns a dejected one into a 'Jivan-mukta',
In his company the mind of the dissatisfied one becomes satisfied. ...20

Pauri 21 (True Guru Nanak Dev Ji)
The adepts, Naths and incarnations holding discussions with him (Guru Nanak) were subdued, Meeting Baba (Guru) the king Babur and his Nawabs all bowed before him,
After his separation from the kings, he left their path and started a new and wondrous thing,
The Sovereign of both the worlds, rising above all needs came to the house of knowledge,
The Creator creates His Nature, and this was also the Play of his nature,
He separates some from their union, and he causes to unite those who were separated long ago,
In the holy congregation, the Incomprehensible is comprehended. ...21
The True Guru is the Perfect king and all the people of three worlds are his peddlers,
In his house there are innumerable precious substances, there are lakhs of stores of devotion with love,
In his garden, there are lakhs of Elysian trees and there are thousands of herds of wish-fulfilling cows,
There are lakhs of Lakshmis, his slaves, and there are limitless mountains of philosopher's stones,
Lakhs of Indras are his water-carriers sprinkling nectar in his court,
There are lakhs of suns and moons as lamps and there are heaps of powers and treasures,
He divides them among the Gursikhs who are absorbed in Truth and devotion with love,
The True Guru who is like the Transcendent Lord and lover of his devotees...

Churning the milk-ocean, the gods took out the jewels and divided them among themselves,
Kaustak Jewel, Lakshmi, Elysian Tree, Conch and the bow were taken by Vishnu, Kamadhenu cow, Rambha apasara and Airavat elephant were taken by Indra,
The Kallkoot poison and the second day moon were worn by Mahadev,
The sun got Uchshrava horse, the gods drank nectar (Amrit) and the demons got wine, Dhanantar worked as physician, but when the serpent Tachhak stung Parikshat, he did not perform his duty,
The Guru's instruction is invaluable, who gives the jewels of instruction to Gursikhs from his vast ocean,
The Sikhs have the True Love from the True Guru...

The earlier Gurus installed Dharamshalas, but the sixth Guru does not stay at one place,
The kings came to the earlier Gurus, but the sixth Guru went to the Fort on orders of the king,
His Sikhs do not have his sight, he moves with speed and is not frightened by the Fear-giving people,
The earlier Gurus gave satisfaction to their Sikhs from their seats, but he goes hunting with his dogs,
The earlier Gurus composed the ‘bani’ and sang, but he neither composes the ‘bani’ nor sings,
He does not keep his Sikhs with him, but he encourages familiarity with ill-disposed persons,
But the Truth cannot be concealed, therefore the Sikhs are attracted as bumble bees on his Lotus-feet,
The sixth Guru has endured the Unendurable and has not exhibit himself. ...24

Pauri 25 (Joy of love’s attained after great hardship)
Just as the garden has the hedge of Kikar trees and the field has the fence of thorny bushes,
The sandalwood is coiled by snakes, the door has a lock and the dog awakes,
The thorns protect the Lotus and in Holi days the revellers surround a gentle person,
Just as the philosopher’s stone lies scattered among stones and the jewel is in the head of a black snake,
The jewel looks graceful in the necklace of glass beads and the elephant is tied with a tender rope,
With loving devotion Krishna goes to the house of Vidur in hunger, who serves him with a ball of ‘saag’,
Likewise Gursikhs, in good fortune, are absorbed like a bumble bee on Guru’s Lotus feet in congregation,
The cup of love is obtained after undergoing a lot of suffering. ...25

Pauri 26 (The dead disciple in Guru’s-grave)
In the world, the Manasarovar is more deep and serene than the seven seas,
There is no landing place and no boatman, it is limitless,
For crossing it there is no boat, no raft and no bamboo poll, there is none to advise forbearance,
None other reaches there except the swans, who pick the jewels and gems,
The True Guru has started a wondrous play, he has inhabited a village of Ahirs,
Like the darkest night without moon, the Unknowable is not known like the fish not knowing the depth,
The Sikhs who efface their ego merge in the Guru. ...26
Pauri 27 (Progeny of the Gursikhs)
Like the family of fish, who do not forget water in life and death,
Like the family of moths, who do not recognise any other than the lamp, Just as the Lotus and water love each other and the family of bumble bees loves the Lotus,
The rain-bird loves the rain-drop, the deer dotes on sound of horn and the nightingale loves the mango-fruit,
For the swan, Manasarovar is the treasure of jewels,
The ‘ruddy sheldrake’ loves the sun and the ‘partridge’ is absorbed in wondrous plays for the moon, Gursikh is like the family of swans and he considers the True Guru as the ‘Sarobar’ of peace,
He swims like the water-fowl against the current of the stream. ...27

Pauri 28 (Progeny of the Gursikhs)
The tortoise places its egg out of water and with contemplation sustains it,
The crane remembers its young one, who is nourished and begins to fly,
The hen nourishes the young one of water-fowl, who goes away and meets its mother,
The she-crow nourishes the young one of nightingale, the blood meets the blood,
The ruddy sheldrake meets the sun and the partridge meets the moon like Shiva and Shakti,
The moon and sun are seen in six seasons and twelve months,
The Sikh as bumble bee blossoms to see his Guru like water-lily on seeing moon and Lotus on seeing sun,
The Guruward attains the fruit of bliss and comprehends the Incomprehensible. ...28

Pauri 29 (The claim of Kokā, the male nurse)
Belonging to the family of philosopher’s stones, it turns all metals into gold, With its nature, the sandalwood spreads its fragrance in fruitless and fruitful vegetation,
There are lakhs of waves in Ganges, which makes the streams and brooks like Ganges,
The husband of the breast-feeder of a king is a servant, but having a right over him, he is liked by him,
Eating the salt of the king, he passes his time as a servant,
The great swans i.e. Gursikhs belonging to the family of True Guru pass their time as swans,
They tread on the Path of their elders. ...29

Pauri 30 (The Sikhs pass the test given by the Guru)
Just as lakhs of stars shine in the sky, but a thing lying nearby is not visible in the darkness of the night, Though the sun is covered by the clouds during the day, still the night does not fall,
If the True Guru performs some wondrous play, but the duality does not come in the mind of the Sikhs,
There is only one sun in the six seasons, but the owl does not see the sun,
Even if the Lotus blossoms on seeing the moon instead of sun, even then the bumble bees dote on that Lotus Passing over Shiva and Shakti, the Gursikhs go to the congregation to meet the Guru early in the morning,
They fall there at the feet of all, good and bad. ...30

Pauri 31 (Difference between spiritual and temporal kings)
A worldly king dies after giving the kingship to his son,
He raises his clamour and all the soldiers work under his Command,
He causes the epitaph to be read in the mosque and all the Qadis and Mullahs bear witness to it,
His coin is made in the mint and all good or bad are under his orders, He becomes the master of all materials and the country and sitting on his throne he becomes carefree,
But in Guru’s house this is the tradition that the old beaten track of the Guruwards is set in motion,
There is one clamour of God’s Name, one mint, one epitaph of Gurbani, one throne and One True Court,
According to Lord’s Justice the Guruward attains the fruit of bliss. ...31

Pauri 32 (Miserable plight of the apostate)
If anyone exhibiting if raises his banner of revolt against the king,
That corrupt person is killed without bier, shroud, funeral pyre and grave,
If anyone makes a false coin out of the mint, he wastes away his life,
The promulgator of false orders suffers very much and weeps,
He, who rules like a jackal, his rule is not steadied, his talk is insipid, That one is mounted on an ass and his face is blackened, the ashes are thrown on his head and he weeps,
Those who preach duality, they are in bad state. ...32

Pauri 33 (The ego of Guru’s progeny)
Sri Chand the elder son of Guru Nanak was a celibate from his childhood, he made a sepulchre of the Guru,
Lakhmi Chand was the younger son, his son Dharam Chand exhibited himself, Dasu the second Guru’s son was caused to occupy the Guru’s seat and Datu learnt the Yogic postures, Mohan, the son of the third Guru became a hermit and Mohri caused the worship of the attic of his father, Prithi Chand, the son of the fourth Guru became a Mina and because of his cross nature indulged in gabble, Mahadev in ego became unmannerly and at the incentive of Prithi Chand barked like a dog,
The bamboo does not take the fragrance of sandalwood. ...33

Pauri 34 (The lineage of the Guru)
The genealogy of Guru Nanak began in which the love of the Guru and disciple became prevalent,
Guru Angad was created from the limb of the Guru, the disciple was liked by the Guru, who made him the Guru, From Guru Angad came Amar Oas, who as a True Guru made Amar Oas, the True Guru,
From Guru Amar Das came Guru Ramdas, with Guru’s service he became the Guru and merged in him,
From Guru Ramdas came Guru Arjan, it seemed that with the tree of nectar, the fruit of nectar has come up,
From Guru Arjan came Guru Hargovind, who caused the Sikhs to pay obeisance to the Primal Purusha,
The rising sun cannot be concealed. ...34

Pauri 35 (Description of the Nature)
With one utterance the Aumkara created the wide expanse,
The Nature of the Lord is unweighable, there is no balance, no weights and no weigher,
On every head, there is writ of the Unaccountable Lord, He does all the work of giving Gift, Light and Honour,
The account of that Unaccountable Lord cannot be written, there are no pen, no ink and no writer to write it,
There are constantly resounding symphonies, but there are no singers to sing the eulogy of that One Lord,
Many creatures have been created in four divisions of creation, whose names and places are innumerable,
Only one utterance of the Lord is Immeasurable, then how much great is the Creator?
In the holy congregation the Transcendent Lord abides as True Guru. ...

VAR–XXVII

One Oaṅkār the Eternal Truth realized through the grace of divine preceptor

Pauri 1 (Laila, majority the lovers)
The love of Laila and Majnu is famous in all the four directions,
The love of Sorath and Bija is sung and their praise is on the tongue of well-bred people,
The friendship of Sassi and Punnu, belonging to different castes is still remembered,
For meeting Mahiwal, Sohni used to swim the river during the night, Ranjha and Heer are well-known, they were absorbed in the love of each other,
The disciples love their Guru and sing his praises early in the morning. ...

Pauri 2 (Love of the disciples)
The addicts do not forsake their addiction, all of them sit together,
Just as the gambler is busy in gambling, playing perverse manoeuvres,
The thieves do not leave burglary, they suffer, when caught
Those committing immoral acts, do not leave going to the house of prostitute,
The sinners commit sins, for which they run hither and thither,
The disciples love their Guru for which all their sins go away. ...

Pauri 3 (As above)
The bumble bee abides in fragrance, he moves in the orchard,
The moth burns itself without fear keeping its eyes open,
The deer attracted by the horn’s sound, strays in the wilderness.
Just as the fish is entrapped in the hook because of the demerit of taste,
The elephant is entrapped because of its lust for its female and suffers for it.
The disciples love their Guru and absorb themselves in a trance in their own home. ...3

Pauri 4 (Love of the Gursikh)
The partridge loves the moon and looks towards it continuously,
The ruddy sheldrake loves the sun and receives comfort on meeting it,
The love of the lotus for water is known, it blossoms in its company,
The peacocks and rain-birds speak with delight on seeing the dark clouds,
The woman loves her husband and the mother sustains her son,
The disciples love their Guru, which persists ever. ...4

Pauri 5 (Love of Guru and disciple)
It is known in the world that a lustful person loves beauty,
There is relation of hunger and relish, this is experienced in the world,
The greedy person is absorbed in the wealth, and he is engrossed in this illusion,
The sleepy person does not need a bed, his night passes away peacefully,
The man enjoys greatly in his dream the surprising acts,
The disciples love their Guru and its account is indescribable. ...5

Pauri 6 (As above)
The swan at the Manasarovar eats jewels and gems,
The nightingale loves the mango tree, where it sings very sweetly,
All the vegetation grown up near the sandalwood emits its fragrance,
The iron coming into contact with the philosopher's stone becomes gold,
The streams and brooks meeting river Ganges become pure like Ganges,
The disciples love their Guru and trading with him their life becomes fruitful. ...6

Pauri 7 (True relationship)
There are three homes, of the father, of the father-in-law and of the mother's parents,
The relations at father-in-law's home are father-in-law, mother-in-law, the bride's brother and sister,
There is the father's family consisting of mother, brothers and sisters,
There are maternal relatives mother's parents and her brothers and sisters,
To keep up relations we have to amass gold, silver, diamonds and corals,
The disciples love their Guru and this is the real relation. ...7
Pauri 8 (The True business)
The trader is engaged in business in which sometimes there is gain and sometimes loss,
The farmer is engaged in farming, he is sometimes fat and sometimes slim,
The servant is engaged in service and sometimes he receives blows of hurt,
There are kings and Yogis in the world, the king raises forts and the Yogi performs austerities in the forest
At the time of death one is caught in the noose of Yama and receives due fruit
The disciples love their Guru, they never suffer any loss. ...8

Pauri 9 (Time enjoyment)
The eyes do not feel satisfied with by seeing the frolic and fun,
The ears are not satisfied by listening to praise, calumny, weeping and laughter,
The tongue is not satisfied with various tastes after enjoying them,
The nose is not satisfied by smelling good and bad smells,
None is satisfied with the span of life, such faith is false,
The disciples love their Guru, it is the true tradition. ...9

Pauri 10 (Worth of the Limbs)
That head is reproachable, which does not bow before the Guru and does not fall at his feet,
Those eyes are reproachable, which do not have a sight of the Guru and look at the wives of others,
Those ears are reproachable, which remain without the instructions of the Guru or do not act according to them,
That tongue is reproachable, which repeats others mantras except the Word of the Guru,
Without service the hands and feet are reproachable, their other actions without service are fruitless,
The disciples love their Guru, the bliss is attained only under the shelter of the True Guru...10.

Pauri 11 (The True devotion)
Everything seems false, therefore none should remain absorbed in other loves,
All other tastes are poisonous, therefore none should remain absorbed in other tastes,
None should be happy in other musical modes, on listening which no peace is attained,
All other actions are bad, because they bring bad results,
None should walk on other paths, where one is enticed by thieves and thugs,
The disciples love their Guru, the true ones attain the True Lord. ...11

Pauri 12 (As above)
Other hopes are prone to destruction, they are not fulfilled,
Other attachment is treason, which ultimately leads us to destruction,
Other actions are illusions, by vicious actions one weeps,
Other company is defective, how can it wash away our sins,
Other love is foul trick, with which one faces defeat,
The disciples love the Guru, they become full of qualities. ...12

Pauri 13 (The nature of Love of Guru)
The Guru showers his Graces on us and protects us in the sea of existence like the tortoise,
By giving the element of knowledge to the Sikh, the Guru gives him the understanding of true and false like a swan,
The Guru gives him the remembrance like a flying crane, with which he knows the Unknowable,
The Guru like mother loves his Sikh-child and leaving all other tastes, he makes him taste only the Lord’s Name,
The True Guru is the merciful Purusha, therefore he tests his Sikh,
The disciples love their Guru, who makes them most precious and valuable. ...13

Pauri 14 (Nature of Love of the Sikh with Guru)
The Sikh like a moth dotes on the Light of the Guru and merges in it,
He like the deer attunes to the Guru-horn’s ‘Shabda’, and thus he listens to the Limitless spiritual tunes,
The Sikh as a fish, in the river of holy congregation, following the instructions of the Guru, attains bliss,
He, as a bunble bee, doting on the lotus-feet of the Guru, passes his night in bliss,
He, as a rain-bird, does not forget the rain-drop of the Guru’s instruction and always meditates on it
The disciples love their Guru and their duality is destroyed. ...14

Pauri 15 (The Guru is all powerful)
We should not beg from that donor, on receiving whose gift we have to go to another one abegging,
We should not have a narrow-minded banker, so that we have to leave him and repent,
We should not serve that master, on serving whom we have to endure the punishment of Yama,
We should not have that doctor who cannot save us from the ailment of ego,
Why should we bathe on that pilgrim station, where the dirt of vices is not effaced,
The disciples love their Guru, by whose grace they are merged into the Supreme spiritual state and bliss. ...15

Pauri 16 (Love of Guru is the highest)
If one is the Sovereign of the world under whose control are the wealth, country and the four units of army,
If one is the master of treasures and miraculous powers, whom the whole world loves,
If one is blessed with long life and many wise and knowledgeable persons attest his greatness,
If, being carefree in mind, one does not have the recognition of any other, But having all the powers, that person will get no shelter in Lord’s Court, if in duality, he follows a wrong path,
The disciples love their Guru, and they are approved in the Lord’s Court. ...16

Pauri 17 (Everything is useless without Guru’s Love)
There is another contemplation without the Guru, all that is duality,
There is insipid utterance without the knowledge pertaining to the Word of the Guru,
The worship of others is of false taste except that of the feet of the Guru,
Believing anything else except the Instruction of the Guru is deficient Without the company of the holy congregation all is inexperienced ambition,
The disciples love their Guru, they know, the way of winning the bet. ...17

Pauri 18 (Love of the Guru annuls ego)
Lakhs of wisdoms, lakhs of awarenesses, lakhs of qualities and lakhs of shrewdnesses, Lakhs of instructions, intellects, Intelligences, knowledges and contemplations, lakhs of honours and praises, Lakhs of worships and austerities, lakhs of restraints and lakhs of batheings at the holy shrines,
Lakhs of deeds, lakhs of beliefs, lakhs of Yogas, lakhs of enjoyments and lakhs of recitations of texts,
One who exhibits himself comes to grief and none of his actions bear fruit
The disciples love their Guru and their ego is effaced. ...18

Pauri 19 (The nature of disciples service)
The Gursikh falls at the feet and becomes their dust, he forsakes all his pride and desires,
He always labours for service of the congregation by bringing water, by fanning and by grinding,
He spreads the seating carpet and does not sulk while putting the fuel in the hearth,
He serves as a self-effacing disciple with trust and contentment
Just as a Simmal tree growing near sandalwood takes its fragrance, similarly the disciple takes the qualities of his Guru,
The disciples love their Guru and their intellect remains perfect. ...19

Pauri 20 (Reward of Guru’s service)
A luxuriant reward is obtained by serving the Guru, which none can evaluate,
Its good colour is marvellous, which can be shown by the Guru himself,
Its relish is greatly wondrous, which cannot be described just like the dumb,
Like the fragrance of the sandalwood in the vegetation, its relish merges within the Sikh,
The weight of its service is unweighable and invaluable, some rare one endures this unendurable thing,
The disciples love their Guru and they can know this relish. ...20

Pauri 21 (How disciple become one with the Guru)
Nobody knows how the vegetation growing near sandalwood becomes like sandalwood,
A lamp lights the other lamp and the light of both shows no difference,
The water mixes with water and none can know their difference,
The ant in the company of a bumble bee becomes a bumble bee and none can call it an ant,
The snake leaves the slough and no one knows its secret,
The disciples love their Guru and this love is marvellous. ...21
Paouri 22 (Technique of self-realization)
There is fragrance in flowers, how did merge in them?
There is a different relish of different fruit, though the same water irrigates them,
The ghee is said to be in the milk, but none knows this secret
Likewise there is fire in the wood, but none knows this wondrous thing,
The Guruwards knowing the discipline of the Guru, comprehend their self,
The disciples love their Guru, they sing the hymns of the Guru in the congregation. ...22

Paouri 23 (Never hesitate in sacrifice)
Seeing the light of the lamp, the family of moths burns itself and does not go back,
The fish is caught and brought out from water, but its love for water does not decrease,
Listening to the sound of horn, the deer gets intoxicated and does not recede,
The bumble bee is destroyed by the fragrance, but still it dotes on the lotus,
The love-devotion brings the reward of the fruit of bliss for the Guruward, which frees him from many bondages,
Blessed is the family of Gursikhs and blessed is the Guru’s instruction, which brings the spiritual treasure for him. ...23

VAR-XXVIII
One Oankār the Eternal Truth realized through the grace of divine preceptor

Paouri 1 (Path of Sikhism is difficult but invaluable)
It is said to be finer than the hair and heard to be sharper than the double-edged sword,
Nothing can be said about it and nothing can be written about it,
There is said to be a Path of Guruwards, on which not even one step we can tread,
It is like licking on a saltless stone, but it is much sweeter than the juice of lakhs of sugarcanes,
The Guruward attains the fruit of bliss from the devotional love, which springs from a rare tree,
It can be obtained with the grace of True Guru, the Sikh’s discipline given by the Guru is obtained in congregation,
The Gursikhs begging from the Guru receive all the four blessings. ...1
Pauri 2 (Sikh life is without desires)
There are said to be four blessings, which are showered by the True Guru, but the Gursikh does not ask for them,
The Sikhs do not desire for all the powers and nine treasures,
Lakhs of Kamdhens and Lakshmis cannot entice a Sikh,
Lakhs of philosopher’s stones and lakhs of fruit of Elysian trees are not even touched by the Sikh,
Lakhs of tantras, mantras and hypocrisies are disliked by the Sikh, they are shameless like jugglers,
The discipline of the Guru is very difficult and complicated,
The Gursikh forsakes duality. ...2

Pauri 3 (Invaluableness of Sikh life)
The discipline of a Sikh cannot be learnt or described by the musical modes and Vedas, Lakhs of Chitra Guptas cannot write about the discipline of a Sikh, Millions of Seshinagas cannot understand the limit of remembrance of the discipline of a Sikh,
The use of the discipline of a Sikh can only be understood by rising above the relations of the world,
The understanding of the discipline of a Sikh cannot come within the knowledge and contemplation,
The humble gets the honour of attuning the consciousness in the Word in congregation by the Guru’s grace,
Only a rare one enjoys the devotion with love. ...3

Pauri 4 (Joy and teachings of the Sikh life)
The Guruward learns the discipline of a Sikh through the service of the congregation,
The ten incarnations could not learn this discipline, it is more incomprehensible than the dialogue of Gita,
Even the Vedas do not know its secret the gods and goddesses could not know by reading, writing and listening,
The adepts and Naths could not know it through trances, the Tantras and mantras could not grasp it,
There have been lakhs of devotees in the world, but they could not write about its nature,
The Sikh has to lick the saltless stone, whose taste is much superior to lakhs of fruit,
The Gursikh remains merged in Guru’s Word in the congregation. ...4

Pauri 5 (Practices for attainment of Sikh life)
In order to learn the discipline of a Sikh, one has to go attune his consciousness in the Word in congregation,
In order to write about this discipline, one has to understand the crux of ‘Gurbani’,
In order to remember this discipline, one has to taste the sweetness of Guru’s instruction like the sugarcane-juice,
The behaviour of this discipline is like the fragrance of sandalwood, which makes other plants fragrant
The understanding of this discipline lies in receiving the discriminating intellect and not exhibiting it openly,
Listening to the Guru’ Word in the congregation, the Sikh should practise Name, Charity and Cleanliness,
The Gursikh should remain alert in the past, present and future. ...5

Pauri 6 (Conduct of the Sikh life)
The speaking of the discipline of a Sikh lies in sweet speech without making any account about it,
The movement of the discipline lies in moving in the fear of the Lord,
The path of this discipline is that the Gursikh should see the life of a Guruward and try to follow it,
The Gursikh should work for his living and also serve the needy and follow the instructions of the Guru,
By exhibiting his self, he cannot reach the destination, he should ever rise above his self,
He should become a selfless disciple and merging in the Guru should become unknowable and unaccountable,
Even Seshinaga does not comprehend the discipline. ...6

Pauri 7 (Invaluability of Sikh life)
It is very difficult to learn about the discipline of a Sikh,
No account of the discipline can be written by anyone,
No weight of the discipline can be weighed by anyone,
The discipline of a Gursikh can be watched on seeing the Guruwards, congregation and Gurdwara,
The tasting of the discipline lies in ruminating on the Guru's Word in congregation,
The understanding of the discipline is awakening one self to the fact that God is All-Pervading,
The Guruwards attain the fruit of bliss by remaining ever in the love of the Beloved Lord...

Pauri 8 (One becomes elevated after attaining Sikh life)
He who has seen the beauty of Gursikh's discipline, he never sees anyone else except the One Lord,
He who has seen the light of Gursikh's discipline, he considers lakhs of ambrosial fruit very insipid,
He who has listened to the music of Gursikh's discipline, he has no attraction for the lakhs of wondrous musics,
He who knows the touch of Gursikh's discipline, he has risen above the distinction of cool and hot,
He who has smelt the fragrance of Gursikh's discipline, all other fragrances emit bad smell for him,
He remains detached from the world and significantly attached to the Guru's Word...

Pauri 9 (Activities of the Sikh-Life)
The Path of the Guruward is true and the Sikh abides in the abode of supreme spiritual state,
The tradition of the Guruward for the Truth, who falls at the feet and becomes their dust,
The bath of Gursikh's discipline is in allegiance to Guru's instruction while washing away the dirt of vices,
The worship of the Gursikh's discipline is to worship the Gursikhs and to quaff the ambrosia of love,
To believe in the Gursikh's discipline is to put around his neck the garland of Guru's utterances,
To live in the Gursikh's discipline is to become selfless while living and to efface ego,
He should churn the Guru's Word in the holy congregation...
Pauri 10 (Performance of Sikh life)
For the Guruward to eat the fruit of bliss, he has to rise above comfort and suffering and destroy the vices,
The singing of the Gursikh’s discipline is the continuous singing of the ambrosial ‘bani’,
The Gursikh’s discipline consists in practising forbearance and piety and enduringly quaff the unendurable cup of love,
The restraint of the Gursikh’s discipline consists in leaving all the fears of the world and remaining in the Lord’s Fear,
The Gursikh’s discipline is to abide in congregation attuning in the Word to ferry across the terrible sea of the world,
The function of Gursikh’s discipline consists in acting according to the instructions of the Guru,
It is with the grace of the Guru that the Gursikh comes under the refuge of the Guru. ...10

Pauri 11 (Powers and Virtues of the Guru)
The Guru gives the fruit of bliss to Simmal tree by keeping it near the fragrance of sandalwood,
He causes the dross to become gold and the crows to become supreme swans,
He causes the transformation of animals and ghosts into gods through service and Fear of the Lord,
He like the Lord blows his conch consisting of the treasures of instruction, holding it in his hand,
He is called the Saviour of the sinners and with his love towards his devotees, he subdues himself,
The world repays the good people with goodness, but the Guru likes to bestow the goodness on the bad ones,
He comes into the world for their welfare. ...11

Pauri 12 (Sikh, the altruist)
The tree gives the fruit to those who throw stones on it, it ferries across the cutter in a boat made from its wood,
The river does not ask and drown the cutter for his sin, it does not exhibit any enmity towards him or his son,
When it rains and thousands of currents meet, they move downwards,
When it drowns the ‘agar’, an odorous plant, it forsakes its principle, but still it keeps the honour of ‘agar’,
He who swims, is drowned and he who cannot swim, is saved, the victorious is defeated and the defeated one wins,
The play of love is in reverse order, the head bows at the feet,
Gursikh never considers anyone inferior to him.... 12

Pauri 13 (Sikh the humble and the benevolent)
The earth is under the feet and the water abides under the earth,
The water flows downwards, therefore it is pure and cool, it makes the people clean and cool,
It adopts the same colour, which is put in it, it appears the same in all the pots,
In sunshine it becomes hot and remains cool in the shade, it adopts the quality of its place,
It becomes hot for doing good and remains cool for doing good,
Even the hot water extinguishes the fire, it also gets cool in a short time,
This is the sign of Gursikh’s discipline.... 13

Pauri 14 (As above)
The earth is installed in water and the water abides in the earth,
There is no colour of the earth, but all colours abide in it, it is tasteless, but it consists of all tastes,
There is no smell in the earth, but all smells are there in it, it is beauty-less, but all the people long for its beauty,
Whatever one sows in it, he reaps the same, this earth is the field of actions as told by all,
It cannot be plastered by sandal and is never angry towards anyone for throwing faeces and urine on it,
When it rains, the seed is sown in the earth, but even with fire, the green sprouts spring up,
It does not weep in suffering or lakhs in pleasure.... 14

Pauri 15 (Daily conduct of the Guru)
The Sikh gets up early in the morning and firmly practises the Lord’s Name, Charity and Cleanliness,
He speaks sweetly, lives in humility and by bestowing charity, he does good to others,
He sleeps less, eats less and talks less under Guru’s instructions,
He labours hard and earns and performs good actions, being in high position, he does not exhibit himself,
He goes regularly in the congregation, where the Gursikhs sing ‘Gurbani’ together,
He attunes his consciousness in Guru’s Word and absorbs his mind in the love the Guru,
He remains detached in the world of hopes. ...15

Pauri 16 (As above)
The Guru and disciple become one, the Sikh listening to the instructions of the Guru is called a Gursikh,
He remembers the Lord single-mindedly and stops the outgoing mind,
He remains under the Command of the Lord and accepts His Will,
He ever remains a selfless disciple and as a rare Sikh merges in the Guru.
He falls at the feet of the Guru and becomes their dust and also bows his head at the feet of other Sikhs,
By effacing his self, he becomes a real Sikh and the duality is never visualised by him,
The Gursikh practises the Sikh’s discipline. ...16

Pauri 17 (Rare Sikh)
They are rare in the world, who see the light of the Guru and dote on it like a moth,
They are rare in the world, who attune their consciousness in Guru’s Word like a deer and merge in him,
They are rare in the world, who dote on the lotus-feet of the Guru like a bumble bee,
They are rare in the world, who are absorbed in love for their Guru like a fish in water,
They are rare in the world, who as Gursikhs serve the other Gursikhs,
The Gursikhs are born in the Lord’s Fear and remain in His Fear and becoming selfless in Fear they continue to live,
The Guruwards attain the fruit of bliss and taste the Lord’s Love. ...17

Pauri 18 (Sikh life is Supreme)
Lakhs of people indulge in remembrance, austerities, restraints, ‘havans’, sacrifices and fasts,
There are lakhs of shrines, Yogis, holy cities and fairs,
In the temples and shrines of goddesses, lakhs of priests perform worship, Absorbed in religious rituals lakhs of people stray in waters, on plains and spaces between land and sky, Lakhs of hermits wander in lakhs of mountains and forests, Lakhs of people bum their limbs in fire and lakhs of them go and decompose themselves in Himalayas, Such people do not obtain even a bit of the bliss of the Sikh’s discipline. ...18

Pauri 19 (No Salvation without the perfect Guru)
The Lord is said to prevail in the four castes but no one has been able to see his form and colour, Though there are six shastras, but their followers have not been able to have a sight of the Lord, The Sannyasis have ten sects, they have been naming their sects, but none of them remembered the Lord, The Yogis have twelve sects, but none of them could know the path of the Guruward, The mimics assumed various forms, but none could know the form and mark of the Lord and not even efface their writs, Lakhs of people meet and move in bands, but none of them have imbued themselves in congregation, Without perfect Guru all have been beguiled by maya. ...19

Pauri 20 (Rare follow of the path show by Guru)
The farmers are busy in farming, though they sow seeds, but do not get the fruit of bliss, The traders are busy in trading, though they earn profits, but do not abide in their own home, The servants performing service, but they do not efface their ego and realise the Lord, After bestowing charities and performing good actions do not remain steady, Living as king and subjects and remaining busy in strifes, but do not ferry across the world, Listening to the instructions of the Guru and becoming Gursikh, they meet in the holy congregation, There are very rare persons, who follow the Guru’s instructions. ...20
Pauri 21 (Guru without Virtues)
The dumb does not know how to sing, the deaf does not listen,
The blind cannot see, he cannot recognise his own house in dark night
The crippled cannot walk, the maimed does not know the affection of those who embrace one another,
The barren woman cannot have children and no woman can enjoy the company of eunuch,
The mothers after giving birth to sons, give good names to them with endearment
Without the True Guru’s discipline of the Sikh, they seem like the glow-worm before the light of the sun,
Only in the congregation, the Guru’s Word is remembered. ...21

Pauri 22 (Sikh life is supreme)
Lakhs of mediators absorbed in meditation cannot comprehend the form of a Guruward, Lakhs of learned persons with their description are tired in the flight of their consciousness in the Word,
With lakhs of wise utterances made with the strength of intellect one falls on getting blows in the Lord’s Court,
Lakhs of people getting dejected with worldly enjoyments and adopting Yoga cannot endure fragrance of qualities,
Lakhs of people are surprised with the Marvels of the Lord, they cannot know the state of the Lord./Lakhs of Marvellous Ones are in Fear of Indescribable Lord./They cannot enjoy the bliss of Sikh’s discipline in twinkling of the eye. ...22

VAR-XXIX
One O ankār the Eternal Truth realized through the grace of divine preceptor

Pauri 1 (Invocation)
Our obeisance is to the Primal Purusha, who was called True Guru (Guru Nanak) and True Name,
He transformed all the four castes Into Gursikhs and started the True discipline of the Guruwards,
They sing ‘Gurbani’ meeting together in congregation and cause its limitless tunes resound,
Following the instructions of the Guru, they are emancipated and also emancipate the whole world,
With the union of betel-leaf, betel-nut and cachow a fine red colour is produced, Meeting and following the True Guru’s instructions, the knowledge, contemplation and remembrance of Name are got,
The congregation grows up like heaven. ...1

Pauri 2 (True Guru made understand the imperceptible)
Effacing the attraction for other’s body, wealth and slander the Gursikh firmly believes in Name, Charity and Purity,
Being absorbed in Guru’s instructions, he stops the outgoing mind,
On conquering the mind, the world is conquered, the Guru has transformed the eight metals into one,
The philosopher’s stone produces another stone, the Guru’s instruction manifests the Sikh as such,
Rising above the so-called Yogas and enjoyments, the Sikh absorbs himself in loving devotion, fear and self-effacement
By effacing self, God is seen pervading everywhere and the lover of devotees is subdued,
The Gursikh knows the Unknowable in the congregation. ...2

Pauri 3 (Chromic diseases cured)
Attuning his consciousness in Word in the congregation, the Guruward controls both comfort and suffering equally,
Forsaking ego and vice and under Guru’s instructions, he remembers the True Guru, Rising above Shiva and Shakti, the Guruwards are merged in the fruit of bliss in the supreme spiritual state,
They consider the Guru and God as one and efface the ailment of duality, Freeing themselves from the birth, death and old age, they realise the Unapproachable and Unfathomable Lord,
They remain detached in their own home forsaking desires and fear and rise above pain, pleasure, poison and nectar,
They conquer the supremely incurable ailments in the congregation. ...3
Pauri 4 (Conduct of the Sikhs)
They have conquered the three qualities of maya representing air, water and fire,
In mind, speech and action, they have single-mindedly destroyed the duality,
The attunement with Guru's instruction is their pale of knowledge, though seen differently, they are stable in mind,
They are victorious over the desires of the world and nether world and consider themselves as guests in heaven,
They speak sweetly and walk humbly, they bestow charities on the needy and lowly and make them self-reliant,
They attain the fruit of bliss, which is unweighable, stable, invaluable and immeasurable,
In the congregation they discipline the mind. ...4

Pauri 5 (Seekers are successful in their business in holy congregation)
The four requirements for life stand before the Gursikhs with folded hands like slaves,
The Gursikhs have fallen at the feet of others and have earned the respect of the whole world, living harmoniously,
The Vedas do not know their mystery, also the Pundits reciting them and the listeners listening their recitation,
They merge into the resplendent Light, which shines in all the four ages,
They have become one forsaking all castes, they have entered their fraternity,
They sow the seed of profitable trade by celebrating the festivals of their Guru,
In the congregation all the grand-parents and grandchildren are considered equal. ...5

Pauri 6 (Fellow disciples adore in the holy congregation)
They have conquered lust, anger and ego and have effaced the chiding of greed and attachment,
They have imbibed the superb power of Truth, contentment, mercy, piety and knowledge in themselves,
They have risen above the five elements and listen to hailings for the resonance of five sounds,
They have subdued the five postures of Yoga and becoming great have earned great fame,
God is said to be within 'the five', He is Unaccountable and Invaluable,
One meets these 'five' after forsaking the worldly deceits and attuning the consciousness in the Word,
The Sikh brethren appear graceful in the congregation. ...6

Pauri 7 (Gurmukh, holy congregation-count of six)
The six Shastras greatly long for the sight of the Guruward, who was fortunate to have the sight of the True Guru,
The Guruward remains stable on the Guru's instructions, though the understanding of Six Shastras prevails in world,
Listening to the 'bani' of the True Guru, the six main Ragas are in wonder,
A queer Play is prevalent in the world, where with one sun, there are six seasons,
That relish is not found in the six relishes, which is tasted by the Guruward in Love's fruit of bliss,
The celibates, the speakers of Truth and those with long life and the emperors have all been fascinated by maya,
The Gursikh attains the Supreme Spiritual State in the congregation. ...7

Pauri 8 (Discipline of the Lord, holy congregation-count seven)
After fathoming the seven seas, the Guruward keeps himself detached in the sea of existence,
There is darkness in all the seven continents, but he has lighted the lamp of the Word,
He has conquered all the seven sacred cities, but the true congregation for him is city of Supreme Spiritual State,
After catching by their hair the seven stars and seven days, he has subdued them,
After rising above the Universe of twenty-one cities he abides in bliss,
After making a comprehensive study of the seven melodies he has crossed the seven mountain peaks,
He has sustained the Guru's Word in the congregation. ...8

Pauri 9 (Control of mind, holy congregation-count eight)
In the world of four castes and four stages of life, the Guruward has remembered God single-mindedly, Coming into contact with the philosopher's stone, these eight (metals/castes+stages)have become Guruwards (gold),
The adepts and strivers believing in powers have been transformed into Guruwards paying obeisance to the Lord, They remember him at all times and attuning their consciousness in the Word they have known the Unknowable,
The poison of eight-clan snakes has decayed and because of Guru's instructions, the maya entices them no more,
The uncontrollable mind cannot be controlled, but Guruwards controlling it have attained their fruit of bliss,
On meeting the congregation, the mind has been subdued. ...9

Pauri 10 (Gurmat, Association with holy congregation-count nine)
Others perform nine types of devotion, but the Guruward working under Guru's instructions controls the nine doors,
They are absorbed in the love of the Lord and their tongue imbued in such love sings the Praises of the Lord,
They have conquered good and bad karmas through Raja Yoga and caused the nine regions to know it,
They have controlled the nine doors and know the past (time of creation), present and future (time of dissolution),
The nine treasures follow them and they guide for the salvation those who are under patronage and also patronless,
Within the house of nine doors in placed the tongue, which is oftentimes sweet, bitter, cool and hot,
Under the instructions of the Guru, it (the tongue) enjoys bliss. ...10

Pauri 11 (What a Sikh should do)
Seeing the beautiful women of others, they should be considered as mothers, sisters and daughters,
The others' wealth should be considered as pig by the Muslims and cow by the Hindus,
One should not be fascinated by looking at the sons, wives and families and should not use force,
Listening to the praise and slander with his ears, one should not talk ill of anyone,
Being in an envious position, one should not exhibit himself and in ego should not embitter anyone,
The Guruward attains the fruit of bliss and enjoys 'Raja yoga' and pleasures,
For this I am a sacrifice to the congregation. ...11
Pauri 12 (The State of a Gurmukh)
The Guruward has tasted love, therefore he has risen above all other desires of eating and drinking, His sleep of ignorance has ended by absorbing his consciousness in the Word and their night passes in peace, Like the beautiful bridegroom they are ready for marriage and look fine even in simple clothes, They are ever conscious about their uncertain stay in the world and live only like a guest, They move with their profitable cargo of truth, this is the sign of Guruwards moving on the beaten track, They have bright faces in both worlds and their mind is lovingly absorbed in Guru’s instructions, The inexpressible story of the Lord is heard in the congregation. ...12

Pauri 13 (Accept the will of the Lord in the holy congregation)
The Guruward has effaced his ego and his mind abides in humility, Because of the knowledge, their hearts shine brightly and the darkness of ignorance and illusion is cast off, He falls at the feet of the Guru with great humility and this humble Gursikh receives honours in Lord’s Court, He alone is liked by the Lord, who abides under His Will, He, who abides under Lord’s Will is approved by Him, but the Lord causes the Gursikh to abide under His Will, He should live in the world as a guest and should live there without any claims, Abiding in the Congregation, he should practise the instructions of the Guru, ...13

Pauri 14 (Worship of one God in the holy congregation)
Considering the Guru and Lord as one, the Guruward effaces his duality, After removing the raised obstruction, he has caused to unite the water of the tank with that of the stream, On both the banks of the stream, its vastness cannot be measured, The fruit is borne by the tree and the tree emerges by sowing the seed of the fruit, their name remains the same, In six seasons, there is one sun, but none other gives the light to the sun, The stars twinkle during the night but when the day dawns, who has caused their concealment? In the congregation, the Guruwards remember the Lord single-mindedly. ...14
Pauri 15 (Gursikh a Yogi)
Gursikhs are real Yogis, who ever awake and remain detached within maya, They have the mantras of the Guru as rings in their ears and the dust of the feet of saints is like ashes on their body, Their quilt is like imbibing forgiveness and within the pot of love, they enjoy the Lord’s loving devotion, The consciousness in the Word is like resonance of the horn, the knowledge is the staff and contemplation the service, Abiding in Guru’s cave of congregation they are absorbed in trance of high spiritual state for realisation of Unfathomable Being without the ailment of ego, they have freed themselves from the karmas of unity and separation, They are acclaimed for following Guru’s instruction in the congregation. ... 15

Pauri 16 (Associate thyself in holy congregation as a lover)
Lakhs of Brahmans are tired of reciting lakhs of Vedas and talking of the Infinite Lord, Lakhs of ascetics like Mahadev are bored in the sleeplessness of Yogic contemplation, Lakhs of Vishnus after incarnating and taking up the sword of knowledge could not reach upto Lord-God, Lakhs of long-lived Lomas have been knocked about in forbearance from beginning to end, The Supreme Lord in His Sport has created three worlds, four ages and lakhs of universes, Lakhs of creations and dissolutions are occurring like the strings of the Persian-wheel in the twinkling of eye, Those Gursikhs can only realise that Lord b their love in he congregation. ... 16

Pauri 17 (World is conquered only by conquering the mind)
That True Guru is the Supreme and Primal Transcendent Lord, For His realisation the Yogis marvel in contemplation, they do not care for the knowledge of the Vedas, The gods and goddesses remember Him and all the creation in waters, on plains and in spaces are trying to find Him, All the havans, sacrifices, recitations, austerities are being performed, but people are still suffering,
The outgoing mind is not controlled and all the eight regions of the world are suffering in hypocrisies,
The Guruward getting victory over the mind, attains victory over the world, by effacing one's self every one respects,
The Guruward joining the congregation has strung the garland of qualities. ...17

Pauri 18 (Guru, the boatman and association with the Saints)
The Lord is said to be Unknowable and above maya, He is Infinite and Accountless with no form or line,
It is very difficult to know Him, even Sashinaga could not know Him by uttering His Names,
How can we know the story of the Inexpressible Lord, none is there to relate His story,
The Marvellous is calculated as marvellous, the wondrous itself is surprised,
The Gursikhs from all castes are householders, who make themselves busy in their occupations,
They remember in the congregation the Guru, who is the Lover of the devotees,
As a boatman, the Guru ferries across the Sikhs from the sea of existence. ...18

Pauri 19 (Gurumukhs attain the wisdom of understanding)
The Transcendent Lord manifested Himself as Immanent and created the Infinite expanse,
He has kept in each one of his pores millions of universes,
For many ages the Unapproachable and Imperceptible Lord remained in darkness,
For many ages He carried on creating incarnations,
In the Iron age He came and manifested Himself as True Guru,
That lover of his devotees gets subdued In the warp and woof of the congregation,
Only the Gursikhs become conscious about the Creator. ...19

Pauri 20 (True Guru and the Sikh association with holy congregation)
When the True Guru manifested himself, the Guruward Bhai Lehna meditating on the Word attained fruit of bliss,
From the one thousand of fruit emerged, because in the congregation of Guruwards the Lord Himself abides,
Such Gursikhs who have seen or learnt about or have faith in the True Guru are very rare,
Those who firstly became the dust of the feet, the world begs from them the dust of their feet,
The Guruwards following the discipline of the Guru are busy in true trade and are ferried across,
Nobody knows their merit, there is none who can speak, listen or write about them,
The congregation and Guru’s Word are dear to them. ...20

Pauri 21 (Union of the Guru and disciple)
Attuned with the congregation and Guru’s Word, the Guruward attains the fruit of bliss and tasted the nectar of love,
He has sacrificed all other treasures on this nectar and also sacrificed all the fruit,
He has pacified the fire of desires and has made himself firm on peace and contentment,
All his hopes are fulfilled and he remains detached in the world of hopes,
He has destroyed all the desires of his mind and now it does not stray on rising above all of them,
He frees himself from the bondage of karmas, time and Yama and remains detached in the world of karmas,
Following the instructions of the Guru, he has fallen on the feet of others and thus the world falls at his feet,
The Guru and the disciple are amused among themselves. ...21

VAR–XXX
One Oṅkār the Eternal Truth realized through the grace of divine preceptor

Pauri 1 (Invocation, truth and falsehood)
The True Guru is the True king, who has created the True blissful discipline of Guruwards,
The self-willed commit such actions, which are calamitous and are done viciously in duality,
The Guruwards attain the fruit of bliss with others in congregation, absorbed in devotional love,
The self-willed absorbed in falsehood with others get the poisonous fruit of suffering,
The Guruwards efface their selves and fall at the feet of others, their love is ever fresh,
Being negligent of Guru’s instructions, the self-willed waste their birth,
The Play of Truth and falsehood is analogous to the example of tiger and goat. ...1

Pauri 2 (Gurmukh, Manmukh Truth and falsehood)
The fruit of bliss of Guruward is Truth and the fruit of suffering of the ‘self-willed is falsehood;
The Guruward is the tree of Truth and Contentment and the self-willed is shadow of tree of duality,
The Guruward remains firm on Truth and the self-willed moves like the shade,
The Guruward is nightingale in the groove of mangoes and self-willed strays and cows like crows,
The congregation is the orchard of Truth, where the consciousness is attuned with the Guru’s Word,
The company of self-willed is like poisonous forest, where he being Guruless exhibits his wisdom,
Just as the offspring of a prostitute has no name. ...2

Pauri 3 (As above)
When a Gurmukh is married and both sides getting together exhibit rejoicings,
When the couple is blessed with a son, he is said to continue his father’s and family’s lineage,
On the son’s birth the tunes of rejoicings resound and congratulations are given,
The paternal and maternal relatives sing songs of joy and bestow charities on the menials,
The prostitute has many friends, but her children have no name and they are called illegitimate,
The lineage of the Guruwards are like swans and that of the self-willed are like murderous cranes,
Truth begets truth and falsehood begets falsehood. ...3

Pauri 4 (As above)
In the Manasarovar of congregation there are invaluable gems and pearls of virtues,
The Guruwards are like swans, who are firmly attuned to Guru’s instructions and Word,
They separate water from the milk and their knowledge and attention are distinct from others,
They eulogise the Truth and while ruminating they weigh the Unweighable,
The self-willed are absorbed in a trance like cranes, who silently and deceptively devour the beings,
The water of the pond is destabilised and when their beaks are opened, there is great lamentation,
The Truth is gentle and the falsehood is like an idle servant. ...4

Pauri 5 (As above)
The Guruward is truthful and full of virtues and all his qualities appear impressive alongwith Truth,
The self-willed uttering falsehood is full of vices and all his evil manners are false pretensions,
The Truth is gold and falsehood is glass, there is no connection in the value of gold and glass,
The Truth is heavy and falsehood is light, there can be no misconception regarding gem and ‘rati’,
The Truth is like a diamond and falsehood is like crystal, there is no connection between the two,
The Truth is the donor and falsehood is the beggar, they are like day and night or like thief and king,
The Truth is ever complete and the falsehood looks ignominious. ...5

Pauri 6 (Truth and falsehood)
The Guruward is True and colourful like the fast colour of madder,
The self-willed is false having false colour like the short-lived colour of safflower,
Just as one sniffs at the smell of garlic and the mind does not like it,
The falsehood is like the plant ‘ak’ having bitter taste and Truth is like the sweet mango fruit,
The Truth is the king and the falsehood is like a thief, the king sleeps and the thief only strays about,
The king getting up arrests the thief and gets him punished by the Court,
The Truth catches the thief and gets him imprisoned. ...6
Pauri 7 (Truth and falsehood)
The Truth looks graceful like turban on head and falsehood like ugly loin-cloth at improper place,
The Truth is like powerful lion and the falsehood like a weak deer, Trading in Truth brings profit and trading in falsehood brings loss,
The Truth is like acclaimed real coin and the falsehood like an unaccepted counterfeit rupee,
Lakhs of stars twinkle in dark night, when there is no light in that darkness,
When the sun dawns, the darkness breaks into pieces,
The Truth and falsehood are inimical each other like the stone and pitcher. ...

Pauri 8 (Truth and falsehood)
The Truth and falsehood behave like the visible and dreamlike respectively,
The Truth is visible like a mountain but the falsehood is false like the imaginary city,
Just as there is reflection of human beings, trees and the stars of the sky in the stream,
The falsehood is dark because of smoke, it cannot imitate the clouds ready to burst into showers,
One cannot enjoy the taste of sugar by only remembering it and the darkness is not finished without the lamp.
The soldier drawn on paper by an artist along with hundreds of weapons cannot fight,
In this way the deeds of Truth and falsehood appear. ...

Pauri 9 (Truth and falsehood)
The Truth is the ferment in the milk and falsehood is like the drop of beverage in the milk,
The Truth is like eating the food through mouth and falsehood like troubling foodgrain through nose,
The Truth is like the emergence of fruit and tree and the falsehood like the destroying shellac for the tree’s end,
The fire remains in the tree for a hundred years, but a small fire reduces many a tree to ashes,
Truth is the remedy and falsehood is the ailment and without the Guru-doctor the self-willed experiences lot of suffering
Truth is the comrade and falsehood is a Thug, who cannot spoil the peace of the Guruward,
With his love for the Truth, the falsehood is destroyed. ...
Pauri 10 (Truth and falsehood)
The falsehood is like a weapon and the truth is like the armour,
The falsehood always watches like an enemy and the Truth helps like good friends,
The Truth is like a brave warrior and the falsehood enacts false unity,
The Truth stands firmly at the right place and the falsehood stands and trembles at a wrong place,
The Truth thrashes the falsehood and this scene is viewed by the people of three worlds in four directions,
The falsehood is always sick and the Truth is ever fresh,
The Truthful is True and the one who tells lies seems false. ...10

Pauri 11 (Decision of Truth and falsehood)
The Truth shines like sun and the Falsehood is like an owl, who cannot see anything during the day,
The Truth is like vegetation fragranced by the sandalwood and falsehood is like bamboo remaining without fragrance,
The Truth is like the fruitful tree and the falsehood is represented by Simmal, which in its ego remains fruitless,
The Truth is like the forest greenery in Sawan and the falsehood is like ‘Ak’ and camel-thorn,
The Truth is like the gems and pearls of Manasarovar and the falsehood is like the empty conch in hands,
The Truth is like the pure water of Ganges, but the falsehood is like the concealed wine,
The Truth ever remains true and the one telling lies is remains false. ...11

Pauri 12 (End of the Truth and falsehood)
The Truth and falsehood both quarrelling with each other came to the court of Justice,
The judge deciding their case is truthful, listens to the account of their quarrel,
The Truth is true and the falsehood is false, it was conveyed to both by the jurists,
The Truth won and the falsehood was defeated, who was defamed in the town,
The truthful was acclaimed and the false one was censured,
The True one is considered as the creditor and the false as the debtor who presents the letter of his debt to the Truthful
The one who gets himself swindled is not cheated, but the one who cheats gets himself cheated,
Those who trade in Truth are very rare. ...12

Pauri 13 (As above)
The falsehood sleeps and the Truth awakes, who is liked by the True Lord,
The Lord has kept the True one as the watchman for the protection of the treasure of Truth,
The Truth is the leader and the falsehood is the darkness which puts the people in the solitude of duality,
The Lord has sent the Truth as the commandant in the world for guiding the people,
The Guru has embarked the people on the ship of congregation and gets them ferried across the sea of existence,
He has caused the enemies like lust, anger, greed, attachment and ego to be killed by catching them by their necks,
Those who have met the Perfect Guru are saved. ...13

Pauri 14 (Truth, True Sikh and True Guru)
Eating the salt of his Master, he, who fights faithfully in the field, is Loyal one,
He, who with his weapons, cuts the head of the enemy, is considered a brave warrior,
After his death, his wife, if she dies along with him, consider her respectably as giver of boon or curse,
Her sons and grandsons are praised and it gives a boost to her family,
Likewise, if a person makes best use of his time and recites hymns in the early hours of the morning,
Going in the congregation he effaces his self and ends his ‘mineness’,
Just as fighting in war and becoming a ‘Sati’ are considered good, the discipline of the Guruward is highly graceful,
He, who has true faith in the Lords, he is recognised as the True Guru. ...14

Pauri 15 (Holy congregation)
The congregation is the True and stable place, where five qualities are prominent,
Truth, Contentment Mercy, righteousness and finance, all of them are completely in practice,
The Guruwards follow the Guru’s instructions on Name, Charity and, Cleanliness,
They speak sweetly, work humbly, bestow charities, they devote themselves to Guru’s instructions,
They are victorious in both the worlds and the trumpets of the True Word resound for them,
They, who recognise the uncertainty of worldly life like the stay of guests, are very rare,
I am a sacrifice to him who effaces his self. ...15

Pauri 16 (Untruthful village)
The falsehood is like the village of dacoits, in which the five vices (lust, anger, greed, attachment and ego) abide,
There are hostilities ever between lust and anger, and there reside the treacherous greed, attachment and ego,
There is strife here amongst the malicious ones and the rule of sins pervades here,
The great vices here are the slander of others, the attraction for another’s wealth and love for another’s woman,
The anxiety in their minds never finds, they undergo the punishment of the king as well as Yama,
They feel ashamed in both the worlds, they are thrown in hell and also transmigrate,
The product of the fire are only embers. ...16

Pauri 17 (Falsehood can’t merge in Truth)
The Truth is completely pure, there is not a bit of falsehood in it
The eye is tormented by a small particle, a straw in it causes great pain and the night passes in suffering,
A fly mixed in the food comes out with vomiting,
A spark in the cotton causes the agonising reduction of all of it into ashes,
Because of the beverage the milk is spoiled causing the loss of its taste and colour,
A small quantity of poison, when tasted, kills even the kings instantly,
How can the Truth merge in the falsehood ...17

Pauri 18 (Falsehood can’t efface Truth)
O Gurmukh! The Truth remains detached, the falsehood has no effect on it,
The sandalwood clung by the serpents is not poisoned and its fragrance is not decreased,
The philosopher's stone lying within stones, is not damaged by coming into contact with eight metals,
The impure water of streams mixing with the waters of Ganges do not make it impure,
The fire has no effect on the ocean and the mountain is not made unstable by the wind,
The arrow does not reach the sky and the shooter repents later on,
The falsehood ultimately remains false. ...18

Pauri 19 (Falsehood ultimately comes out)
The Truth ever remains respectable and the glory of falsehood is ever false,
The respect of the false one is false and the truthful are ever true, being practically under Guru's instruction,
The strength of the false one is false and the strength of the truthful deserves real pride,
The falsehood is not accepted in Lord's Court and the Truth is always glorious in the presence of the Lord,
The truthful is in gratitude for the Lord and in the house of false one there are blasphemy and discontent,
The gait of Truth is of the elephant and the gait of falsehood is odd like that of the sheep,
The eructation of radish and betel and the value of garlic and musk cannot be equalised,
He, who sows poison, cannot eat the crushed bread mixed with ghee and sugar. ...19

Pauri 20 (End of the falsehood is very bad)
The disposition of falsehood is like the madder, which endures the boiling and dyes fast colour,
The disposition of falsehood is like the jute, which after getting peeled its skin, is intertwined into ropes,
The sandalwood doing welfare for others, infuses fragrance in the fruitful and fruitless plants,
Greatly vicious is the bamboo, which burns in ego and causes to burn the neighbouring plants,
The Truth is like nectar, which gives life to the dying and the falsehood is like poison, which when taken causes death,
The Truth is approved in Lord’s Court and with falsehood one is punished in Lord’s Court, Whatever one sows, eats the same fruit. ...20

VAR-XXXI

One Oaṅkār the Eternal Truth realized through the grace of divine preceptor

Pauri 1 (The position of the merits and demerits)

Both Poison and Nectar emerged from the ocean, While eating the former one dies and eating the later one becomes immortal, The poison abides in the mouth of the snake and nectar in the mouth of Garuda, No one likes the caws of a crow and the utterance of nightingale is liked by all, The one making insipid speech is not liked and the one who speaks sweetly marvels by becoming the worlds friend, The evil one signifies the vices and the good one desires the welfare of all, This is the view told about the merits and defects. ...1

Pauri 2 (Researcher and the polemicist)

When the sun rises the three worlds are seen, but the owl cannot even see the sun, The ruddy sheldrake loves the sun, on meeting her Lord, she asks for the events of the night, For all the birds the night is dark, but the ruddy sheldrake’s mind moves on even in the darkness, Seeing the reflection of the sun in water, considering him as her Lord repines, Seeing his shadow in the well, the lion jumps in it and dies, he fights with his own eyes, The researcher her seeks and finds, but the quarrelsome person cannot know the reality, The elephant cannot milch the cow. ...2

Pauri 3 (Bad persons remain unhappy even in happiness)

In the month of Sawan, there is greenery in the forests, but ‘ak’ and camelthorn are dried up, In the month of Chet, the vegetation sprouts forth, but the leaves of capparis fall down and show no incentive, All the trees become fruitful, but the unfaithful Simmal remains fruitless,
The vegetation around the sandalwood is fragranced, but the bamboo remaining without fragrance, groans,
The conch emerging empty from the sea cries and weeps loudly in agony,
The crane in his fraudulent trance on the Ganges gets and eats only small fish as alms,
Those who are separated from the company (of congregation) obtain only suffering . . . . . .

Pauri 4 (Good and bad)
For a gentle person, all the world is gentle, the good views everyone as good,
For a bad person, the whole world is bad and for him all are bad,
Krishna assisted Pandavas, because particularly they had the loving devotion for him,
There was enmity in the mind of Kaurvas, because they were absorbed in calculations malevolently,
The two parties has good and bad in their minds, but during their search for assistance they had not the same sight,
For Yudhistar none was bad and for Duryodhan none was good,
Whatever is there in the pot, becomes apparent through an outlet. . . .

Pauri 5 (Famous tale of Dharamraj)
After taking birth in the house of the son, Dharamraj went to sit on the seat of Justifier,
He is one, but has two names, the whole world considered him as Dharamraja and also Yama,
Those who were wedded to piety, they saw him as Dharamraja and the sinner committing sins saw him as Yama,
He thrashes the sinner, but speaks sweetly to the pious one,
The enemies look at him inimically and the pious see him as a friend,
The fruit of virtue and vice is obtained in heaven and hell, but on earth one gets pain or pleasure according to karmas,
One’s appearance is reflected exactly in the mirror. . . .

Pauri 6 (Clean Mirror)
Just as all the people can see clearly in a neat looking glass,
The face of white one is seen white and the black one is seen as black,
The laughing one sees himself laughing and the weeping one sees himself weeping,
No blemish can be attached to that looking glass and all the guises of the six Shastras look as they are,
The vicious intellect is the duality, therefore they are absorbed in the wrong calculations of enmity and opposition,
The Guru’s instructions are pure and those who follow them see everything as they are,
Within the Pure Lord all the gentle and bad are seen lose all their forms and marks. ...6

Pauri 7 (Guru the caretaker guard)
When the sun sets, there is dark night and the stars twinkle,
The bankers sleep soundly in the homes and the thieves, looters of the house stray hither and thither,
The rare watchmen keep awake, who cry loudly for the people to remain alert,
The watchmen awaken the sleeping world and catch the thieves and bring them before the bankers,
Those who keep awake protect their homes and those helpless ones, who sleep, get their houses burgled,
The bankers come to their homes and the policemen beat the thieves by catching their necks,
In this way the gentle and bad both live in the world. ...7

Pauri 8 (Nature of company)
The mango tree sprouts forth in the spring season, but the ‘ak’ is laden with fruit in the dry season,
The mango tree does not bear the fruit of ‘ak’ and the ‘ak’ does not give the mango-fruit,
The black nightingale comes in the mango grooves, but the mind of the ‘ak-cricket’ enjoys the friendly company of ‘ak’,
The mind is like a bird and the company it enjoys due to the differentiation of trees, it gets the same fruit
The Gursikh attending the congregation fears the Lord and the one in the vicious company does not fear Him,
The Lord is also called the lover of devotees and being the saviour of sinners, He is also called the ‘redeemer’,
One who is liked by the Lord, is saved by Him. ...8
Bhai Gurdas: The Great Sikh Theologian – His Life and Work

Pauri 9 (Putna)
If Putana was redeemed, the quaffing of poison is not a good thing, Ganiks was said to have been redeemed, none should go to another’s house and cause a strife, Valmiki was redeemed, therefore it is not good to kill anyone on the path without hesitation, Badhak is said to have been redeemed, it is not good to catch the innocent birds in a noose holding them by their legs,
If the butcher (Sadhna) was redeemed, the beings should not be killed and eaten,
The ship ferries across without considering the colour of gold and iron,
It is not good to continue living in this way. ...9

Pauri 10 (It is bad to imitate evil)
If we still live after falling down from a date-tree, none should climb and fall from a date-tree,
If we come back safe from the solitude, it is not good to cross the solitude,
If we are saved after the stinging of a snake, it is not good to catch a snake, which will ultimately kill us,
If one is saved safely from a strong current, it is not good to cross the river without a boat,
The Lord is said to be the redeemer of sinners, only the knowers know this anecdote,
Loving devotion is the Guru’s instruction, and he who follows vicious intellect, gets no refuge in the Lord’s Court,
The committed actions only will accompany us at the end. ...10

Pauri 11 (Difference of Gurmukh and Manmukh because of virtues)
Like the different fragrances of garlic and musk, gold and iron have not the same colour, Crystal is not like the diamond and the sugarcane is not valued like a reed,
A ‘rati’ is not valued as a gem and the glass is not valuable as the emerald,
With vicious intellect one ever strays and the Guru’s instructions are a ship of good deeds,
A bad person is slandered and the gentle one is hailed and acclaimed,
The Guruward is known apparently and the Truth remains concealed from the self-willed,
The self-willed is useless one like a broken pot. ...11
Pauri 12 (Fame and dispute according to the actions)
Some prepare weapons and some are busy in cleansing armours,
Both the armies face each other and fight in the war and the warriors save themselves from being inflicted with wounds
The warriors without armours are wounded and those with armour remain safe,
Those preparing bows are filled with pride by preparing the ‘Khanjaradi’ bow, considered good one,
There are two societies of good and bad in the world, they receive their fruit according to their actions,
Those who perform good deeds live in comfort and those performing bad deeds live in agony,
The good one is eulogised and the bad one is slandered. ...12

Pauri 13 (As above)
One receives superb things in the congregation like truth, contentment, mercy, piety and wealth,
In the company of bad persons the vices like lust, anger, greed, attachment and ego are aggravated,
One the called a gentle one by performing good deeds and the one performing bad deeds is called bad,
The cow eats grass, but gives milk and giving birth to a calf, it increases the herd of cattle,
On drinking milk, the snake gives poison and giving birth to many tiny snakes, it devours most of them,
In the company of the good and bad, committing virtuous acts and sins, the comforts and sufferings are obtained,
The good perform welfare works and the bad perform vices. ...13

Pauri 14 (Good and bad)
On emitting fragrance the sandalwood gives fragrance to all the trees,
From the colliding bamboos, the fire arise and burns its family,
The starting among the birds gets entrapped itself and also gets entrapped others of its family,
Eight metals are obtained from the mountain, which are transformed into gold by the philosopher’s stone,
Going to the house of a prostitute, the wicked commit sins and become sick,
The suffering ones come to the house of a doctor, who gives medicines and remove their ailments,
The good and bad are two different categories. ...14

Pauri 15 (Good and bad)
The character of madder is good, which after getting boiled, dyes with fast colour,
The sugarcane is crushed in the Sugarcane crusher, its juice goes in the cauldron and by boiling its sweetness is increased,
If the gourd is saturated with nectar, even then its bitterness is not effaced,
The good one performs good action for the wicked one doing bad deed, he does not keep in mind his bad deed,
One who performs bad action for the gentle one doing good deed, never keeps in mind the good of anyone,
One reaps whatever he sows. ...15

Pauri 16 (Natural evil or goodness of the bad and the noble)
The inclination of good and bad becomes evident by the line drawn in water and on stone,
In the mind of the good one the enmity does not stay and love does not remain in the mind of the bad one,
The good one never forgets the love and the bad one never forgets the enmity,
The hope of both is not fulfilled, the vicious intellect never performs good and the Guru’s instruction’ never permits bad,
The good one never does anything bad and the bad one never commits anything good,
This is said to happen, the wise people speak with one voice,
The good one performs a welfare work and the bad one commits bad deed. ...16

Pauri 17 (Tale of good and bad one)
I narrate only what has happened, listen to this story of the good and bad,
Both good and bad went on a way, the one had bread and other had water,
The good one presented the bread that he had, keeping in view the welfare of the other,
The bad one did a bad thing and he did not present the water to the good one,
The good one doing good was redeemed, but the bad one kept on having his enmity with the good one,
The True Lord’s Justice is True, He knows every being,
I am a sacrifice to the Nature of the Creator. ...17
Pauri 18 (Ram and Rāvān)
The Good and the Bad, who have come into the world will ultimately pass away,
The mighty ones like Ravana and Ram Chandra have been fighting with each other,
Ravana, who had subdued Yama and Old age, he embraced unrighteousness at the end, Ram Chandra was an immaculate Purusha, because of whose piety the stones floated in water,
Because of bad conduct Ravana destroyed himself, he had the blemish of abducting the wife of Ram Chandra, Ramayana depicting life of Ram Chandra is irrevocable in all ages, he who takes his shelter, is saved,
Those who are Lord’s Fear get applause and those who, are arrogant are slandered. ...18

Pauri 19 (The famous tale of Rāvān)
Lanka, the great citadel of Ravana was all gold, which had the moat of saltish sea all around,
He had lakhs of sons and a lakh and a quarter of grandsons and Kumbhkaran and Mehravan were his brothers,
The wind-god always worked as a sweeper and the mighty Indra served water,
The fire-god was his cook and the sun and moon lighted his lamps,
He had a huge army of elephants, horses, chariots and soldiers and none could estimate his territories,
Because of the grace of Lord Shiva, all the gods and demons served him,
Because of vicious and evil intellect his slander ended him. ...19

Pauri 20 (Famous story of i-m Chandr)
Ram Chandra, the Cause of all causes, embodied himself under some cause,
He obeyed the order of his step-mother, accepted exile and earned approbation,
He effaced the strength of Parashurama, he was gracious towards lowly and the blower of pride,
Sita and Lakshmana remained with him in his service and love remaining chaste and celibate,
Because of his Just rule, his kingdom was called ‘Ram-Rajya’ as is appearent from Ramayana,
The death of those warriors is true, who have earned great respect by joining the holy congregation,
Under the instruction of the True Guru, they have done works of welfare in this world. ...2

\textbf{VAR-XXXII}

\textit{One Oaňkār the Eternal Truth realized through the grace of divine preceptor}

\textbf{Pauri 1 (Characteristics of a Gurmukh)}
At first the Guruward taking birth in Guru’s house poses as ignorant and remains in Lord’s Fear,
He becomes a Sikh by taking Guru’s instructions and gets wiser by adopting loving devotion,
He listens to and believes in instructions and being honourable remains humble,
He respects other Gursikhs and follows the traditional method of falling at their feet,
He does not forget the Guru’s instructions and considers himself as guest during short stay in world,
He speaks sweetly and remains humble accepting the Guru’s instructions,
He works hard for his earnings and even shares them with other Gursikhs. ...1

\textbf{Pauri 2 (Gurmukh strong yet humble)}
He remains alert for the sight of his Guru and is wiser in intuning his consciousness in the Word,
He remains firm in divine devotion, charity and ablutions and is in unison with others in mind, speech and action,
He speaks less, sleeps less and eats less,
He forsakes any attention towards another’s body or wealth and gets ashamed in listening to the slander of others,
He accepts equally the sight and Word of the True Guru and participation in the congregation,
He meditates on One Lord single-mindedly, destroying duality and acting according to the Will of the Lord,
Though he is powerful, but keeps posing as powerless. ...2
Pauri 3 (Manmukh is a fool, deprived and alone)
He, who does not recognise a Guruward, though he has eyes, he is blind,
He, who does not understand a Guruward, though he has ears, he is deaf,
He, who does not sing the hymns like a Guruward, though he has a tongue, he is dumb,
He, who does not smell the fragrance of Guruward’s Lotus-feet, though he has a nose, he is noseless,
He, who does not serve the Guruward, though he has the hands, he is armless and weeps with affliction,
He, who does not imbibe the Guru’s instructions, he is stupid and remains without support,
None becomes a companion of such a fool. ...3

Pauri 4 (Example of a fool and a owl)
The owl cannot see the sun, he abides in solitude, leaving habitation,
The kite cannot get training from anyone, she eats the rats and flies all day,
The bamboo does not have the fragrance and the fire does not come out of the orchard of sandalwood,
The conch comes out of the sea quite empty, likewise those without Guru’s instructions have impaired their body,
The Simmal tree remains fruitless, likewise the stupid person effaces his self in ego,
The foolish persons are useless, they ever remain in obstinacy. ...4

Pauri 5 (Mirror before a blind fool)
The barber, who places the mirror in front of the blind, will not get anything from him,
If the bard sings in front of the deaf and the niggard, he will not receive a robe of honour in return,
If one asks for advice from a dumb person for his impaired work, he will receive no answer,
If the one speaking through the nose enters a garden, he will not be able to recommend the gardener for a prize,
If a woman is married with a crippled person, how can she be embraced by him?
The gait of all walking persons is good, but the lame can only exhibit his method of walking,
Likewise the stupid person cannot be concealed, he just exhibits himself. ...5
Pauri 6 (Reclamation of a fool)
The stone does not get wet, even if it is placed in water for a hundred years.
The crop does not grow over the stony field, even if it rains for four months.
If the stone is rubbed with sandalwood, the stone does not wear out like the sandalwood.
The stones grind several condiments, but they do not know their taste.
The grindstone revolves a thousand times, without eating and drinking, without hunger and thirst.
The stone and the pitcher have only such relation that the stone destroys the pitcher whether it drawns or goes up.
The stupid person is not conscious of its praise or defamation. ...6

Pauri 7 (Fool is a stone, he does bad action even in congregation)
Though the philosopher's stone remains with other stones, but it cannot turn them into gold.
The diamonds and gems come out of stones, but no one strings a necklace of stones.
The precious stones are weighed with weights of stones, but their values are non-comparable.
The eight metals are found in stones, which turn into gold by touching the philosopher's stone.
The crystal glitters among stones, which exhibits many colours placed against it, but does not lose its own colour.
The stone neither has any fragrance, nor any taste, it impairs itself, being hard-hearted.
The stupid person with his stupid actions, ultimately weeps. ...7

Pauri 8 (Avoid company of a fool)
Just as there is 'jewel' in the head of the black serpent which he does not know, filled with poison.
Just as there is musk in the body of the deer, he strays, swelled up, smelling the plants.
Just as there is a pearl in the shell, which does not know this secret.
Just as there is tick on the teat of the cow, but it does not drink the milk and quaffs only the blood.
Just as the crane has not learnt to swim and the stone bathing at the holy shrine cannot float, Likewise it is good to go a begging with a wise person than the company of a stupid chieftain serving no purpose,
The false one, even impairs the genuine one. ...8

Pauri 9 (Be unknown to the fool)
The dog either bites or licks, but when he gets mad, the mind even hesitates from his licking,
The charcoal, when it is not burning, blackens our hand, but the burning one burns it,
When the snake eats a lizard, it becomes leprous, but if it leaves the same,
it becomes blind,
When the tumour is in the body, on being removed, it causes pain and when kept there, one feels abashed,
If there is an ill-omened son in the family, he can neither be ousted nor greeted, Likewise the stupid person may not be loved, one should forsake him and remain detached from enmity,
On both sides i.e. love and enmity, one is sure to suffer. ...9

Pauri 10 (The fool is absurd and chooses evils)
Just as the elephant takes a bath and coming out of water, he raises the dust,
Just as the camel eats, but forsaking wheat he eats camel-thorn, Just like the insane person, who ties his loin-cloth sometimes around his waist and sometimes on his head,
Just as the armless person sometimes uses his hand for wiping his buttocks and sometimes for eating,
Just as the pincers of the ironsmith are sometimes put in water and sometimes in fire,
Just as this is the bad habit of a fly that it sits on a thing emitting bad smell, not liking fragrance,
Likewise the stupid person’s tendency cannot be ascertained. ...10

Pauri 11 (Fool entrapps himself and are liar)
The parrot does not leave the tube and cries on being entrapped, The monkey does not unleash his fist and being caught danes in front of every home and exhibits imitations,
The ass does not leave his obstinacy and even overloaded with sack he skips,
The dog licks the grindstone and his tail is not straightened even if it is pulled a lot,
The stupid people perform only defective works, they just go on beating the line after the serpent has passed,
On some adversary's death, getting off their turban, they exhibit it to their relations. ...11

Pauri 12 (Fool is not friend of truth)
One fights severely on being called a blind, but on being called a careful one, he becomes delightful,
If he is called a 'nice one', he considers it good, but if called a 'fool', he deliberately becomes deaf,
If he is called a 'patient one', he laughs, and if you call him a 'bull', his mind is filled with anger,
The crow knows the wisdom, but he falls on excreta and caws in uncivilised tone,
To a bad custom, they name it 'good', and call the excreta of cat as 'mushk bilaee',
Standing just under the grapes, the jackal spits at them, because he cannot jump up to them,
The stupid person is foul-mouthed exhibiting mob mentality. ...12

Pauri 13 (Devoid of virtues the foolish is arrogant)
The castor plant is a very degraded plant, who exhibits itself uselessly,
The bush chat among the birds exhibits itself jumping on many boughs,
The sheep bleating with her mouth passes the, four days of her youth (and then killed),
Among the various organs of sense and action like mouth, eyes, nose and ears, there is also the organ of excretion,
If the soldier is ousted from the house and his bow is hung of the door, there is no use of this,
Likewise the fool among men, without any quality, calls himself great in ego,
Such a man without any quality, sitting in society, exhibits himself. ...13

Pauri 14 (Who is a fool)
That person is called a fool, who neither understands a right utterance nor utters himself rightly,
If you ask him something else and he responds something else,
If you advise or bring home to him something, he considers in his mind the right thing in a wrong sense,
He is greatly ignorant and does not understand anything, he is ever in wonder without the presence of mind,
The Guru’s instructions do not abide in his mind and in bad intellect he does not differentiate between friend and foe,
If he is forbidden to go near the fire or snake, he opposes the right thing and violently follows his own way,
Like the child, who continues crying without listening to his mother. ...14

Pauri 15 (Identification of a fool)
The fool strays from the path and considers the guide as mistaken,
If he is made to sit in the canoe, he jumps forcibly in the strong current,
While sitting among the wise people, he exhibits himself by ill-mannered utterance,
He considers the wise people as fools and considering himself as wise, he performs base deeds,
He calls the day as night and night as day like a bat and a glow-worm,
The fool does not bring in his mind the instructions of the Guru. ...15

Pauri 16 (The end of a fool)
The doctor seeing the melon stuck in the throat of a dromedary, broke the melon by striking the throat with a stone,
The servant of the doctor learnt the doctor’s profession, killed an old woman having goitre, when women began to weep,
People caught that quasi doctor and brought him before the king, when punished, he became cautious,
He told everything when asked and his concealed secret came to the open,
The assayers ousted him just as the glass cannot mix with rubies,
The fool, without wisdom, cannot become like a sugarcane from bamboo,
Though he is in man’s body, but he is, in fact, like an animal. ...16

Pauri 17 (The foolish undergoes the results of imitation)
Meditating on Lord Shiva, the son of a moneylender received the boon of more wealth,
The wealth manifesting itself like Jaina monks came to his house,
With every hit of the weapon of the monks, there were heaps of money falling down,
Performing his task, the barber saw all this and became very restless,
He came and killed those monks, the king came to know of the killing of innocent monks,
The barber was caught and catching him by his hair, he was knocked down and killed, who could save him?
The fools sow the seed out of season. ...17

Pauri 18 (Even a Pandit can be a fool)
The world saw the dialogue held between the Pandit and the oilman Ganga,
The Pandit raised one finger, but Ganga raised two,
Then the Pandit raised five fingers, but Ganga thereby moved his fist
The Pandit fell at the feet of Ganga and left defeated, deceived by appearance,
The Pandit considered the two aspects of the One Lord, who can be realised by the man of five elements,
And the oilman had thought of injuring the two eyes with his moving fist in an instant,
There is difference in the consciousness of the wise Pandit and the foolish oilman. ...18

Pauri 19 (The result of association with the stupid one)
Bathing in cold water from a well, the man came home with naked head forgetting his turban there,
The foolish women at home, seeing him with a bare head began to mourn and cry,
Seeing the women weeping, the man also unhesitatingly cried in lamentation,
People also gathered for lamentation, several men and women sat together,
The barber’s wife asked the mourning women, on whose name the mournful song be uttered?,
The daughter-in-law asked for a reply to this query from her father-in-law as to who was dead?,
In the company of the fools such like unpleasant scene is created. ...19

Pauri 20 (How to deal with a fool)
If the fool is caused to understand something, he does not comprehend its good or bad points,
He cannot differentiate with his own eyes whether the metal is brass, gold, bronze or silver,
He does not know the taste of oil and ghee, even if the pitcher of ghee and large vessel of oil are lying near him,
He remains without consciousness night and day, he considers both the light and utter darkness as equal,
For him the fragrance of musk and the odour of garlic are the same, and the stitches of velvet and leather are the same,
He does not differentiate between an enemy or a friend and also have no recognition of the good or bad colour,
It is better to remain silent than to talk to such a stupid person. ...20

VAR-XXXIII
One Oaṅkār the Eternal Truth realized through the grace of divine preceptor

Pauri 1 (Gurmukh-Manmukh)
Good and bad in the world are called saintly and unsaintly or Guruward and self-willed,
Out of both, the double-faced are in agony, they are confused and afflicted with ego,
They suffer in both the worlds, they are cheated by the thieves and thugs on their paths,
They do not find support and get immersed in illusions,
Among the Hindus and Muslims, there are Gurmukhs as well as self-willed steeped in ignorance,
The self-willed are ever in transmigration. ...1

Pauri 2 (Hindu-Muslim)
From God and maya both Hindu and Muslim took birth moving on different paths, Hindus called God ‘Ram’ and the Muslims ‘Khuda’, Hindus bowed towards the East and the Muslims towards the West, Hindus considered Ganges and Varanasi as holy and the Muslims considered Mecca as sacred,
Hindus have Vedas and the Muslims four ‘Katebs’, Hindus four castes and the Muslims four sects,
Both are born of five elements including air, water and fire,
They belong to one place, but have two different names. ...2
Pauri 3 (Example of double-talker and the double fared mirror)
The two-sided mirror moved from hand to hand in the world,
The two-sided mirror is in agony moving confused in another’s home,
From the front it looks good, seeing his face one is pleased,
From the back it looks frightening, the face is the same, but appears different,
When the mirror is cleansed, it continues to be filled with the earlier haze, Though Dharamraja and Yama are the same, the former never experiences any illusion,
The truthful Guruward ever realises the True Lord. ...3

Pauri 4 (Sikh of the Guru is superior)
The weaver, putting the threads in good condition warp and woof weaves the cloth,
The tailor tears away the cloth and impairs it, which cannot be sold in good price,
The pair of scissors cuts the cloth, being double-mouthed, it faces the grindstone,
The needle sews and unites and brings the separated ones together,
The Lord is one, but there are two path of Hindus and Muslims in the world,
The Sikh of the Guru is at a higher level, like the needle, with Guru’s loving devotion,
The double-mouthed like the pair of scissors are confused and afflicted. ...4

Pauri 5 (The double-talker composed with the spinning wheel)
The rim of the spinning-wheel with eight small planks is placed between the two sports,
Both the ends of the wooden axle are fixed in the holes of the supports, which revolves a lakh of times,
It is wrapped with the band and the cord of cotton after intertwining it is encircled,
The spindle is fixed between the two pieces of leather and the young girls spin the cotton,
After working with the spinning party, the girls go away like the birds flying away from the tree,
There is none to accompany till the end like the false ochre colour,
This world is just like the revolving shade of the tree. ...5
Pauri 6 (The fickle minded and the adulteress woman)
The unchaste woman leaves her parental home and home of her in-laws and leads a life of shame,
She leaves her husband and enjoys with her lovers, how can she be happy in such a state of struggle?
She does not listen to any advice, on the occasions of marriage or death, she leads others towards immorality,
She receives reproaches from every side and feeling ashamed, she bursts into tears,
When she is caught in her sinful action, she stands in the court shamelessly,
She hangs between life and death in great suffering and still looks towards others homes,
In a state of duality, her demerits increase enormously. ...6

Pauri 7 (The duality and the Sikh)
Just as if anyone occupies a place in the party of others, he repents in affliction,
Because the landlords use force and indulge in strife and snatching,
The husband of two wives and the woman of two men is doomed to destruction,
Under the orders of two chiefs, the fields are devastated,
There is agony day and night, when the home is destroyed and the enemies are pleased,
The woman under two husbands cannot live in peace and cannot even run away,
Likewise, the duality ever stings like a serpent. ...7

Pauri 8 (Manmukh and the Serpent)
The tormentor, scoundrel and ambidextrous is agonising like a double-faced snake,
The worst species is the snake, but the double-faced snake is still the inferior one,
He, who conceals his Guru becomes a leper and this Guruless one does not believe in any Tantra or Mantra, Whomsoever it stings, he becomes a leper, and his colour and form are impaired,
The self-willed remains far away from Guruward, he incites trouble, which is effaced by the Guruward,
The mouth of the self-willed is ever full of the poison of backbiting and jealousy abides in his mind,
Unless his head is crushed, this bad habit does not leave him. ...8
Pauri 9 (Example of a prostitute)
Just as a prostitute of many lovers leaves her husband and becomes spouseless,
The sun born to her will bear no names of the homes of parents and in-laws,
She bedecks her nose with a ring and deceives others with her music and adornment,
Like the horn of the hunters, she causes the destruction of deer-like men,
She dies the death of a scoundrel in this world and does not get any support in the next world,
The scoundrel and ambidextor remains in affliction like the prostitute and is also a false rupee-coin,
He not only damages himself, but also damages the world. ...9

Pauri 10 (Double-natured)
The crow flying in the forests does not look good, though considered wise, he damages himself,
The dog with mud on its buttocks considers himself as the dog of potters,
The bad sons relate the stories of their ancestors in every home,
The person posing as the leader leaves his companions and sleeps in the crossing, gets his people robbed,
The heavy rain with hails out of season damages the newly sprouted field,
The tormentor, scoundrel and ambidextor remains in agony like a stubborn bull entrapped in yoke,
That bull is left with searing iron in the solitude. ...10

Pauri 11 (Double-natured is sorrowful)
The tormentor, scoundrel and ambidextor is like bronze which turns into brass,
He looks very nice and bright from outside, but is dark from inside, which cannot be washed,
The pincers of the ironsmith is double-mouthed, which remains under affliction because of bad company,
It endures the heat of the fire for a moment and is put in cold water in another moment,
The gourd of speckled colour looks nice, but is poisonous from inside,
None can tolerate its taste, there arise blisters on the tongue and one sheds tears from his eyes,
No body strings a necklace of the buds of oleander. ...11
Pauri 12 (The sense of duality brings defeat)
The tormentor, scoundrel and ambidextor is of no use like an ostrich,
It cannot fly, nor burdened like a camel, but still it exhibits itself,
The tusks of the elephant are mentioned, it shows others and eats with others,
The goats have four teats, two on the throat and two in the udder,
The milk is there in the later and the two former are only fraudulent,
The deer have four eyes, two for seeing and the other two near the horns, which cannot see,
The false wager of duality leads one to defeat. ...12

Pauri 13 (The duality scorches one and all)
The drum sounds on both sides, though set in bondage, gets regular slaps,
The ‘Rabaab’ creates many musical sounds, when its ear-like keys are revolved, The cymbals collide with each other, breaking their head and body, they create violent sound,
The flute sounds only when empty, but if something goes in, it is cleansed with a long needle,
The spire can be bedecked with gold, but a broken pitcher cannot be fashioned again,
The person in duality burns in hell. ...13

Pauri 14 (The double-minded never improves)
The tormentor, scoundrel and ambidextor is like a crane standing on one leg,
It catches and eats fish in Ganges and its sins go on increasing,
The gourd bathes at the holy stations and swims with its naked body,
The poison abides in its mind, therefore its illusions created by improper deeds are not effaced,
The snake does not die by hitting the hole, it goes underground,
If the elephant is bathed, but coming out of water it just raises the dust,
The taste of duality is not good. ...14

Pauri 15 (The end of the double-minded)
The mind of the ambidextor gets impaired like the spoilit milk, Which tastes good in the beginning, but later on gets bitter, making the body unhealthy,
Just as the bumble bee dotes on the multi-coloured lots considering it permanent like the habitation of ‘Aheers’,
Like green sesame plant and the bud of oleander, the ambidextror is dual-coloured and never becomes stable,
If the reed becomes very high, even then it is empty from inside and cannot become a flute,
Growing near the sandalwood, the bamboo remains without its fragrance and colliding with other bamboos bums down,
The self-willed ambidextror gets punished by Yama. ...15

Pauri 16 (The humility of the double-minded is dangerous)
The ambidextror observing duality salutes in bondage, therefore no one likes him,
The contraption to draw water from the well in a vessel, bows down when vessel goes down,
When the contraption comes out with the bound neck, the water comes out of the well,
Likewise, the person who pays the penalty in binding, it is of no merit,
The two-sided bow, when pulled, also bows,
The hunter bows on seeing the deer, but he shoots his arrow fraudulently,
Likewise, the criminal commits the crime. ...16

Pauri 17 (The double-minded does not bow of his own)
The two-sided arrow does not bow, therefore a slim wing is used as a tip,
The double-mouthed lance, higher in size, exhibits itself in the battlefield,
The mace made from eight metals does not bow, but strikes off the citadels,
The double-edged steel-sword does not bow, but draws out blood from the body,
The entrapping noose does not bow, but hangs those who fall on it,
The hard rods of iron do not bow, which cook the meet strung in it,
Likewise the saw does nor bow, but hews the trees. ...17

Pauri 18 (Double-minded is always sorrowful)
The ‘ak’ and ‘thorn-apple’ plants with boughs do not cast off duality even if they are at low level,
These ambidextror plants grow with flowers and fruit, but because of poisonous fruit they have bad reputation,
No one quaffs the milk of ‘ak’ plant which if taken, the man dies because it does not have the quality of milk,
From the fruit of ‘ak’, the cotton-like flakes come out and fly,
The ambidextor does not get any support from anywhere like the chequered cricket of ‘ak’,
If one eats the ‘thorn-apple’, he becomes mad and strays uselessly in the world,
No one strings the garlands of bitter ‘rattis. ...18

Pauri 19 (Example of the bravery of pine tree)
The pine tree grows higher and higher in solitude,
Its nodes bum like torches and nobody touches its disgraced leaves,
Even the travellers do not sit under its shade, which falls on the uneven places,
Its fruit burst like the fruit of ‘ak’, which are globular and lie uncured,
Its wood is of no use, which is adversely effected by wind, water and sunshine,
If its stem catches fire, it cannot be extinguished like the fire of ego,
The Lord has destroyed it because of its self-praise. ...19

Pauri 20 (Example of bravery and Goodness-Sesame seed, hemp and cotton)
The sesame is black and the flower is white, the plant is green, what is the mark of sesame?
It is cut from its stem and made into a sheaf and kept topsy-turvy in solitude,
Its sheafs are then thrashed and the sesame-seeds which come out are crushed in oil-press,
The jute and cotton both work divergently, the cotton works for the welfare and the jute is used for base works,
The cotton is ginned, spun and then weaved and the cloth is used for covering the body,
The jute after removing its skin is twisted and the ropes are used for tying without hesitation,
The scoundrels observe only wicked deeds. ...20

Pauri 21 (Duality is like acacia and china-berry)
The thorny ‘kikar’ tree and the ‘dhrek’ bear only the useless fruit,
The fruit of both are of diverse colour, but they are not sweet like the bunch of grapes,
The fruit of castor plant is chequered and bitter, what can we hope from the hollow cactus?
The red flower of the Simmal tree brings no value, the shade of the fruitless Simmal is also useless,
The fruit of the coconut tree is hard, and when it is broken, it also gives a hard kernel,
Just like the mulberry tree's black and white fruit give two tastes, the good and bad sons also act differently,
Likewise, the duality is the false wager from the very beginning. ...21

Pauri 22 (Cure for duality)
Just as there is a jewel in the head of the black serpent, who does not want to surrender it gladly,
Just as none can bring the musk from the body of the deer, while he is alive,
The iron is heated in the anvil, which can be moulded by the strokes of hammer,
The yam is dressed by putting condiments in it, only then it is eaten, praised and approved,
If the mixture of betel leaf, betelnut, cachow and lime presents the fine red colour, only then it is considered the real one,
Though the poison kills a person, but in the hands of a wise doctor, it becomes the life-giving medicine,
Only the mercurial mind can be controlled by the Guruward. ...22

VAR–XXXIV
One Oaṅkār the Eternal Truth realized through the grace of divine preceptor

Pauri 1 (Praise of Guru, result of Sunmukh and Bemukh)
The True Guru is Unapproachable Purusha, unique and without enmity, Consider him as the ground of piety and real abode of righteousness,
One reaps whatever he sows, he obtains the fruit of his actions,
Just as the mirror is transparent, through which the world sees,
Whatever face one shows, he sees the same,
The Guruward receives respect in Lord's Court and the face of the self-willed is blackened. ...1

Pauri 2 (Guru prevaricator is apostate)
The disciple who conceals his Guru, how can he be redeemed?
He goes alone on the path of Yama, driven with chains around his neck,
He is punished in the hell, where he will suffer severely,
He rotates in eighty-four lakh species and cannot meet his Guru again,
He loses this precious birth like a gambler,
He repents and cannot get that time again. ...2
Pauri 3 (Guru prevarication is apostate)

She does not go to the house of her husband, but merely advises the people,
The husband does not care for her, but she announces herself chaste,
The mouse does not fit in the hole, but ties the winnower around his waist,
He, who does not know the spell of scorpions, but tries to catch the snakes,
He, who shoots his arrow towards the sky, it comes back to him,
The self-willed feels ashamed in both the worlds and repents. ...3

Pauri 4 (The apostate cannot enjoy)

If we put around the neck of a monkey the pearls and jewels, he ignorant of their value,
The ladle does not know the taste of foods, though it moves among them,
The frog abides in the mud, it does not recognise the lotus,
The musk is in the navel of the deer, still it moves confused,
The milkman sells the milk and brings oil-cake and crust of split grams, Likewise the self-willed, ignorant of reality, has to endure the punishment of Yama. ...4

Pauri 5 (The apostate possess everything but still is unhappy)

The forest becomes green in the month of Sawan, but the camel-thorn remains dry, Everyone is pleased on rainfall, but the weaver remains anxious,
All the beings meet during night, but the ruddy sheldrake undergoes separation,
The conch comes out empty from the sea, cries with a pitiful voice,
If the travellers goes astray, he is looted on the threat of death,
Likewise the self-willed in the world ever groans. ...5

Pauri 6 (The apostate puts blame on others)

The jackal does not reach the bunch of grapes, he just spits and declares it bitter,
The dancer does not know the art of dancing, but blames the narrowness of dancing site,
There is no use of singing before a deaf, it may be any musical mode,
How can a sand-piper compete in running against a swan?
There is greenery in the month of Sawan, but the plant ‘ak’ only grows in drought,
The self-willed does not remain happy because of his karmas like a derelict ...6
Pauri 7 (The result of company of an apostate)
None can cross a stream, by catching the tail of a sheep,
With the friendship of a ghost, there ever lurks a fear in mind,
A tree on the bank of a stream is ever in fear of falling down,
A person married with the dead can not earn conjugal affection,
How can one get ambrosia by sowing deadly poison,
With the love of the self-willed, one has to bear the punishment of Yama. ...7

Pauri 8 (Apostate himself is a culprit)
The hard kidney bean is not cooked even if there is very strong heat,
How can the tree be blamed, if out of the thousand fruit, one becomes impaired?
It may rain cats and dogs, but the water can not stay on a high mound,
If the patient dies without keeping restraint, we should not have any anger in mind against the doctor,
If a barren woman does not give birth to a baby, only the writ on her forehead is such,
If the self-willed does not obtain knowledge, it is all his own fault. ...8

Pauri 9 (The earning of an apostate is defective)
The blind does not seen the moon, though the whole world sees the light,
The deaf goes not listen to the music, then the music does not lose anything,
Even if the sandalwood emits fragrance, the man having defective nose cannot smell it,
The dumb cannot speak, though the Word of the Guru pleases all,
By serving the ocean-like True Guru, all have obtained the treasure,
The self-willed obtain only hells, it is the fault of his actions. ...9

Pauri 10 (Nature of apostate)
Though the gems came out of the sea, still its water is saltish,
With the rise of moon, all the three worlds can be visualised, but it itself is blemished by darkness,
The earth produces corn and wealth, though there is lot of barren land, Lord Shiva grants boon to others, but his house contains only his bowl and ashes,
Just as Hanuman, the great devotee of Lord Rama received only his Loin-cloth, what else could he do?
Whatever is written on the head of the self-willed, who can efface it? ...10
Pauri 11 (The apostate is a lier)
The cows are in the houses of milkmen, but the stupid person has got the churning-sticks prepared for his house,
On listening to the traders about the horses, the stupid person, bought the whips,
Seeing the barns of others, the stupid person makes the arrangements for threshing,
Looking the gold in the hand of the jeweller, the stupid person has called the goldsmiths in his house,
He does not have enough space in his house, the stupid person swaggers about it,
The self-willed is like the shade of clouds, he always utters lies. ...11

Pauri 12 (The apostate is empty)
When the butter is taken out of buttermilk after churning, whey is left therein,
When the juice is taken out of sugarcanes after crushing them, nobody touches the rind,
When the colour is extracted from the madder, nobody cares for the dregs even for a little price,
When the fragrance is taken out of flowers, the remainders remain without any support,
When the soul leaves the body, it is not kept in the house,
The self-willed are like the dry trees, the whole world notices it. ...12

Pauri 13 (How the apostate could be set right)
Just as the water comes out of the well, if the vessel of water is tied with a rope,
Just as the black snake having jewel in its head does not surrender it gladly,
Just as the musk from the body of the deer can only be had after its death,
How can the oil come out of the sesame seeds without crushing them in the oilpress,
Just as the mark of coconut is that its kernel can only be had after breaking it,
The self-willed is like the iron, which can be set right after the strokes of hammer. ...13
Pauri 14 (The apostate is always invented)
The poison is called ‘sweet’ and the angry goddess is called ‘gracious’,
The extinguished lamp is said to become great and the killed animal is said to have been dressed,
The cremated dead is said to become ‘cold’, the sore eye is said to have ‘come’, the remarried widow is called ‘gone’
The foolish person is called ‘simpleton’, all these sayings are reversed, If the cottages of the self-willed persons are destroyed, do not call them as having been ‘saved’,
Just as the mother of the thief weeps on hiding herself. ...14

Pauri 15 (Result of the association of apostate)
If we enter a house of soot, our face will turn black,
It will be useless to sow in a barren land,
If we swing in a broken swing, we are bound to fall and die, How can a fierce current be crossed with the assistance of those who are unable to swim?
Do not seek help from a person who sets fire to his house and sleeps in it, Likewise the company of the self-willed persons is dangerous one should fear such perils. ...15

Pauri 16 (The apostate is a big sinner)
Most heinous crimes are the killing of a Brahmin, a cow and the family, Drinking wine, gambling and having sexual relations with women of others,
Becoming thieves, thugs and dacoits looting the money of others,
Violation of trust, malvolence, ingratitude, sinners and killers,
Such like millions and innumerable wicked persons may be considered together, All of them cannot be equal to one hair of the self-willed person, who becomes inattentive to Guru’s instructions. ...16

Pauri 17 (The Sin of apostasy does not get off)
If he goes to Ganges, Yamuna, Godavari and Kurukshtera,
If he visits Mathura, Maya, Ayodhya, Kashi and Kedara,
If he goes to Gaya, Prayaga, Saraswati and Gomati,
If he performs recitations, austerities, restraints, havanas and sacrifices and bows to all the gods,
If he wanders in, and sees with his eyes, all the three worlds,
The sin of remaining inattentive to Guru’s instructions is not cast off. ...17
Pauri 18 (No happiness without the true Guru) Millions of people are absorbed in several tastes and several of them are the kings of forests,
Many wander like whirlwinds on the plains and many wander like ghosts in the mountains,
Many are the crocodiles in the streams, rivulets and seas,
Many are the stars in the sky and many are snakes in the nether-world,
Many such like beings are confused and have gone astray in the currents of the world-ocean,
All have been entrapped embarrassments without taking refuge in the True Guru. ...18

Pauri 19 (The apostate’s centreless)
Just as the guest of many houses remains hungry,
None weeps for the common errand and does not remain anxious for it,
Just as the tabor of many bards does not sound, since no one cares for it,
Just as the crow wandering in many forests does not look good or enjoy comfort,
Just as the body of the prostitute of many lovers is ever in affliction,
They are called self-willed, who leaving the Guru adore others. ...19

Pauri 20 (The egoist is a ghost)
The camel does not get up if someone creates sound by beating the sieve,
The careless elephant is not frightened by clapping the hands,
The serpent Vasuki does not go away by lighting the lamp,
The lion is not frightened by the angry glances of the hare,
The water of the gutters cannot match itself with the surging waves of the sea,
They are like self-willed ghosts, who having no quality, exhibit themselves......20.

Pauri 21 (It is useless to quarrel with the apostate)
The woman having no love for her husband, cannot enjoy his bed,
The son who is not obedient to his parents is known as ‘ignoble’,
The trader who flouts his banker is not trust-worthy,
None should take up arms before his master,
The falsehood cannot compete with truth, even if hundreds of excuses be presented,
Those who have rings in their ears, no body should dare to resist them. ...21

Pauri 1 (Back-biter)
If the dog is even made to sit on the throne, it still licks the grindstone,
If the snake is given milk to drink, it still throws the poison from the mouth,
If the stone is put in water, it still remains hard and does not get wet,
The ass lies down in the dust and forsakes sandal, agallochum, saffron and musk,
Likewise the back-biter never withdraws from slandery,
He uproots himself completely. ...1

Pauri 2 (Back-biter)
The crow does not taste camphor, he likes bad odour,
The elephant raises the dust over his head, even if he is bathed in water,
If the gourd is seeped in nectar, it still has the bitterness,
If the Simmal tree is nourished, we do not get any fruit,
The back-biter, without the Name of the Lord, does not like the congregation,
If the leader is blind, all his company is doomed. ...2

Pauri 3 (As above)
The garlic cannot be concealed even if you eat it in a secret corner,
How can be the black blanket become white with soap,
If one touches the hive of wasps, his inflamed face can be seen,
The cooked vegetable is useless without putting salt in it,
Without the instructions of the Guru, the back-biter forgets the Name of the Lord,
He cannot happy in both the worlds, the afflicted one repents. ...3

Pauri 4 (Vilification of the Guru)
The man-eater hag does not harm her own son,
The person known to be very vicious hesitates to harm his daughter or sister,
The kings are malevolent to one another, but the mediator remains harmless,
The sins committed on the Ganges are never effaced,
The hell and the Yama tremble on listening to the back-biting by a slanderer,
The slandering of anyone is bad, but back-biting of the Guru is a very bad karma. ...4
Pauri 5 (Examples of vilification of the Guru)
What did Harnakash gain by slandering his Guru Narada?, Ravana got his Lanka ravaged and his ten heads were slashed, on slandering Rama, Kansa was killed along with his forces by slandering Vasudeva and Krishna,
The Kaurvas lost all their family destroying many of their innumerable forces, Shishupal and Dant Bakattar were vanquished by slandery,
No one became successful by back-biting, even the Vedas say so,
With the curse of Durbasa, the race of Yadavas was destroyed. ...5

Pauri 6 (The fault finder of the Guru always suffer)
The heads of all are braided, but the bald-headed is in great agony,
Seeing the ornaments worn in the ears of other women, the woman with mutilated ears is agonised,
The rings in the noses of ladies are not liked by the nose clipt,
Seeing the antimony in the deer-like eyes, the one-eyed lady cries,
All have the graceful gait, but the lame lady limps,
The person who slanders his Guru passes his life in suffering. ...6

Pauri 7 (The life of Guru slander is meaningless)
The leafless capparis does not sprout, but blames the spring season,
The barren woman does not bear a son, but blames her husband,
There is no cultivation in the barren land, though it may rain heavily,
The evil one following the example of good people becomes meritorious,
Just as in the sea, several gems are formed in corals,
Those slandering their Guru waste away their life uselessly. ...7

Pauri 8 (Ungrateful)
The earth does not consider those mountains heavy, reaching up to the sky,
It does consider the citadels and the houses heavy,
It does not consider the currents of seas and rivers heavy,
It does not consider the fruitful trees as heavy,
It does not consider innumerable various creatures moving on it as heavy,
For the earth the ungrateful persons are considered heavy, they are worst of all. ...8
Pauri 9 (Example of a ungrateful)
The meat of the dog was cooked in the wine,
It was put in the man's skull emitting bad odour,
It was covered with a cloth soaked in blood,
After sexual action, the sweepress was taking it covered,
When asked about it, she said so as to remove the doubt,
'It way not be destroyed with the looks of an Ungrateful person'. ...9

Pauri 10 (The ungrateful)
The thief went to the house of a rich man and entered his house,
He began his search and finding nothing, climbed to the attic,
After collecting the gold and silver in a bundle, he still continued his search,
Being mad in greed, he caught hold of the bowl of salt,
He tasted it a little and left without taking anything,
Because after tasting salt he could not become a sinful rascal meriting punishment. ...10

Pauri 11 (The number of the faithful ones)
After tasting salt, one becomes obedient, he grinds and carries water,
After eating salt and in service, one does not hesitate to be slashed into bits in the battlefield,
After eating salt, being daughter and son, they increase the honour of their family,
After eating salt, the servant of the banker stands before him with folded hands,
After eating the salt of a house the traveller praises the people of the house everywhere,
The sinful rascal wastes his precious birth and undergoes transmigration. ...11

Pauri 12 (Expectation from a religious place)
Just as according to custom, the Hindus forbid the eating of cow's meat,
Just as the Muslims consider the eating of pig's meat and charging interest as forbidden,
The water for the father-in-law in the house of his son-in-law is like wine,
The sweep even in dire need does not eat the meat of a hare,
Just as the fly sitting on molasses dies in this bad act,
Likewise the greedy looks for the materials of a temple are like poison coated with sugar. ...12
Pauri 13 (The Expectation-The money of worship)
He is really in suffering, who looks greedily for the materials of the temple,
If he grasps the gold, it turns into dust,
His friends, son and brothers, look angrily towards him and even leave him,
He will ever remain cursed for sorrow and separation and will be impure for vicious intellect,
He will stray like a deserted woman and will be pushed out of the Lord’s Court,
He will be subjected to suffering, hunger and poverty here and hell in the next world. ...13

Pauri 14 (Money of the worship)
With a drop of beverage the milk in a pitcher of milk gets impaired,
With one spark thousands of maundas of cotton burns down,
The water is spoilt by the scum and the tree is destroyed by shellac,
Just as a crazy person dies because of diarrhoea and a man dies of tuberculosis,
Just as the birds are entrapped because of the greed for pecking,
Likewise the self-willed has the unbearable expectation for the materials of the temple. ...14

Pauri 15 (How the money of worship could be digested)
Even a little taste of the expectation of the materials of the temple is not good,
The same is vomited like the food mixed with a fly,
How can a person pass the night in peace, whose eye contains a piece of straw?
Just like a fire cannot remain suppressed in a heap of straw,
The expector keeps on looking greedily for the materials of the temple and eats even that forbidden food,
The Gursikhs have known this that one is saved only by the grace of the Guru. ...15

Pauri 16 (The characteristics of the religious-money grabbers)
Just as the weevil-eaten wood becomes very weak,..
Just as the scarecrow in the field is just a lifeless creature,
Just as the cloud of smoke does not rain,
Just as the teats of the goat in its throat do not give milk,
What is the mark of the expector in expectation of the materials of the temple?
He is like the cow or buffalo licking the leather-bag of chaff in illusion.........16.
Pauri 17 (Test both the Saint and the Rengad)
If there is a bunch of the fruit of 'dhrek' tree, how can we call it a bunch of grapes,
Nobody calls the fruit of 'ak' plant as mango,
Nobody gives the evidence that the gilded ornaments are the ornaments of gold,
The crystal cannot match the diamonds, which are very precious and costly,
The milk and the buttermilk, both are white, but their taste differentiates them,
Likewise the saintly and the wicked are tested by their deeds and speech. ... 17

Pauri 18 (The saints among the four varnas)
The green and yellow betel leaves are separated from the creeper,
The betel nuts, when chequered, fall down from the tree,
The cachou is light and of greyish colour, a pinch of which is added,
The lime appears white in colour, which is burnt and crushed with stone,
When all of them are mixed after effacement, they produce the red colour of the rain insect,
Likewise when the Guruwards from all four castes sit together they appear superb. ... 18

Pauri 19 (Hypocrite Saints)
In the court of the king all are called servants,
All the armed men bow and salute the king,
In the society they exhibit themselves, when they deliver their speeches,
They cause their horses to dance in the streets, bedecking them with ornaments,
When they go in the battlefield only then it is known as to who are brave and who are cowards,
Likewise the Guruwards recognise the murderous self-willed. ... 19

Pauri 20 (The test by the Guru)
If the mother is adulteress, it does not behave a son to slander her,
If the gem is swallowed by a cow, she is not to be killed by tearing off her belly,
If the husband is an adulterer, the wife keeps her chastity,
If the king by his command promulgates the coins of leather, what can his servants do?,
If the wife of a Brahmin drinks wine, the people only grieve over it,
Likewise if the Guru arranges a disguised drama for testing a Sikh, he should not swerve from his faith. ... 20
Pauri 21 (The rare pass the test)
There are millions of forts on the earth which tremble with the earthquake,
When the storm comes all the trees shake,
When there is fire in the solitude all the grass is burnt,
Who has stopped the fierce floods in the rivers?,
If the sky is split, who else can patch the same except a liar?,
Such persons are very rare, who remain wholly steadfast during a testing drama. ...21

Pauri 22 (If the Guru performs a Sham what a Sikh can do?)
If the mother gives poison to her son, who else can love him more?,
If the watchman himself commits a theft, then who will save it?,
If the sailor himself sinks his ship, how can one ferry across ?,
If the leader himself misleads his comrades, to whom we can call for help?,
If the fence itself damages the field then who will look after its welfare ?,
If the Guru himself dupes the Sikh through his disguised drama, then what will poor Sikh do? ...22

Pauri 23 (Only the remains poised in a Sham whom the Guru is graceful)
Just as the paper soiled with salt and ghee is put in water,
Just as the wick of the lamp burns with oil throughout the night,
Just as the kite is kept flying in the sky by holding its cord.
Just as by putting the incantation-herb for removing venom in the mouth and then getting stung by snake,
Just as the king in the garb of a beggar goes among his subjects and listen to their complaints,
Likewise that Sikh remains wholly steadfast in the Guru’s testing drama, whom the Guru wants. ...23

VAR–XXXVI
One Oaṅkār the Eternal Truth realized through the grace of divine preceptor

Pauri 1 (Dissembler blackened face)
The crane residing in a holy station still remains faithless,
The rain-bird cries for rain, but cannot drink the rain-drops,
There is no fragrance in bamboo even if it abides near sandalwood,
The owl cannot see the sun, he is so unfortunate,
There is musk in the navel of deer, but it strays in affliction,
The True Guru is the True Sovereign, the faces of Minas (unfaithful) are blackened. ...1

Pauri 2 (Pretentions of dissembler are exposed)
Falling in the large earthen pot of the dyer, the jackal was dyed, Going in the forest, he began this hypocrisy that he was the king,
All the animals of the forest presented before him for service and he sat on the throne with pride,
He began to rule all, intoxicated with the wine of falsehood.
When he began to howl like jackals, his secret was exposed like the eructation of radish,
Likewise the Mina (unfaithful) is punished being false and wicked. ...2

Pauri 3 (A dissembler cannot create a holy congregation)
The thief is ever engaged in stealing, but ultimately he is subjected to suffering,
He, who rapes another’s woman is caught and his nose and ears are slashed,
Like the deer entrapped in a noose and like the gambler losing his money,
The lame one cannot have a good gait, but still the lecher likes the extra-marital relation with another’s wife,
The bitches cannot be seen in herds and Minas (unfaithful) are the eaters of the dead i.e. totally false,
The sinners are never redeemed, they ultimately suffer. ...3

Pauri 4 (Dissembler will ultimately go to the hell)
The glow-worm shines in the night, but cannot match the moonshine,
How can a drop of water is said to compete with the sea,
The ant has no parity with an elephant, its pride is false,
Like the mention about his maternal grandfather’s house by the son to his mother,
He, who has created and honoured you endowing on you the body and life,
O Mina! You have totally discarded reality, therefore you will have to go to the abode of Yama. ...4

Pauri 5 (Company with the dissembler is bad as well as painful)
The bronze looks very fine from outside, but there is soot within it,
Just as the green ‘buabar’ plant in the field of sesames is of no use,
The bud of oleander looks fine, but bitter in taste,
The fruit of capparis has very fine colour, but one dies on eating it,
The prostitute looks very beautiful, but one entangled in her love ultimately suffers,
The false company O Minas results in anguish for friends. ...5

Pauri 6 (The way of dissembler leads to hell)
Just as the hunter sounding his horn destroys the deer,
Just as the fisherman catches the fish by fixing meat in the hook,
Just as the Lotus entices the black bee with its blossomed face and deceives it,
Just as the light of the lamp burns the moth like a scoundrel,
Just as the moiled of a she-elephant entraps the elephant, Likewise, the sect of Minas is disgraced one, whosoever mixes with them, goes to hell. ...6

Pauri 7 (Company of the Dissembler disappoints)
He, who seeing the mirage, considers it real, how can he fulfil his objective?,
There being great heat in the desert without an oasis, how can the thirst of a thirsty one be removed?,
If one enjoys the rule in a dream on awakening he feels disappointed,
The shade of the tree does not remain steadfast, how can this hope is fulfilled?,
Just like the play of the juggler is all false,
He, who joins the sect of Minas, he ever remains disappointed. ...7

Pauri 8 (Dissemblers are accurst by the Guru)
When the crow and the nightingale come together, how can they be the same?,
Likewise, the back-biters are known in the world, their speech remains insipid,
How can the cranes compete with the swans?,
Likewise the self-willed are separated from others, their faces have black marks,
What is the mark of Minas?, they are like counterfeit coins,
They are punished by beating their heads with shoes, they suffer reproves from their Guru. ...8

Pauri 9 (Being without Guru call himself Guru)
The boys gather together and play during the night,
They plan as king and his subjects making all sorts of imitations,
Some run along with forces and others also run,
Some pay the revenues of potsherds as rupees and others becoming wise collect the same,
In an instant they end the play and go running to their houses,
Those who pose as Gurus without qualities, they are false and lazy. ...9
Pauri 10 (Disciples of the persons without Guru get disappointed)
The high and tall Simmal tree is seen in the garden,
It has thick stem with roots in the nether-world, for which it is proud,
It has very beautiful leaves spreading all around,
It has red flowers and tasteless fruit, being fruitful it is actually without fruit,
The green and handsome parrot on seeing it is enticed towards it.
But after that it repents because it does not get any fruit. ...10

Pauri 11 (With Guru men are impotent)
If one wears the five clothes of a man,
He may have fine beard and whiskers and a handsome form,
He may be fully armed warrior and one of the chiefs,
He may be prominent in societies and courts and known to all countrymen,
With all the above qualities, if he is a eunuch, he will be useless for his woman,
Those who call themselves as Gurus without the qualities who will salute them? ...11

Pauri 12 (God is attained through Service)
If the Lord is realised by mere talk, why should the talkative parrot be entrapped?,
If the Lord is realised with wisdom, the wise crow falls on the faeces,
If He is realised with strength how could the hare destroy the lion?,
He is not pleased by eulogising Him with songs, then why should the bards wander in the garb of recluses?,
He is not enticed by Youth and Beauty, the colour of safflower decays uselessly,
The deserted women without service cannot meet her Lord with mere smiles. ...12

Pauri 13 (All the means for liberation are useless)
If one is redeemed by hanging reversely, then the bats remain in this position in the solitude,
If one is redeemed by visiting the cremation grounds and graveyards, then there are mice in the holes,
If one is redeemed by long life, then there are poisonous snakes moving hither and thither,
If one is redeemed by remaining unclean, then the asses roll in dust.
If one I redeemed by eating the roots of plants, then the herd of goats eat plants by pulling them,
The redemption cannot be obtained like the houses without doors. ...13
Pauri 14 (No liberation through austerities, guises and asceticism)
If the Lord is realised by bathing at the holy shrines, the frogs abide in water,
If the Lord is realised by growing long hair, the banyal tree has long hanging branches like matted locks,
If the Lord is realised by remaining naked, the deer wander in the forest like recluses,
If the Lord is realised by smearing ashes over the body, the asses roll in dust,
If the Lord is realised by remaining silent then all the animals remain silent.
The redemption cannot be obtained without the Guru, he gets freed from transmigration on meeting him. ...14

Pauri 15 (One's own means of liberation are useless)
If one lives by eating herbs, then why Dhanantar died?,
If one lives by the practice of Tantras and Mantras, then the jugglers wander in various countries ?,
If salvation is achieved by worshipping trees, then why do the trees get burnt?,
If salvation is achieved by meditating on the ghosts, then the mediators cannot be different from thieves,
If salvation is achieved by waking during night, then there are criminals waking up,
The salvation cannot be achieved without the Guru, through whom the Guruwards are redeemed. ...15

Pauri 16 (Liberation impossible with Guru)
The rats got prepared the bell to put it around the neck of a cat,
The flies resolved to take a bath in the ghee,
The insects decided to remove their impurity in order to pass an easy time,
The moths and insects wanted to continue to live in the month of Sawan, as far as possible,
Just as the cranes go away to other solitudes in the month of Baisakh,
One cannot achieve salvation without the Guru, he continues to tramtnigate. ...16

Pauri 17 (The lie is hollow)
If the beetle sits on the heap of clothes, how can he be called a draper,
If a money-girdle is tied around the neck of a dog, he cannot be designated as a jeweller,
If there is a jewel around the neck of a monkey, he cannot work as a jeweller,
If the ass is loaded with sandalwood, then he cannot be the essence-seller,
If a fly is in the mouth of a spider, how can it be a falcon,
Likewise the truthful is true and a liar's hypocrisy is false. ...17

Pauri 18 (He is a fool who without virtues counts his merits)
If a neighbour's son comes in the courtyard, one should not become proud calling him as his own,
The shepherd grazes the herd of cattle, but he cannot call the animals as his own,
If a forced labourer has a money-bag on his head, but he himself is poor and perplexed,
If there is a guard in the field, he cannot become a farmer,
That guest is foolish, who considers his host's house as his own,
If a person who himself is non-entity evinces himself, he is a great fool. ...18

Pauri 19 (As above)
The ant cannot hold the weight of an elephant,
If a large fly raises its hands to strike, it cannot compete with a lion,
The sting of a mosquito cannot match a poisonous snake,
After killing lakhs of large ants, one cannot be called a hunter of leopards,
If many lice gather in the quilt, then the owner of that quilt cannot be a king,
He, who being a non-entity evinces himself, he is a great fool. ...19

Pauri 20 (Truth is the Test of a Guru)
If the mother gives birth to a son in a cell, but it is known to the outside world,
If the money is buried in the earth, even then people know the rich person from his forehead,
Even the travellers tell about the showers of rain,
Everybody bows his head to the second-day moon,
If there is a patched blanket worn by Gorakh, he is called Nath (Master of the world),
He, who loves the Guru is also called Guru, the truth is ever recognised as truth. ...20

Pauri 21 (I have all the demerits)
I am a criminal, a sinful person, self-willed and bad,
I am a thief, a lecher, a gambler and a looker of other's houses,
I am a slanderer, rascal, corrupt person, a cheat-cheating all the country,
I am absorbed in lust, anger, intoxicants, greed, attachment and ego,
I am infidel and ungrateful, none is there to protect me,
O disciple! O minstrel! Remember the Lord, the True Guru is the Pardoner. ...21
VAR-XXXVII
One Oaṅkār the Eternal Truth realized through the grace of divine preceptor

Pauri 1 (Invocation, in praise of the creator’s preceptor)
With one Word the One Lord created a wide expanse of the Universe, Separating the earth from the sky, He kept the sky without columns,
The earth was placed in water and the water within the earth,
The fire was placed in wood and keeping the fire there, He made it fruitful,
The air, water and fire, all the three inimical elements were put together,
He created the three modes of activity, rhythm and morbidity i.e. Brahma, Vishnu and Shiva,
The Creator has created this Wonderful Pretence. ...1

Pauri 2 (Divine power)
The Lord on manifesting Shiva and Shakti both, lighted two lamps of the sun and moon,
The stars shine during night and in every home the earthen lamps are lighted,
The sun during the day conceal within itself the stars as well as the earthen lamps,
With One Word lakhs of rivers of life began to flow, they are unweighable,
The Creator Lord is Infinite and also Sustainer,
The State of the Lord is Unapproachable, He is Incommunicable and Unknowable,
The Lord’s wonders are mentioned on listening to others. ...2

Pauri 3 (Wonder of the Creation)
With four parts of creation, speech and ages, the Lord created water, plains, trees and mountains,
On creating three worlds and fourteen regions, He created twenty-one universes,
The music resounded in four corners, seven continents, nine sections and ten directions,
In each part of creation He made twenty-one lakhs of species,
In every specie there are innumerable creatures,
He created beautiful and wonderful forms of creatures and multi-coloured waves,
In every body of five elements, He created nine doors. ...3
Pauri 4 (Wonder of the Creation)
He created black, white, red, blue, yellow and green coloured things,
He created several wonderful tastes and relishes, which are known through tongues,
They are sweet, bitter, sour, insipid and saltish,
He manifested fragrances and odours through sandal, agallochum, saffron and musk,
He created civet, betel, ambergris and camphor,
He created musical sounds, fourteen learnings and the mystic and primordial sound,
He created lakhs of rivers and crores of ships.

Pauri 5 (In the creational only man can attain liberation)
Creating seven unfathomable seas, they were filled with stores of gems,
The earth was created with several types of foods and medicines,
The heavy trees were created with flowers, fruit stems, boughs and leaves,
The mountains were created with eight metals, rubies, gems, philosopher’s stones and mercury,
Eighty-four lakhs of species were created with their many families meeting and separating,
The system of birth and death was started with thousands of boatloads on death,
Only as human being one can cross the fearful sea of existence.

Pauri 6 (Human birth and error of life)
The human life is rarely obtained, which is short-lived, the body is deceptive and reduced to ashes,
The puppet-like human body is created, which has nine doors, but cannot fly in air,
In the womb of the mother, it is kept in fire-cauldron in the belly,
It is placed reversely in the womb, where it meditates on the Creator without forgetting Him,
Absorbed in meditation, it is freed and born after ten months,
On birth it is enticed by maya and he has completely forgotten his Protector-Lord,
He as trader is got separated from its banker-Lord.
Pauri 7 (Human birth - web of Maya)
He weeps on losing his Protector and is entrapped in the intense darkness of the attachment of maya,
He, as child, weeps in affliction of separation, but the family on his birth sings in glee,
The minds of all are happy in receiving congratulations, when the drums are sounded,
Both maternal and paternal relatives sing happily, they give blessings for the dear child,
From the drop of semen, it grew and ultimately became like a heavy mound,
He forgot truth, contentment, mercy and piety and also the superb spiritual aspect,
He is now absorbed in lust, anger, greed, attachment and ego,
The poor one is now entangled in great snare. ...7

Pauri 8 (The child's intellect is unconscious)
Being unconscious about his conscience, though having eyes, he is blind.
He does not differentiate between an enemy an a friend and considers his mother and hog equal,
Having ears, he is deaf, he does not differentiate between praise and slander, also attachment and deceit,
Having tongue, he is dumb, he quaffs even if the poison is mixed with milk,
He drinks equally the nectar and poison, he does not hope for life or fear death,
With the object of catching the snake or fire, he unhesitatingly stretches his hand,
He does not know the difference between a ridge and a pit. ...8

Pauri 9 (Child is thoughtless)
Having his feet the child like a crippled one moves his legs and cannot stand,
His relatives caress him in their hands and with future hopes hug him,
He does not use his effort and intellect and thus cannot remain healthy,
He weeps in suffering while using his organs of excreting and urinating and also in ailment and separation,
He does not drink potion gladly and also weeps, when forbidden to catch the snake,
He cannot consider the merits and demerits and also cannot differentiate between good and bad,
He considers the weapons and the armour as the same. ...9
Pauri 10 (Benefactions of mother)
After the meeting of father and mother the child is conceived and the mother is hopeful about his future,
She avoids taking certain relishes and pits his feet on the earth cautiously,
Keeping him within his belly for ten months and undergoes great pain on giving him birth,
After birth she nourishes him with great efforts and eats food with restraint,
She gives potion and then milk to the child and in emergency gives him medicine,
She sustains the child with good food and nice clothes, she remembers his shaving, learning and engagement,
He is sent to learn from the teacher and spend money on his education,
In this way the parents perform their duty. ...10

Pauri 11 (Benefactions of mother and maltreatment of son)
The parents are overjoyed to get their son engaged,
The mother's delight is indescribable, she sings for the event and sleeps comfortably,
On getting his son married she is in great bliss and sings the marriage songs,
The mother vows for temporal blessings for her son, seeing the union of son and daughter-in-law,
But the daughter gives ever wrong advice to her husband, which makes them revolt against the mother,
The son forgets all the welfare acts of his mother, the son begins a strife,
An obedient son like Sarwan is very rare. ...11

Pauri 12 (It is sin to forget the benefactions of parents)
The daughter-in-law exercised such a spell on her husband,
Who on his birth forgot the Lord and now after marriage, he has forgotten his parents,
Vowing for temporal blessings the son was married anticipating good omens,
Seeing the union of their son with the daughter-in-law, the parents were overjoyed,
The daughter-in-law gave ever her wrong advice to the husband to leave the sinful parents,
The son leaves his parents with his wife and forgets their welfare works,
Which is surely socially a very had act. ...12
Pauri 13 (The Japas and austerities are useless who ill-treats his parents)
Leaving his parents, the son cannot know the secret of the Vedic stories, Leaving his parents, the son only strays in the forest for austerities,
Leaving his parents, the son's worship of the gods and goddesses is not approved,
Leaving his parents, the son, who bathes in all sixty-eight holy shrines is only entrapped in a whirlpool,
Leaving his parents, the son, who holds fasts only strays and transmigrates,
Leaving his parents, the son who practises charity, he is faithless and ignorant creature,
Such a son does not know neither Guru nor God. ...13

Pauri 14 (Remember the benevolent creator)
The people have forgotten the Lord from their mind, Who is visualised in His Nature,
He has created all the beings giving them body, soul, breath and flesh,
The being sees all forms and colours with his eyes, the mouth speaks and the ears listen,
The nose smells, hands perform labour and the feet walk at all times,
The hair are grown on the head and given teeth in the mouth, the being should always meditate on the Lord,
He serves his employer because he provides all relishes, but he should remember the Lord even one percent,
He should mix the salt of Lord's meditation in the flour of his breaths. ...14

Pauri 15 (The Same Consciousness while waking and in dream)
One does not know the place in the body where abide sleep, hunger and thirst,
Some one may tell about its actions like laughing, weeping, singing, sneezing, belching and coughing,
About laziness, stiffness, hiccough, scratching one another,
About groaning, yawning, snapping with fingers, clapping on listening to stories,
About hopes, intentions, happiness, sorrow, enjoyment, unison, feeling sorry on listening to tales of suffering,
About thinking on keeping awake and dreaming while sleeping,
About prating while sleeping, receiving praise or slander while performing work,
While entrapped in desires one feels great anguish. ...15
Pauri 16 (Even the benevolence does not improve the evil person)

One becomes a saint or rascal on account of the company he keeps, coming under the good or bad intellect,
One experiences union and separation in the three stages of life i.e. childhood, youth and old age,
His bad habits are not forgotten and he remains happy on forgetting the Lord,
He loves the women and wealth of others, he remains pleased in slandering and deceit,
He forsakes Name, Charity and Cleanliness, he does not listen to music and discourses in congregation,
Like a dog caused to sit on a throne habitually runs to lick the grindstone,
The sinful person is not pleased to imbibe qualities. ...16

Pauri 17 (Remember one imminent in diversity)

Just as the vegetation has many colours with numerous stems, leaves, flowers and fruit,
The fire in all of them has only one colour,
There are many good and beautiful colours and smells,
But the fire arising in collision of bamboos burns them and reduces them to dust,
The offspring of cows are of many colours, but every cow is given a separate name,
When the name of a particular cow is called by the grazier, she comes forward,
But the milk of all the cows is of the same colour, the fault of the pot containing ghee or silk is not seen,
Therefore remember the painter-Lord in your mind. ...17

Pauri 18 (The creature does not remember the one Lord in diversity)

Because of water in the earth, the flowers spread good fragrance,
The sesames combining with the flowers produced the good and pure flower-scented oil,
Even seeing with eyes one is in darkness, the mind’s blindness causes the blindness of body,
Within six seasons and twelve months, there is one sun, but the owl cannot see it,
The crane’s and tortoise’s remembrance nourish their young ones, even the stone-worms get their daily food,
But the created beings do not remember their Creator Lord. ...18
Pauri 19 (Manmukhs are blind)
The owl and the bat cannot see the light of the day, They see everything in dark night, they keep silent after listening to their good and bad voices,
The self-willed are blind in ignorance and without knowledge they pass day and night,
They forsake virtues and select vices, leaving the diamonds they string the necklaces of crystals,
Though blind, they are named as seers, they weep on being intoxicated with maya, Entrapped in the vices of lust and anger, they pretend to wash their inner self
They, being entangled in sins, cannot be saved from hell. ... 19

Pauri 20 (Manmukh returns evil for good done to him)
The ‘ak’ plants grow in the deserts, when it rains, they even droop down,
Their leaves fall and their milk flows, which acts as poison for them,
The fruit of the ‘ak’ plant is also useless, only its cricket eats it,
With the use of ‘ak’ milk, the poison is effaced, a person stung by a serpent gets well by eating ‘ak’,
The goat grazes that ‘ak’ and gives nectar-like milk, which is dripped in the mouth of young ones,
But when the milk is given to the serpent, it spits out its poison near it,
Likewise a self-willed turns a virtue into vice. ... 20

Pauri 21 (Man without Guru is uncontrollable)
The butcher kills the goat mercilessly, the meat of which is strung into a spike for cooking,
The goat when killed laughingly says that she had eaten useless ‘ak’ plant and received such punishment,
They who eat after merciless killing, what will be their condition?
Shattering something on the tongue damages the teeth as well as the mouth,
The person absorbed in love of others’ body and money and back-biting becomes a two-mouthed serpent, Still he is controlled on listening to Guru’s instructions, but the self-willed does not listen to its tidings,
He does not see the pit in the way. ... 21
Pauri 22 (Duality is a wrong bet)
He does not practice, whatever he preaches to others,
There is light of the lamp in the house, but it cannot remove the darkness beneath it,
Holding the lamp in the hand, one staggers and being confused, his feet falter,
One who sees through his bangle in his hand as a mirror, he will be hard up,
He, who holds the lamp in one hand and the mirror in another, Besides having the lamp and mirror both he will definitely stagger and fall in a pit,
In a wrong wager of duality he stands defeated. ... 22

Pauri 23 (Manmukh is ungrateful)
The impetuous one unable to swim dies by drowning in the sea of nectar, he cannot ferry across,
Touching the philosopher's stone, the stone cannot become gold and moulded like it,
The snake does not forsake poison even if clings to the sandalwood all the day,
The conch coming out empty from the sea cries in a pitiful voice,
The light of the sun cannot be concealed, but the owl cannot see the sun,
The self-willed is highly ungrateful, who is absorbed in the tastes of duality,
He does not remember the Lord in his mind. ... 23

Pauri 24 (Man without Guru is the worst)
The pregnant mother knows in her mind that her son will be a good son giving bliss,
But daughter is better than a disobedient son, who will go to another's house to populate it and remain there
The snake is better than a malicious daughter, who devours her own offspring on giving birth,
The hag is better than a malicious serpent, who is satiated by eating heroin wicked son,
The snake which stings a Brahmin and a cow is still better, who listening to Guru-mantra enters the basket,
The Creator has created the whole world, but none can be compared to a Guruless person,
Who does not take refuge of his parents and the Guru. ... 24
Pauri 25 (Man without Guru is the worst)
Lakhs of Guruless persons cannot equal to that Guruless, who does not come under the refuge of True Guru
He, who conceals his Guru, other Guruless persons feel shy on seeing him,
It is good to face a tiger, but not face such Guruless person,
He, who turns his back on the True Guru, many troubles arise on meeting him,
It is pious to efface the bad demeanour of such persons, if one cannot do it, he should recede,
Such persons who kill their master, or are ungrateful and infidel or killers of Brahmin and cow,
Their one hair cannot be equal to the self-willed. ...25

Pauri 26 (The gambler waste his life)
The attainment of human body is very rare, the turn comes after several ages,
To be born in a family of truthful persons is still rare and superb,
To obtain a healthy body is still rare and obtaining loving parents is very fortunate,
The company of a saint is very rare and the Guruwards consider loving devotion as the fruit of bliss,
He who is entrapped in the distressing snare of maya and vices resulting in transmigration,
Just as a hare entrapped by hunters is in affliction is going to lose a stake,
Likewise entrapped in a false wager of duality, the staff of Yama is struck on the head,
He is subjected to transmigration and he experiences great suffering in the sea of existence,
The gambler loses the precious human birth. ...26

Pauri 27 (Like game of dice the Gurmukh take turn)
This world is like the play of dice, one is subjected to transmigration in the sea of existence,
The Guruward united with congregation crosses the world-ocean by the grace of True Guru,
He who is absorbed in the love of True Guru is saved, by Guru’s grace he conquers five vices,
The Guruward is absorbed in the Supreme spiritual state, he never thinks ill of anyone,
He remains stable in attuning himself with Word and follows the path of Guruwards,
Following the tradition of receiving Guru’s instructions, he remains absorbed in loving devotion with others
Though the Guru’s grace, he abides in his own house. ...27

Pauri 28 (If the blind man becomes the lender)
Though bamboo is devoid of fragrance, but the self-willed receive fragrance from sandalwood-like Guru,
Though the glass cannot become gold, but the self-willed become gold by the touch of ‘Paaras’ -Guru,
The Simmal is fruitless, but the Guru makes the self-willed fruitful by his grace,
Though the black hair in due time become grey, the black crow cannot become white,
With Guru’s grace the crows become swans and pick the precious gems,
The animals and ghosts become like gods, when they meditate on the Name in congregation,
O self-willed one! You do not know the excellence of the Guru and are going astray in duality,
The blind leader becomes the cause of affliction for his companions. ...28

Pauri 29 (The best teaching is humility)
None is so ungrateful like me and also will not be,
None is so corrupt like me, none is so sinful like me
None is so slanderer like me, the slander of is the greatest of all,
None is so self-willed like me, one who is inattentive to the Guru is an assassin,
None is so villain like me, I am iminical and vicious towards uniminical,
None is so malevolent, I am absorbed in trance like a crane, who eats the fish,
The burden of great sins cannot be effaced from me, as I, without love, like to usurp the temple-money,
None is an ambidexter like me, forgetting the Guru’s instruction, I have only vicious behaviour,
I am a disciple of the Guru in name, but have not mediated on the Word. ...29

Pauri 30 (As above)
Those who see an inattentive person towards the Guru like me also become inattentive like me,
A sinner like me has considered the greatest of sins as most dear,
I feel pleased by satirising those who are inattentive towards the Guru and consider them lower than myself
Even the scribes of the Lord cannot write the accounts of my sins in which even seven seas merge,
The account of my sins is very and there is no end to such accounts,
I have been imitating all such inattentive persons and have been jocularly putting them to shame everywhere,
None is so bad like me in this world. ...

Pauri 31 (A dog of the Guru-court)

Majnu was enticed on seeing the dog of Laili’s house,
He bowed at the dog’s feet and the people laughed loudly in wonder at this,
Out of the bards, there was the bard Mardana the Sikh of Guru Nanak Dev
People called him as dog-like bard, he was the lowliest among the dogs,
But the Sikhs of the Guru were lovers of the Word, they liked that lowliest of the dogs,
The dogs bite in anger and lick in attachment, their actions are considered worth reproach,
The True Guru is beneficent towards the humble, I am a sacrifice to the congregation of such Guruwards,
The reputation of the congregation is the liberation of the sinners. ...

VAR-XXXVIII

One Oaṅkār the Eternal Truth realized through the grace of the divine preceptor (The description of Gursikhi)

Pauri 1 (Evil does not touch the Sikh of the Guru)
The lust with its lakhs of desires is seen in lakhs of forms,
Lakhs of ires in anger look like enemies,
Lakhs of greeds in the garb of Lakshmis are absorbed in cheating,
Millions of attachments together are seen with great qualities,
Lakhs of prides, destroying the demons, contact all in ego,
After listening to the instructions of the Guru, these vices do not touch a Gursikh. ...

Pauri 2 (Lust does not touch the Sikh of the Guru)
There are lakhs of beautiful and lustful women and lakhs of enticing women,
There are very beautifully adorned Padminis of Sangladeep,
There are-most beautiful and celestial women of Indrapuri,
There are lakhs of heavenly fairies and houris,
There are lakhs of youthful and lustful beautiful women,
Having the protection of the congregation these women cannot entice the Guruwards. ...2

Pauri 3 (The Sikhs of the Guru are beyond ego)
There are lakhs of Duryodhanas and Kansas and lakhs of fighting demons,
There are lakhs of Ravans and kumbhkarans and lakhs of bad demons,
There are lakhs of Parashramas and Sahasarbaahus egoistically engaged in strife,
There are lakhs of thundering Hiranayakashipus, Hamakhas and Narsinghs,
There are lakhs of ires and oppositions and lakhs of inimical persons,
The Gursikhs meet in the congregation, therefore none can influence them. ...3

Pauri 4 (The Sikhs of the Guru is not controlled by greed)
There are lakhs of maunds of gold and silver and lakhs of full stores,
There are lakhs of very precious gems, jewels and diamonds,
There are lakhs of countries and garbs, lakhs of rulers and thousands of areas,
There are powers, treasures, unions, enjoyments and bedecking ornaments,
There are lakhs wish-fulfilling cows and Elysian trees and lakhs of pieces of ‘Chintaamani’,
There are four necessities of life, all the fruit and lakhs of rising greeds,
They have no influence on a Gursikh, who is saved by the congregation. ...4

Pauri 5 (The Sikh of the Guru is without attachment)
There is attachment of father and son, mother and daughter, sister and brothers,
There is love of woman and husband and lakhs of alliances of minds,
There are beautiful mansions and art-galleries, also gardens with flowers,
There are lakhs of musical enjoyments, lakhs of relishes and forms and deceptive pleasures,
There are lakhs of people in the attachment of maya professing pretensions,
They have no influence on a Gursikh, who are charmed by the congregation. ...5

Pauri 6 (The Sikh of the Guru is devoid of ego)
The castes do not like one another, they are engaged in strife in their pride,
Two brave lions in one forest thunder loudly,
The intoxicated elephants obstinately resist,
The great rulers and sovereigns fight to conquer the countries,
Two kings in one country are ever engaged in fighting, lakhs of wrestlers in ego fight with one another,
They cannot influence a Gursikh, who abides in the congregation. ...6
Pauri 7 (The Sikh of the Guru is Shorn of ego)
Gorakh is called a celibate, though his Guru Matsyendranath became a householder,
On ruminating an incognito advice, Shukracharya lost one eye,
Though Lakshman conquered hunger and thirst, but still he remained egoistic, Hanuman was very powerful, but his intellect was very mercurial,
Dealing with ghosts, Bhairo’s practice was not in line, he remained engaged in vicious intellect,
The Gursikhs are real celibates and worth praise, they have effaced their ego....7

Pauri 8 (The Sikh of the Guru is the follower of truth)
Harichand kept his chastity, he was sold in the market
Bal was defrauded on keeping his truthfulness, but was sent to the netherworld, Karan had been giving gold in charity, but he ultimately repented for not giving corn in charity, Yuddhistar was truthful, but on a single lie he had to go to the abode of Yama,
The celibates, the truthful and contented ones, but were engrossed in ego,
All of them do not match even one hair of Gursikh, who is humble and without ego....8

Pauri 9 (The Sikh of the Guru is above the Hindu and Muslims)
Two paths of Hindus and Muslims had been started,
The Hindus had four castes and called their preceptor Guru and Muslims had four sects and called their preceptor ‘Pir’,
The Hindu and Muslim disciples in hypocrisy give instructions,
Though they remember God as Ram and Rahim, but they are engrossed in ego, Hindus worship Ganges and Varanasi and Muslims go to Mecca for ‘Haj’, Hindus and Muslims both hold fasts and also prayers,
But they cannot match even one hair of Gursikh, who effaces his self....9

Pauri 10 (The Sikh of the Guru is above all religions and sects)
The followers of the six systems of philosophy quarrel with regard to fourteen learnings,
The householders are engaged in performing Government services,
The ten sects of Sannyasis are engaged in strifes,
The twelve sects of Yogis move intoxicated,
The Jaina monks remain impure because they eat impure food,
They do not match even one hair of Gursikh, who rely on the Primal Lord from the very beginning. ...10

Pauri 11 (Gursikh is above other indigenous and foreign religions)
The sects of the muslims like Sunni, Shia and Raafzi are liked,
All the Mulhids and Munafiqs go astray
The followers of Christ and Moses remain in wonder and ego,
The ‘farangees’, ‘armanees’ and ‘Roomees’ are engrossed in pride,
The wearers of black dress, Qalandars and Derveshes are all impious, They do not match even one hair of Gursikh, who has surrendered himself to the Guru. ...11

Pauri 12 (Gursikh is above ritualism and enjoys in the pleasure-fruit)
Performing recitations, austerities, restraints and dogmatism,
To hold fasts and regular karmas, going to holy stations for religious works,
Performing the rituals of worship at the temples of gods and goddesses, Performing ‘havans’ and sacrifices, giving charities and reciting Vedas, Performing in fear and illusion religious works on births and deaths,
The Guruward going to the congregation receives the fruit of bliss and crosses the fearful sea of existence. ...12

Pauri 13 (Gursikh living in delights is above great and long-lived people)
Many great Sovereigns ruled the world from sunrise to sunset,
Many millions of treasures of money which afford great enjoyments,
The kings of men and gods and all sovereigns are entrapped in ego,
Living in the abodes of Shiva, Brahma and heavens,
There have been great people of long life,
The fruit of bliss received by the Guruward is unapproachable, he is the noblest. ...13

Pauri 14 (Gursikh’s pleasure fruit transcends sensual pleasures)
There may be lakhs of unique and colourful forms,
There may be eternal musical tunes being sounded untidily,
There may be lakhs of fragrances and many sweet-smelling oils,
There may be tasty and relishable foods prepared in kitchens with great care,
There may be silken wearing clothes and the ornaments of all limbs,
The fruit of bless of the Guruward is unapproachable, the Gursikhs unite in congregation. ...14
Pauri 15 (Gursikh enjoys the delight higher than the pleasures of mind and intellect)
If there are lakhs of intellects, lakhs of reasonings and lakhs of wisoms,
If there are lakhs of powers, lakhs of words of knowledge and lakhs of methods of earning money,
If there are lakhs of intelligences, lakhs of attentions and lakhs of knowledges of workmanship,
If there are lakhs of merits and thousands of meditations and remembrances,
If having all merits one is entrapped in ego, he is not approved in the Lord's Court,
The fruit of bliss of the Guruward is unapproachable because he has surrendered himself before the True Guru. ...15

Pauri 16 (Gursikh transcending Satguru pleasure remains in the delight of love)
If lakhs of truths, contentments, mercies, pieties are put together with wealth,
If lakhs of earths, skies, waters, airs are put together with fire,
If lakhs of forgivenesses and forbearance unite for glorification,
If peace, equipoise, bliss and good actions are combined with devotional love,
If all the substances coming together enhance happiness,
They cannot reach an iota of love, the fruit of bliss, of the Guruward. ...16

Pauri 17 (Gursikh above the pleasures of soul enjoys the spiritual pleasures)
Lakhs of Yogis performing meditations sit and commune together, Lakhs keep absorbed in absolute trance for the upkeep of their position,
Lakhs of Seshinagas remember the lord through the Lord's Names connoting His Attributes, Lakhs of recluses eulogise and applause the Lord,
Lakhs of devotees absorb themselves in the praise and ovation of the Lord,
All of them cannot enjoy a moment of love, the fruit of bliss, of the Guruward. ...17

Pauri 18 (Gursikh is above spiritual delight and all wonders)
Seeing the marvellous love of the Guruwards, the marvellous also marvels,
The greatest of the ecstasies are in rapture,
The greatest of the wonders are in wonder,
The greatest of informations cannot comprehend the Lord,
The Inexpressible and Unaccountable call the Lord ‘Neti, neti’ (not that, not that),
The love attained by the Guruwards as the fruit of bliss is only expressed as ‘Wahu, Wahu’ (wonderful Lord). ...18

Pauri 19 (The means to attain spiritual delight is Guru, holy congregation, Nam and shedding of ego)
With one utterance the Lord has extended His Universe,
He has created crores of universes in each of His Pore,
The Transcendent Lord manifested Himself as Guru,
The Guru and his disciple are one, the disciple meditates on Guru’s Word,
The congregation is the Abode of the Lord, being pervaded by Him,
The Guruward attains Love as fruit of bliss, by effacing his ego. ...19

Pauri 20 (Praises of the six Gurus)
The True Guru, Guru Nanak is Supreme Ishvara himself,
From his limb emerged Guru Angad, being endowed with his light,
From Guru Angad came Amar Das, getting eternal position as all-knowing,
From Guru Amar Das arose Guru Ramdas, saturated with the ambrosia,
From Ramdas came Guru Arjan, who was ever absorbed in the Guru’s Word,
From Guru Arjan came Guru Hargovind impersonating the Lord,
The Guruwards visualise the fruit of bliss as love in the congregation,
There is none other than the Lord and the Guru. ...20

VAR–XXXIX
One Oaïkär the Eternal Truth realized through the grace of the divine preceptor

Pauri 1 (Invocation)
Writing number one with Onkara, Guru Narak manifested the sign of One Lord, Then follows ‘Satnaam’ (Name of True Lord) ‘Karta Purkh’ (Creator), ‘Nirbhau’ (Fearless) and ‘Nirvair’ (without enmity),
Then follows ‘Akaal Murat’ (Eternal), ‘Ajuni’ (Unborn) and ‘Saibhang’ (Self-existent),
‘Aad Sach’ (That True Primal Lord), pervading in all ages can be realised by ‘Gurprasaad’ (the grace of the Guru),
That Lord of True Name ‘haibhi’ (is there) and ‘hosî’ (will be there ever),
His True Form was shown by the True Guru,
He, whose consciousness is attuned in Guru's Word and absorbed his mind in the Guru,
Following the tradition of Guru and disciple, he has risen above the worldly relations,
The Guruward attains the fruit of bliss and comprehends the Incomprehensible. ...1

Pauri 2 (Five Gurus)
The Transcendent Lord creating the world manifested Himself as Immanent Brahman,
With one utterance the whole expanse was created,
Creating five elements, He also created the five friendly virtues and five inimical vices,
The True Guru has conquered the unconquerable five vices and three modes and helped the saints,
The first five Gurus promulgated the Lord's Name and enhanced it further many times,
The Lord Himself has manifested through the five Gurus,
The True Guru, Guru Nanak Dev created Guru Angad from his limb, From Guru Angad, Guru Amar Das and Guru Ramdas arose and From Guru Ramdas Guru Arjan Dev came on the Guru's throne. ...2

Pauri 3 (Guru Hargobind Sahib Ji)
The five Gurus were the real guides of Sikhs, then came the great Guru Hargobind,
He is the Stable king of kings of both the worlds,
Being intoxicated on quaffing the five virtues, he became the sagacious moderator,
Abiding amongst the pervading six philosophies, he has attained the Supreme spiritual state and the Supreme Lord,
The followers of six philosophies have accepted the one philosophy of the Gurus,
The doctrines of the celibates, virtuous, contented, adepts, Naths and incarnations have been decanted,
There are eleven Rudras in Guru's heart-ocean, the self-denying Sikhs only realise the precious gem,
Bringing together the twelve signs of the sun and sixteen phases of moon, the Sikhs swing out of worldly relations,
Knowing the inner desires of heart, the Gurus pose as simple ones. ...3
Pauri 4 (The glory of the wash of the Guru feet)

Guru Hargovind is the Lord Himself, he was at first a disciple and then became a Guru,
The Transcendent Lord creating the expanse became Immanent,
The One Lord with one utterance created lakhs of rivers of life,
Lakhs of rivers fall in the sea and the seven seas into the Great Ocean,
Lakhs of oceans burn down in the cauldron of desires, being strung in a rod,
With one drop of sandal, the hot one becomes cold,
Lakhs of sandalwoods have sprung from the washings of the feet of the Guru,
The Primal Transcendent Lord is seen manifested as the Guru,
There is a celestial canopy over the head of Guru Hargovind. ...4

Pauri 5 (Benevolent great men)

If the moon comes in the house of sun, several inimical forces arise,
If the sun comes in the house of moon, then the love spreads and enmity is forgotten,
Merging the light in light, the Guruwards ever remember the Supreme Light of the Lord,
They taste the cup of love in the congregation absorbing in the knowledge and imbibing qualities,
For them there is one sun in all the six seasons and the Guru’s knowledge above all the six philosophies,
Contacting them all the castes become superb like eight metals becoming gold on touching philosopher’s stone
Just as when zero is added to all the numbers, their value is enhanced considerably,
The great ambrosial current tricks down, when one rises above the calculations,
The Guruward rises above worldly relations and becomes accountless and infinite in all ages,
The ingredients mixed with betel produce redness, likewise the sinful people of all castes become godly,
How can one attain the sainthood with money? ...5
Pauri 6 (Truth is higher than everything)
At present there are four sects of Muslims, four castes of Hindus and six systems of philosophies,
In fourteen regions of the world, Shiva and Shakti are engaged in trade of three modes,
But the true trade is in the shop of the Guru, the congregation, where the Lord is eulogised,
Where there is ever instruction, attention and remembrance, there is rumination of the Word in Love and Fear,
Where the Guruwards keep stable in Lord’s Name, Charity and Cleanliness, where there is trade of divine qualities,
The True Guru is the benefactor, whose abode is the Lord’s Abode of Truth,
After getting victorious over fourteen learnings, the Guruward attains the Love as the fruit of bliss,
Everything is below Truth, but the Truthful living of the Guruward is still higher,
Like the fragrance in the vegetation around sandalwood, the Guru’s instructions save the whole world,
He who has quaffed the ambrosia of Guru’s instruction, is ever alert in Guru’s knowledge. ...6

Pauri 7 (The Guru pervades the gurmukhs)
The addicts as well as the teetotallers work as servants side by side,
The minister who is an intimate of the king, he is not forbidden to give the advice,
The unintimate who may be alert or intoxicated, he is shunted out of the society,
The disciples who in speech and writing are the worshippers of the Guru, they may get high position,
The addicts who receiving Guru’s instruction do not comprehend the Incomprehensible cannot sit with teetotallers,
The addicts know the addicts and teetotallers know the teetotallers,
The minister and the king love each other, they have the same ‘jiva’ in both the bodies,
Like the sword fitting in the scabbard, both the swords fit in the same scabbard,
Like the same juice in the sugarcanes. ...7
Pauri 8 (Spiritual enjoyer Gursikh and vain intellectuals)
Both the servants, the addicts and teetotallers, came before the king, Those who were present were marked as present and those who were absent were marked as absent, After consideration the able ones were called in the court, The king is alert, he is pleased with both the alert ones and the intoxicated ones, The teetotallers were engaged in serving the cups of love to the addicts, The addicts became intoxicated and absorbed in the supreme spiritual state, The teetotallers without quaffing the cups of love remained blank and strayed in ritual worships, They remained engaged in unnecessary rituals of Vedas and Katebs in pride and pleading, A rare Guruward attains the fruit of bliss. ...8

Pauri 9 (The devout offer joy to the vain intellectuals but they do not into accept it)
The king (Guru) sits in the attic and with his speech opens the proceedings of the court, In the inner apartment sits the executive and the people come in the outer part, The king quaffs the cup and he presents the drinks to those high ones inside, Then the addicts present the drinks to the teetotallers of the first and second batch, But the teetotallers forbid the drink, they do not quaff themselves and not like others to drink, But the king gives his own drink to the rare one out of his grace without repenting, One who does not or cannot accept it becomes sinful, he is saved on king’s orders, None other knows the relish of love, only the king (Guru) knows it or whomsoever he wants to know, That Guruward is rare, who knows the Unknowable. ...9

Pauri 10 (The condition of the hollow scholars who are devoid of spiritual enjoyment)
The Hindus recite Vedas and the Muslims Kateb, but they are teetotallers (without love), The Muslims utter the Name of God as ‘Khuda’, the Hindus utter the Name of God,
The Muslims recite ‘Kalima’ and observe circumcision, the Hindus wear sacred thread and apply frontal mark, Mecca is sacred for the Muslims and the Ganges and Varanasi for the Hindus, Muslims hold fasts and offer prayers, the Hindus remain confused with worship and ‘Vratas’, Four sects of Muslims, four castes of Hindus, six philosophies and their Acharyas give separate instructions, Muslims as disciples revere their ‘Pir’ and Hindus as disciples respect their ‘Guru’, Hindus believe in ten incarnations and Muslims have faith in only One God, All of them are engaged in forceful strife ...

Pauri 11 (The conditions of the Special Spiritual enjoyers)
The special addicts of Lord’s Court, quaffing the cup of love, have known the Unknowable
They have cast away the rosaries of both Hindus and Muslims,
They have not differentiated between the Ram of Hindus and Rahim of Muslims, Becoming one as human beings they have considered the world as game of chess,
Crossing over Shiva and Shakti, and quaffing the cup of love, they have entered their own home,
Rising over the three modes of activity, rhythm and morbidity, they have reached the fourth state,
They consider the preceptor as God and know the relationship of Guru and disciple, Enlightening themselves with the True Word and attuning with it they merge in the True Lord, Considering God as True Sovereign, they love the Truth ...

Pauri 12 (The Satguru’s abode is holy congregation)
The Transcendent Lord manifesting Himself as True Guru, abides in the congregation,
They attune themselves with the Word and blossom in devotional love with equipoise and Fear,
The Lord does not die and absorb us in sorrow, He is the Giver of indestructible enjoyments,
People say that the Guru has passed away, but instead he, the Eternal One blooms in the congregation, Guru Hargovind is the sixth Guru, who should tell this generation to the Gursikhs?

Who are absorbed only in the True Name, in the Real Sight abiding in the True Heaven of congregation,
The Lord as lover of devotees gives them the cup of love in the congregation,
The Transcendent Lord manifesting Himself as True Guru is eulogising the Immortal and Unborn Lord,
The True Guru tests his Sikhs on the touchable of Truth. ...12

Pauri 13 (Holy congregation is the abode of Truth)
The One Lord creating the expanse created the three modes and five elements,
After creating the Trinity of Brahma, Vishnu and Shiva, He created ten incarnations,
He created six seasons, twelve months and seven days of week in the world,
The Shastras, Vedas and Puranas caused the world to know about the accounts of life and death,
They could not write about the beginning and end of the congregation, their date, day and month,
The congregation is the real abode of the Lord, where He abides in Guru’s Word,
Like the fruit from the tree and tree from the fruit, the Lord has revealed Himself, through His Power,
The True Guru has paid obeisance to the Lord and caused his Sikhs to do the same,
Just as the warp and woof are made from the same cotton thread, the Lord Himself manifested as True Guru,
The marvellous True Guru came into contact with the Marvellous Lord. ...13

Pauri 14 (Brahma’s actions)
Brahma created the four Vedas and also created the four castes and four stages of life,
Through the instructions of six philosophies and six Shastras he created several sects,
He created four directions, seven continents and nine regions,
He created waters, plains, forests, mountains and holy stations,
And caused recitations, austerities, restraints, havans, sacrifices, charities and religious works to grow,
But none recognised the Transcendent Lord, only the congregation informs about it and no one enquires from it, All the people only relate whatever they have heard. ...14

Pauri 15 (Vishnu’s actions)
Vishnu manifested himself in ten incarnations and creating strifes caused the warriors to fight one another, He caused both gods and demons to fights making the gods victorious and demons defeated, He created the incarnations of Fish, Tortoise, Boar, Narsingh, Vaman (dwarf) and Buddha, Parashurama, Rama, Krishna and would-be incarnation of Nihkalank of Kilak country, With the enhancement of deceit many hypocrisies and mercurial pretences appeared, None of them preached about the Transcendent, Perfect and Fearless Lord, Parashurama killed Kshatriyas and Ramayana and Mahabharata became prevalent, But no one could efface lust, anger, greed, attachment and ego, The precious human births were wasted without congregation. ...15

Pauri 16 (Actions of Śiva)
Shiva manifested for eleven times, he was called a householder Yogi, He passed his time as celibate, virtuous, contented, adept and Natha, His Sannyasis were divided into ten sects and the Yogis into twelve sects, He used jugglery of attaining powers, treasures, master of alchemy, Tantras and Mantras, Holding the fair of Shivraat, he enhanced the strife for attaining miraculous powers, He started the enjoyment of quaffing the cups of poppy, hemp and wine, He started the tradition of sounding the horns, trumpets and conches, Addressing the Primal Lord as ‘Alakh’ (Unknowable), but has not known Him, He strayed in illusion without the holy congregation. ...16

Pauri 17 (True conduct as way to liberation)
The Transcendent Lord has Himself manifested as True and Immortal Guru, Guru Nanak Dev, Who is called the Guru of the Gurus, Nath of the Naths, who was prevalent in the congregation,
He started the religion of Guruwards, who remain detached from maya, They having met the True Guru are called ‘Panch’ (chiefs), they ever remain merged in the Lord, The ‘Panch’ on meeting the Guruward is approved by the Lord, he abides in the bliss-giving congregation, The sight of the Guru is the Guru’s Word, the traditional devotional love meads towards one’s own home, He speaks sweetly, walks humbly and earns for all his family, he remains detached in the world of hopes, He is ever in the supreme spiritual state and remains traditionally detached in Kaliyuga, On coming into contact with the holy congregation, he is emancipated. ...17

_Pauri 18 (The Gurmukh generation)_

There is love between the woman and her husband, the men love their wives, When the husband and wife come together, good and bad sons are born in the world, Those men who love the Lord, they are very rare, The man is produced by man, through their consciousness the relationship of Guru and disciple arises, If the disciple is full of qualities, he becomes the Guru, like the philosopher’s stone producing another similar stone, On meeting the Guru, the family of Guruwards enhances, such saintly persons are philanthropists, The disciples of the same Guru are really related to each other, on meeting each other they pay obeisance, The disciple of the Guru forsakes the body and wealth of others, he effaces slander and ego, I am a sacrifice to the holy congregation. ...18

_Pauri 19 (The relationship of Gursikh is the true relationship)_

From great grandfather, there are grandfather and father, then son, grandson, great grandson and great grandson, From great grandmother, there are grandmother and mother, then aunt, sister, daughter and daughter-in-law, Then we know the relations of maternal grandfather and grandmother, great maternal grandfather and grandmother,
The relations of elder uncle and uncle, elder aunt and aunt etc, are intoxicated in maya,
The man is also absorbed in the love of mother’s brother and his wife, mother’s sister and her husband,
There are other relations of maternal and paternal aunts’ husbands, father/mother/sister in-law and brother-in-law’s son,
Someone is in ego because of the elder uncle and uncle’s sons, maternal and paternal aunts’ sons,
The husband of wife’s sister and all relations of in-laws are together like the travellers of the same boat and are false,
The real relation does not suffer separation, all the members of the congregation meet like brothers,
Living and enjoying their family life, they are following the spiritual discipline in congregation. ...19

Pauri 20 (Love of the true Guru)
The love of the aunt, elder uncle and uncle cannot be equal to the love of father,
The love of the sons of mother’s brother and sister cannot be equal to the love of mother,
By eating the fruit of calatrope the longing for mangoes is not effaced,
The odour of radish and betel reveals itself through eructation,
Even if lakhs of lamps are lighted and lakhs of stars shine, they cannot match the light of sun and moon,
The colour of madder is steadfast and in comparison the colour of safflower becomes dull,
The mother, father and all gods are never so gracious as the True Guru,
I have tested all of them. ...20

Pauri 21 (Love of the Guru)
The love the parents cannot match the love of the True Guru, which is discerning and supporting,
The kings of the world cannot match the True Guru, because he is unfathomable and gives shelter to all,
The Lordship of any chieftain cannot match the True Guru, because he is the True Lord and Master,
The bounty of any donor cannot match the bounty of True Guru, because he is the donor of True commodity,
The treatment of any physician cannot match the treatment of True Guru, because he removes the ailment of ego,
The service of gods and goddesses cannot match the service of True Guru, which is ever comfortable,
The gems of the sea cannot match the instructions of True Guru, because there are many precious gems in it,
The Story of the True Guru is inexpressible, its greatness is excellent. ...

VAR-XL
One Name is the Eternal Truth realized through the grace of divine preceptor

Pauri 1 (Invocatio to the true Guru)
The merchandise is available from only one store, which belongs to the Perfect Guru, Guru Nanak Dev,
Who saves the sinners, removes troubles, giver of shelter and a warrior of his utterance,
He gives merits to his Sikhs, removing demerits, he is the ocean of bliss removing all sufferings,
Removing the thousands and lakhs of vices, he is a philanthropist remaining ever in the presence of the Lord,
He grants truthfulness to his Sikhs, causing them to remember the True Name of the Creator, never becoming deficient,
The True Guru abides in the Heaven of congregation, where he sounds the horn of celestial Word,
He effaces the duality of his Sikhs. ...

Pauri 2 (Holy Congregation)
The philosopher’s stone in its beneficent action does not think of the caste of the eight metals,
The dwarfish sandalwood fragrances all the fruitful and fruitless vegetation without any pride in its heart,
The rain falls equally at all places without consideration of any particular place
The sun after rising spreads its rays at all places,
The earth has great forbearance, it destroys the filth of others and does not consider the demerits,
After touching the philosopher’s stone the iron becoming gold is full of pride for its entity like gems, rubies and jewels,
The congregation is without any limits. ...

Pauri 3 (The Service of true Guru provides all boons)
The philosopher's stone transforms all metals into gold, but the dross does not become gold, therefore grieves,
The sandalwood fragrances the vegetation except the bamboo,
The field gives good crop when it rains, but the barren earth does not sprout the sown seed,
The owl cannot see the sun, but the True Guru causes the Sikh to have a close sight of the Lord,
Whatever is sown in the earth, that crop is reaped, but from the service of the True Guru all the fruit are attained,
Whosoever embarks on a ship reaches his destination, but the True Guru saves all the good and bad people,
The True Guru transforms the evil ones into gods. ...3

Pauri 4 (Greatness of the true Guru)
The philosopher's stone transforms the metals into gold, but that gold cannot transform others into gold,
The sandalwood with its fragrance makes the vegetation like sandalwood, but that vegetation cannot transform others,
When it rains, the sown seed sprouts forth, but on remembrance of Guru's instructions, one gets fruit quickly,
The sun sets when the night falls, but those who imbibe Guru's instructions, their high spiritual state remains constant,
The ship cannot ascend a mountain, but the True Guru saves even the persistent ones,
The earth has fear of the earthquake, but the instructions of the True Guru are invariable and the Sikh does not swerve,
The True Guru is the bundle of the gems of virtues. ...4

Pauri 5 (Sacrifice into the holy congregation)
When the sun rises, the blind owls conceal themselves,
When the lion roars in the forest, the jackals and deer vanish away,
When the moon rises in the sky, it cannot be concealed in a large shallow earthen vessel,
All the birds in the forest, on seeing the falcon do not keep at their places,
The thieves, lechers and corrupt persons are not seen, when the day dawns,
I am a sacrifice to the holy congregation. ...5
Pauri 6 (Blest is the holy congregation)
During the dark night lakhs and crores of stars shine on the sky,
When the moon rises, they become dull, some one hides and some one mumbles,
When the sun rises, the stars, moon and dark night disappear,
Likewise on the appearance of the Guru, the gods, goddesses, Shaivites, Tantras and Mantras vanish away,
The Vedas, Katebs, four castes and four stages of life stand amended by the Word of True Guru,
The discipline of the Guruwards is pleasing, Bravo to the Guru and his Sikhs,
The holy congregation is conspicuous in the world. ...6

Pauri 7 (Seekers of the True Guru)
The four castes of Hindus and four sects of Muslims and six philosophies are apparent in the world,
The ten incarnations and others of thousands of names and places are real traders of the Guru,
Taking the merchandise from the Guru’s store, they spread in the whole world,
The True Guru is the real and carefree banker, his stores are unfathomable, After taking everything, they still deny the gifts, but the Guru is the Giver and continues to give,
With one utterance the Lord spread the expanse and caused the manifestation of the True Guru,
I am a sacrifice to the Transcendent Lord as the True Guru. ...7

Pauri 8 (There is no liberation without true Guru)
For the Muslims there are many ‘Pirs’, prophets, ‘walis’, ‘Ghaus’, ‘Qutb’ and learned persons,
There are many ‘Sheikhs’, faithful, poor and martyrs,
There are many Qadis, Mullahs, ‘Maulvis’, ‘Muftis’ and sagacious persons,
Among Hindus there are many seers and ‘munis’, there are Jaina monks and many in darkness of miracles,
There are innumerable strivers and adepts, who call themselves greatest of the great,
None of them is saved without the Guru, they are all highly entrapped in ego,
Without the holy congregation all are egoistic. ...8
Pauri 9 (All the gifts are with the grace of Oaikar, the God)
The Lord has given to some people powers, to some treasures and to some miracles,
To some He has given alchemy, to some gems, to some philosopher’s stone and to some ambrosia,
To some Tantras, Mantras and hypocrisies, to some calling spirits in cemeteries and some straying in countries,
He has given wish-fulfilling cow to someone, elysian tree to someone and wealth to some, Several are absorbed in dramas and plays, some are engaged in vain postures and cleansing of intestines,
Some are absorbed in Yogas and some in enjoyments, also entangled always in unison and separation,
All this expanse has been created by the One Lord. ...9

Pauri 10 (Excellence of human birth)
Four divisions of creation, speech and ages and eighty-four lakhs of species have been created,
Out of all the species, the birth of human being is superb and rare,
The Lord-God has bestowed the leadership of all species to human being,
But many human beings in the world are slaves to others, they do not comprehend this,
But among men those are considered subservient who waste their precious birth in bad deeds,
Abiding in the holy congregation, the straying in eighty-four lakh species is effaced,
There is greatness and excellence in Guru’s Word. ...10

Pauri 11 (The highway-daily conduct of the Gurmukh)
The Gursikh rising early in the morning takes a bath in the tank,
After reciting the hymns of the Gurus, he goes to attend the congregation,
Where he listens to the ‘kirtan’ of Gurbani with love,
Removing all doubts from his mind, he serves the Gursikhs,
He earns his pious living and distributes the offerings in the congregation,
After distributing it to Gursikhs, he eats the remaining one,
In the age of Kaliyuga, living thus, the disciple becomes one with the Guru,
The Guruward moves on the True Guru’s beaten track. ...11
Pauri 12 (Gursikh absorbed in the Gurus teachings)
He, who is God-incarnate, he is the creator True Guru, He, who has created the whole expanse, He has churned in the congregation his consciousness in the Word,
Among Brahma, Vishnu, Shiva and ten incarnations, this was not considered, This secret could not be known in Vedas and Katebs, Hindus and Muslims did not know it,
Only his precious birth has been successful, who has come under the refuge of True Guru’s feet,
On becoming a Gursikh after listening to the instructions of the Guru, a rare one surrenders completely to the Guru,
That Sikh merges within the Guru. ...12

Pauri 13 (Without the Sikhs of the Gurus all are wandering in delusion) Some perform many recitations, austerities and works of persistence, who learn fourteen learnings and preach Vedas, Seshinaga, Sanak etc. and the sage Lomas could not know the end of the Lord,
The celibates, virtuous, contented, adepts and Naths exhibiting themselves stray away in ego,
The preceptors, prophets, hermits and thousands of elders are in wonder, Lakhs of Yogas and enjoyments, lakhs of ailments and sorrows, and lakhs of unisons and separations are in marvel,
The ten sects of Sannyasis are straying in confusion,
The Gursikhs as Yogis keep awake, all others hide in the forests,
The Gursikhs remember the Lord in congregation. ...13

Pauri 14 (Teachings of the Guru)
The Light of lakhs of suns and moons cannot match the light in the instructions of the True Guru,
In lakhs of skies and nether-worlds, the high or low rays of the Graceful glances of True Guru do not reach there,
The multi-coloured waves of lakhs of airs and waters cannot match the waves of instructions of the Guru, The creations in the beginning and the middle and the dissolution in the end have no value before Guru’s instructions,
The forbearance of lakhs of mountains and the piety of lakhs of earth cannot match the forbearance and piety of Guru, Lakhs of learnings and attentions are not equal to an iota of Guru’s instructions,
Therefore I am a sacrifice to one ray of Guru’s instructions many times. ...14
Pauri 15 (The rare seekers)
With one utterance the Lord created lakhs of rivers, in which lakhs of waves arise,
Even in one wave, lakhs of rivers flow,
In one river, lakhs of incarnations manifest themselves,
Machh and Kachh, the parsimonious incarnations cannot fathom the Unfathomable Lord,
The Sustainer Lord is Infinite and there are no limits in one of the waves,
The True Guru is Immortal and the Sikhs receiving his instructions endure the Unendurable,
Those persons are very rare who are absorbed in meditation. ...15

Pauri 16 (Primeval Lord)
One Utterance of the Lord is Immeasurable, what can be said about the excellence of His Greatness, None has been able to know the expanse of the creation of the Lord,
Whose half breath is Unfathomable, His Life's Span cannot be enumerated,
His Nature cannot be evaluated, the Creator Himself is Unknowable,
His Gifts cannot be evaluated, His day and night are endless and His Gifts are Innumerable,
His State is Imperishable, He is the Patron of the patronless, His Story is Inexpressible, He Himself is 'Neti, neti',
I pay my obeisance to that Primal Lord. ...16

Pauri 17 (Condemnation all worthless rituals)
If one saws his head lakhs of times and slashing his body into bits, he gets the 'havana' performed,
If one dissolves himself in the snow of Himalayas lakhs of times and performs austerity upside down with exact device,
If he performs austerities in water and fire and also practises austerities like king Janaka Videhi,
If he holds many fasts regularly and performs restraints and visits the places of gods and goddesses,
If he performs virtuous, charitable and other good works and also practises the postures of adepts, sitting on 'singhasan'
If he performs the cleansing of his intestines and also practises the breath-exercises like a Yogi,
All of them do not match the fruit of bliss of the Guruward. ...17
Pauri 18 (Peculiarity of the delightful reward)
The fruit of bliss of the Guruward cannot be attained by thousand of wise person or through thousands of wisdoms, The workmanship of thousands of wise artisans and thousands of clevernesses do not match it, Lakhs of doctors and lakhs of prudences and worldly wisdoms of great men of the world cannot attain it, The advice of lakhs of kings, sovereigns and ministers cannot help in its attainment, The celibates, virtuous, contented, adepts and Naths cannot fathom it, The four castes of Hindus, four sects of Muslims and even six philosophies cannot comprehend it, Such great is the eminence of the fruit of bliss of the Guruward. ...18

Pauri 19 (Guru and the discipleship)
The discipleship of the Guru is very difficult, only the Guru of the Gurus knows it, But the Sikh receiving the instructions of the True Guru recognises it, passing over the worldly relations, The disciple who totally surrenders himself, that Gursikh only enters the house of Baba (Guru Nanak), He falls at the feet of the Guru and becomes dust of his feet, with that pure dust many are saved, The discipline of the Guruward is Unapproachable, the Sikh who totally surrenders lives and recognises it, The Sikh, who imbibes the Guru's instructions, he is transformed from ant into a black bee, Who can relate this inexpressible story ...19

Pauri 20 (Fruit of delight)
All the four castes coming in the congregation conquer the sixteen i.e. ten sense organs, five breaths and the mind, Attuning in the Guru's Word, they come to know twenty-five dispositions of the body, The six philosophies are transformed into one philosophy of the Guru, destroying the thirty-six hypocrisies, Those who consider the light of God pervading in seven continents, they come to know about forty-nine airs,
The Sikh who has been transformed into gold by the Guru knows about the bliss of sixty-four learnings,
The Sikh who knows the one Lord patronising Nine Naths, comes to know about the eighty-one regions,
The Sikh who has conquered the ten sense-organs, he gets one hundred percent approval in the Court of Lord,
The miracle of the fruit of bliss of Guruward is marvellous. ...20

Pauri 21 (Praise of Guru)
The Sikh saints may be considered as one hundred Person, but the True Guru is one hundred and one,
The Court of that True Guru is ever steady, It is always stable and never swerves,
He who meditates on him single-mindedly, the noose of Yama has been effaced from his neck,
The True Guru makes his Sikhs known through the consciousness of Word that the One Lord pervades everywhere, Without seeing the Guru, Lakhs of people undergo transmigration in eighty-four lakh species,
Without the instructions of the Guru, people undergo birth and death and fall into hell,
The True Guru is both Transcendent and Immanent that person is rare, who merges in the Word,
There is no other support than the True Guru and the True Support never perishes,
The True Guru is the Guru of the Gurus, he will remain stable in the beginning and at the end,
That Guruward is rare, who abides in the Supreme Spiritual State. ...21

Pauri 22 (Basic description)
The Guru is the base of attention and the base of worship are the feet of the Guru,
The utterance of the Guru is the base of all mantras because he causes us to listen to his Word,
The lotus-feet of the Guru are washed by the Sikhs and these washings are pure,
These washings efface all the sins and the dust of the feet of the Guru effaces the bad writ of the Sikh,
Reciting the True Name of the Creator Vahiguru, the Lord merges in the heart, Removing the twelve frontal marks of the 'Vairaagis', the Sikh applies the Guru's frontal mark on his forehead, The Gursikh follows the tradition of reciting the Name of One Lord, forsaking all others, Without the sight of the Guru, one strays away without getting any hold, Without the Perfect Guru, one transmigrates. ...22
